Resolved, That the collection of arrears of real estate taxes should be made by advertisement and sale of the delinquent property only after judgment by a court of competent jurisdiction ordering such sale.

Resolved, That the following additional powers should be given to the State Board of Tax Commissioners.

First—To make rules for the guidance of local assessors.

Second—Power to enforce compliance by local assessors with the directions of the State Board of Tax Commissioners.

Third—The power to order a reassessment in any tax district.

Form of Roll.

Resolved, That section 21 of the tax law should be so amended as to empower the State Board of Tax Commissioners to prescribe the from of assessment roll, subject to the provisions of section 21-a of the tax law and the provisions of city charters and subject to the provision that real estate and personal property should be entered in separate parts of the roll.

In closing the conference Chairman Byrnes declared that the conference had been the most successful, both in point of numbers attending and the great good resulting, than any previous meeting. He announced that the Committee on Revisions had decided to take no action regarding the laws of New York City as they considered the city well governed in this respect by its own Tax Board. The committee, he said, would devote its entire time to the outlying sections of the State, especially Suffolk, Westchester and Erie counties.

South Side Boulevard, Richmond.

Borough President McCormack, of Richmond, is working with the property owners and citizens of Rosebank and Grasmere, who will be affected by the extension of South Side Boulevard, and whose properties will be taken by the city from Rosebank avenue to a point about 1,050 feet south of Parkinson avenue.

He has had the Board of Estimate and Apportionment refer the proceedings back to him for further investigation and report. All action by the condemnation commissioners is thus stayed until his report and investigation is completed.

The President will have time to investigate and fix the alinement of Reynolds street, and decide whether this is the most practicable plan that can be prepared, and whether in his judgment, and that of the citizens and taxpayers vitally interested a better plan cannot be devised.

Mr. McCormack suggests that the making of the South Side Boulevard a public parkway, and placing it under the jurisdiction of the Department of Parks, would be a solution of the matter.

It would relieve and save the taxpayers in the section covered by the improvement from heavy and unnecessary burdens that they will be subjected to if they have to pay for this so-called improvement by assessments on their properties. The parkway would be a magnificent addition to a superb system of roadways.

BUILDING MANAGEMENT

SOFT COAL FOR HEATING IS ECONOMICAL, EFFICIENT AND PRACTICABLE WITH SMOKELESS BOILERS.

By J. F. MUSSELMAN, M. E.
Consulting Engineer.

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for the American Real Estate Co.

WHEN consideration is given to the fact that for every one thousand cubic feet of contents of the average New York office building, loft or apartment house, somewhere between $1 and $2.50 is spent per year for the coal burned in the heating apparatus, it is easy to realize what a large per cent. in the operating cost of any enterprise goes to the coal bill. With this in mind, it is difficult to understand why, in designing the heating systems of buildings, so little attention is given to the selection of the boilers and the determination of the character of coal to be used. This is especially remarkable in view of the fact that it can be demonstrated that this item of coal cost is subject to a variation of at least 40 per cent., which variation can be traced directly to correct or faulty boiler selection or to the use of right or wrong kind of coal.

A mistake of this kind, once made, is rarely corrected, for few owners know what their coal cost really is, and even fewer can make an accurate estimate of what it should be. Then this question of coal cost is apt to come up in midwinter, which is the worst possible time to think seriously about a change in the boiler plant. But a boiler that will save 40 per cent. of the coal cost will pay for itself in from two and one-half to three years.

Wide Variation in Coal and Its Cost.

So little attention has been given to the selection of boilers in many of the present-day buildings that the matter has generally resolved itself into a condition by which the boiler of the best salesman or the cheapest manufacturer is used. This again has brought about the widest possible variation in the kind and size of coal used, until it is not uncommon to see the best grade of stove or egg coal, which costs on an average $6.25 per ton, used in one building, while an adjoining building of the same kind is using No. 1 buckwheat at $3.50 per ton.

The cheapest anthracite coal that can be used readily under the natural draught conditions which obtain in the usual building are pea size, costing in the New York market an average of about $4.75 per ton, and No. 1 buckwheat, costing about $3.50. The former has a heat value of about 12,000 British thermal units per pound, while the latter runs in the neighborhood of 11,500 British thermal units per pound. These two sizes are the ones in most general use.

Merits of Soft Coal.

According to the reports of the U. S Bureau of Mines, there is to be found in the coal fields of Pennsylvania, Maryland and West Virginia bituminous and semi-bituminous coal in almost unlimited quantities. This coal is usually mined, I am told, on a royalty basis of ten cents per ton, and the freight is sufficiently low to allow it to sell in the New York market at $3.75 per ton or less. These soft coals of the Eastern fields have very high heating values per pound and are correspondingly low in ash. Their average heating value of "run-of-mine" size is about 14,100 British thermal units per pound, and, inasmuch as they are coking, very little fuel is lost through the grate.

The primary objection to soft coal is of course, the fact that it smokes, and we often hear the statement that the smoke ordinances of New York will not permit its use. But this statement is not correct, and we must consider that a great many cities which have smoke ordinances fully as strict as those of New York have no hard coal available at prices not prohibitive.

The importance of abatement of the smoke nuisance is so manifest and the economy which could be effected by the use of this extensive supply of soft coal so apparent that the U. S. Geological Survey has authorized an exhaustive investigation and test on plants of various kinds in which soft coal is used. A report of these tests by Messrs. D. T. Randall and H. W. Weeks is issued by the Department of Mines, Bulletin No. 40. The plants which were tested were equipped with different kinds of stokers, dutch ovens, down-draft furnaces and ordinary flat grates. A brief summary of the conclusions reached states that smoke prevention is both possible and economical, and that there are many types of furnaces and stokers that will burn soft coal economically without smoke.

For an ordinary low-pressure heating plant which is not in conjunction with a power plant, a mechanical stoker is too complicated and too expensive to be generally used. As it is the purpose of this article to deal with the conditions of less expensive and smaller buildings where isolated plants are not warranted, the relative merits of mechanical stokers will not be taken up.

A successful boiler for this kind of building must be inexpensive, economical, smokeless and simple to operate. It should have a large firebox in order that a considerable quantity of fuel can be fired at one time, for it is often inconvenient, especially in the smaller installations, to attend the fire oftener than once every two hours. It is most important, too, that such a boiler should have a large steam space and should be constructed in such a way as to eliminate as nearly as possible the chance of unexpected breakdown, which might make the whole system inoperative.

Burns Soft Coal with Almost No Smoke.

This last heating season has introduced into New York a type of boiler that accomplishes all of these requirements admirably. It consumes the soft coal so perfectly that almost no smoke is visible at the chimney, and at the same time shows a boiler efficiency averaging about 20 per cent. higher than the usual type of heating boiler. The boiler referred to consists of an adaptation of the well-known Hawley down-draft furnace principle to a firebox or portable steel boiler. It consists of an upper grate made of heavy steel water tubes, built into the furnace and extending from the inside head-sheet to a cross header running from one side-sheet to the other. Below this is a lower grate of the usual rocking pattern that burns only such half-consumed fuel as falls through from the upper grate.

In the operation of this type of boiler all of the green coal is charged on the water grate, and through this upper fire-door the greater part of the air is admitted, forming a draught down through the green coal and carrying its smoke through the live fire and into the large combustion chamber where it is entirely consumed by the heat of the lower fire which is fed by the coked live coals which fall between the wide openings of the water grate. The combustion chamber back of upper grate is large and high, giving the smoke a low velocity and ample time for perfect ignition before coming in contact with the cooler boiler plate.

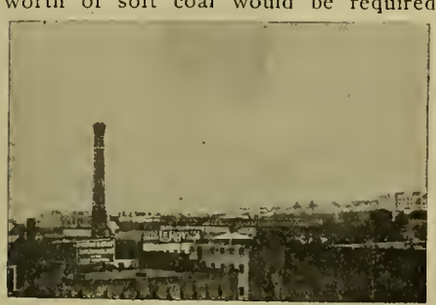
Probably the first to appreciate the real merits of this type of construction was Mr. Nelson S. Thompson, chief mechanical and electrical engineer of the Supervising Architect's office of the U. S. Treasury Department. His office has tested them extensively in actual operation, and a great many boilers of this type have been used in small custom houses and post offices, especially throughout the soft-coal districts. Figure 1 is a typical setting detail, taken from "Miscellaneous Drawing No. 304," issued by the Supervising Architect's office.

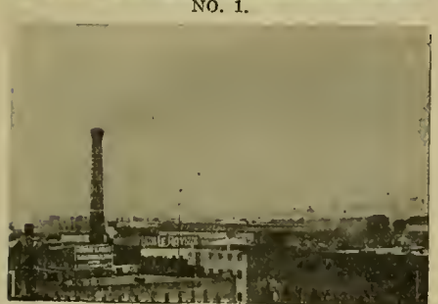
Practically the same type of furnace is used in the portable type boiler and has some advantages ver the brick-set type. It gives longer effective travel of heated gases, occupies less space, and avoids the tendency to leak air on account of cracks in the setting. Such an arrangement is shown in Fig. 2.

The Financial Saving.



A series of tests made by Robert W. Hunt & Co., engineers, with smokeless and ordinary type of heating boilers, using several different kinds of soft coal, shows that an average fuel saving of 19½ per cent. can be effected by the use of the smokeless construction, and this with a freedom from smoke that will meet the requirements of the smoke ordinances of any city.

With this increase in efficiency and the increased heating value of the soft coal a smokeless boiler of this type compares with the usual type of boiler burning buckwheat, pea or stove coal, as follows:



Bituminous coal with 14,100 B. T. U. per pound, at $3.75 per ton delivered.

Anthracite coal (buckwheat) with 11,500 B. T. U. per pound, at $3.50 per ton delivered.

To compare their heating values, one pound of buckwheat coal is equivalent to 11,500/14,100 pounds of soft coal, or .815 pound; and, if the smokeless boiler will effect a fuel saving of 19½ per cent., the actual amount of soft coal which would be equivalent to one pound of buckwheat would be .656 pound, or for each dollar of buckwheat coal 70⅓ cents' worth of soft coal would be required.

NO. 1.

NO. 2.

NO. 3.

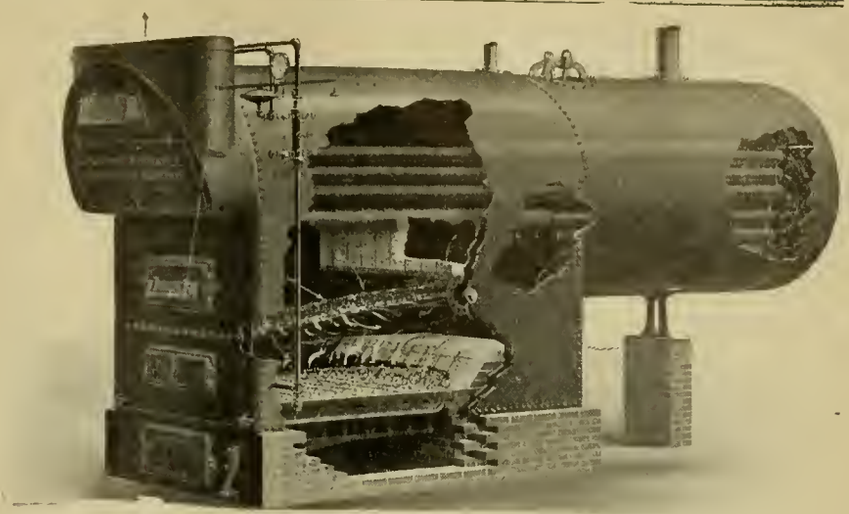


FIG. 2.—PORTABLE SMOKELESS BOILER.

To compare it with pea coal having 12,000 B. T. U. per pound at $4.75 per ton delivered, we find one pound of pea coal is equivalent to 12,000/14,100 pounds of soft coal, or .851 pound; and, if the smokeless boiler will again effect a fuel saving of 19½ per cent., then the soft coal equivalent of one pound of pea coal would be .685 pound, or for each dollar's worth of pea coal only 54.1 cents' worth of soft coal would be required.

The comparison with egg coal, having 13,500 B. T. U. per pound, and costing $6.25 per ton delivered, shows even more advantage on the side of soft coal. Figuring in the same way, we arrive at the conclusion that for each dollar invested in this kind of coal 46.2 cents' worth of soft coal would give the same results.

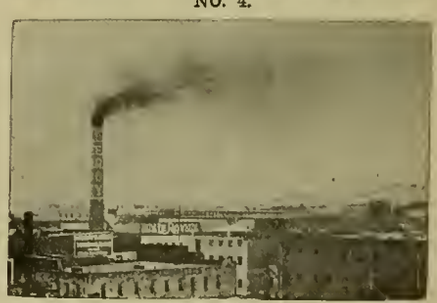
But the real test of a heating boiler is its performance under operating conditions. In order to establish a comparison of the results under usual duty conditions, I have made a study of the coal consumption per square foot of radiation in a number of approximately similar apartment houses in which different kinds of boilers and different kinds of coal were used. These observations extended over a period of several weeks of this present heating season.

A Comparative Test.

The average of the results of the three buildings which were equipped with brick set smokeless boilers, as compared with other buildings having hard coal boilers, was even better than the theoretical figures given above. These three buildings used an average of 55 cents' worth of coal per 1,000 square feet of direct radiation per day while the buildings in which pea coal was used consumed an average of $1.03 worth per day per 1,000 square feet of direct radiation. The operation of the smokeless boilers, from a point of view of smokelessness, has been excellent.

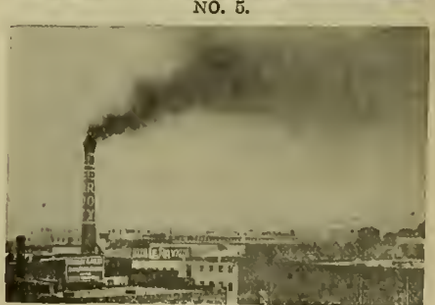
Under usual conditions of operation, no smoke was visible, except that immediately after charging fresh coal, for periods of from five to ten minutes, a slight haze would be seen at the top of the chimney. This was never more dense than No. 4 smoke, as given by the chart of the New York Smoke Prevention Bureau, but ordinarily was not of a density equal to that of No. 3. An examination of the roofs of the buildings near the chimneys where the smokeless boilers were used disclosed no trace of soot or ashes even in the most sheltered places. The tops of the chimneys were not appreciably discolored.

Assuming that the average of this performance holds good throughout the heating season, the average saving in an ordinary large apartment house of, say 1,300,000 cubic feet volume amounts to about $1,100 per year; or, if the building costs 35 cents per cubic foot, it represents a saving of about one-fourth of one per cent. of its cost each year.



The first cost of this smokeless type of boiler is, in average sizes, about $15 per horsepower, erected and covered, as against $12.50 per horsepower for ordinary hard coal portable units. But according to my experience, more than three times this difference of cost would be saved each heating season.

The operation of this type of boiler requires some care, and it is important that an inexperienced fireman be properly instructed in its use; but the saving is well worth the trouble and there is nothing about it that the average fireman cannot readily understand. It is not necessary that the fire be given constant attention, for considerable fuel can be charged at one time without materially affecting the results. I have observed that the average periods of firing in the smokeless boilers referred to above is from one and a half to two hours, during the average heating weather, while with the hard coal boilers it was necessary to charge the fires approximately every half hour, but this, of course, varies with the size of firebox and grate.



I consider it most important in either type of boiler that both the heating surface and grate area be correctly proportioned to the load, for it is to misfit boilers that the waste of coal can nearly always be traced.

Greater Lighting Power Per Lamp.

WORKING on the theory that a carbon placed upright in an incandescent lamp does not radiate as much light upon a flat surface beneath it as the same lamp would if the filaments are stretched out in a flattened conical form parallel, as it were, with the desk or floor beneath it, the Laco-Philips Co., of 130 Hudson street, has introduced a projector lamp that is said to give four times as much effective light as the ordinary metal-filament lamps of quick rating. The base of this claim centers in the fact that the light rays are projected in a natural state upon the surface to be illuminated. The cut shows the form of the globe and also the position of the filaments inside.

High Efficiency Carbons.

SO much attention is being paid to light efficiency in this day that a new type of carbons introduced by Hugo Reisenger, of 11 Broadway, is holding attention from building managers. They produce what is said to be a steadier and more brilliant light. A peculiarity of one type of carbon made by this house is a patented metal vein that reduces resistance to a minimum, with the result that higher candle power is said to be obtained for the same amount of electricity consumed. It is claimed for them that they do not flicker. Another type of carbon manufactured by this house is said to possess the virtue of producing no dust and they give a steady and uniform light.

A New Type of Shower Bath.

LETTERS patent have just been issued to Charles S. C. Rock, of 204 West 140th street, for a new type of shower bath. As shown in the accompanying illustration, the shower consists of a relatively stationary pipe, having a horizontal portion above the bathtub. It has a nozzle in longitudinal alignment with the horizontal portion of the pipe and it has a moveable joint connecting the adjacent nuts of the pipe so that the spray is directed toward the interior of the tub.

A Threadless Conduit Fitting.

THIS is a device being introduced by the Adapti Manufacturing Co., formerly the Bonnell Manufacturing Co., of Winter and Leonard streets, Cleveland, Ohio. The virtue of this system of conduit boxing is that it requires no threading of ends, and the use of bushings and lock nuts becomes unnecessary. The pipe is inserted in a threadless lug which forms a part of an assembled box and the screw, shown in the illustration, is tightened. The head of the screw is of the filister type, and bears upon the conduit, with the result that a pull upon it tends to strengthen the screw and to bury the head deeper in the conduit. This makes a joint that is said to possess a better conductivity than is possible to obtain by the use of threaded couplings.

Fire-Detecting Wire Inquiries.

READERS interested in the description of the fire-detecting wire in the issue of December 27 may address inquiries to William H. Garrison, president of the Fire-Detecting Wire Company, Inc., 2006 Caton avenue, Brooklyn.

An Improved Vacuum Recorder.

A VACUUM recorder embracing new features is being introduced by the Uehling Instrument Co., of Passaic, N. J. This device has a particular use for recording actual vacuum conditions. The illustration shows the face of the recorder, but it is in the interior that the chief interest centers. As a matter of fact it is a system that the Uehling Company has perfected. The causes that make spring gauges liable to err, are said to be entirely removed in this type of recorder.

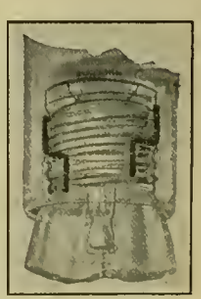
The mechanism of this instrument consists essentially of a steel U tube, one leg of which is of sufficient size to contain a float and is fastened to a case containing a clockwork, which rotates a recording dial in the usual way. The smaller leg, made of drawn steel tubing, extends above the top of the case to which it is fastened and connects with the source of vacuum to be recorded. The pen is actuated by a steel float resting on the mercury column in the large leg. The cross-sectional areas of the two legs are so chosen that the movement of the pen covers the chart when the vacuum has caused the mercury to rise to the maximum height in the steel tube.

A Novelty in Concrete Sockets.



ILLUSTRATED herewith is a novelty in concrete sockets that provides for constant holding efficiency. It is in the form of a socket embedded in concrete into which a nut can be inserted and set into a receptacle to take a bolt. The virtue of this device lies in the fact that should the threads of the nut become stripped a new nut can be inserted and the efficiency of the socket is maintained. Further advantage rests in the fact that no threaded parts need be placed until the concrete work is completed. The holding power is absolutely rigid and there can be no slipping or failure, as the shape of the socket resting in the concrete gives it an anchorage that makes pulling out well nigh impossible.

A New Lamp Lock.

THE Benjamin Electric Manufacturing Co., of 114 Liberty street, New York, is putting on the market a device which is said to prevent danger and loss from falling lamps. It seems that there is a heavy loss in factories and other types of buildings due to incandescent lamps working loose in their sockets from vibration, resulting in breakage. In a socket being introduced by this company there is a patented spring grip which holds the lamp tightly and eliminates at least one source of breakage and adds but little to the upkeep expense. The illustration shows the spring in place in incandescent lamp socket.

Bridge and Tunnel Over Hudson.

The New Jersey Inter-State Bridge & Tunnel Commission announced on Monday it had completed the draft of a bill to be presented to the present Legislature which authorizes the construction of either a bridge or a tunnel across the Hudson between New York and New Jersey and across the Delaware at Camden and Philadelphia. The commission states the problems presented are not engineering difficulties, but those of finances. The commission estimates the cost of a tunnel or two tubes between Jersey City and lower New York City would cost $11,000,000, and that a bridge from across about 57th street to the opposite New Jersey shore would cost approximately $42,000,000. The bill is not mandatory and the expense is upon those counties directly affected by the construction of a bridge or tunnel.

Bids were opened this week by the Board of Supervisors for the new County Court House to be erected at Eagle, Columbia, Steuben and Lodge streets, Albany. The two lowest bids received were from the William L. Crow Construction Company, 103 Park avenue, Manhattan, and William Dall, Marin Building, Cleveland, Ohio. The lowest bid for heating was from James Hunter, 207 Broadway, Albany, and for plumbing, L. D. Hosford, 1133 Broadway, Manhattan, and Thomas A. O'Malley, 105 Hudson avenue, Albany. In all probability announcement of the actual awards will be made early next week. The building will be four and six-stories in height, 112 by 225 feet in size, with facades of white marble or granite and limestone. Hoppin & Koen, 244 Fifth avenue, Manhattan, are the architects.

Daily Conferences of Contractors on Rush Work.

The Statler Hotel, Cleveland, which was recently completed on a rush order by James L. Stuart, contracting engineer, Pittsburgh, presented many interesting features of construction administration. One of the many practices which helped very much to expedite the work and "iron out" all difficulties was a daily meeting of all the sub-contractors on the work, together with architects' representatives and others interested in the building. At these daily meetings each trade was taken up separately with the principal representative of that particular trade and the representatives of all the other trades present. He was asked regarding the progress of his work and was told to state whether or not he was being retarded by any of the other trades. If it was found that he was being hampered he was made to state explicitly and in detail to what extent and how.

It was rather hard to get them continually to attend these daily meetings, as they were held in the evening after they were supposed to be through with their work. The engineer in charge of the work tried to make the meetings as pleasant and as short as possible and never permitted ill-feeling to persist among the several trades, arising from the discussions at the meetings. A typewritten report of each meeting was posted up on the general bulletin board so that each of the sub-contractors would have access to it the following day.—"Engineering Record."

Panama-Pacific Rules.

The new and revised rules and regulations relating to exhibits and space occupied by exhibitors, and regarding the installation and maintenance of exhibits at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco in 1915, have been issued and approved by the board of directors. There is one significant fact in regard to these rules and regulations which cannot be too strongly emphasized and that is:

Applications for space must be made in writing on forms furnished upon application to the Director of Exhibits, Captain Asher Carter Baker, Exposition Building, San Francisco.

Particulars and directions as to the methods of application for exhibit space will be found on the form supplied by the Director of Exhibits. It is planned that there shall be a uniformity of appearance throughout the exhibit section of the exposition and it is necessary to abide by the rules as formulated according to the general plan by the Board of Directors of the exposition.

Each exhibit space is to be covered with a platform 4¾ inches above the floor of the building. This platform may be covered with carpets, linoleum, parquetry flooring, etc., as may be approved by the Chief of the Department in which the exhibit is made. The main floor of each exhibit palace will be of 2-inch planking, and the aisle floors will be of dressed flooring laid directly on this planking. The Chief of any Department may authorize the entire omission of platforms in groups of exhibits, which, in his opinion, would be more appropriately installed without them.

Exhibitors will be permitted to construct booths or facades of their own design on their exhibit spaces, provided these do not obstruct the light of adjacent exhibits. The cornice line of such structures is fixed at a uniform height of 15 feet, but ornamental parts and special fixtures may be raised to a greater height, with the approval of the chief of the department. All columns or other portions standing within the exhibit spaces must be treated in decoration in harmony with the rest of the surrounding space. A series of construction levels has been decided upon in regard to platforms, railings, table tops, cornice lines and such prominent features of various exhibits. All exhibitors must abide by those levels as ruled by the Chief of the Department in which the exhibit is made.

All counters and tables will be of uniform height in all departments except in the Department of Horticulture, where they may be three feet in height for the display of fruits. The Department of Mines and Metallurgy will determine the size and type of cases and cabinets for the display of geological specimens and minerals.

Bronx Local Improvements.

The Local Board of Crotona at its meeting held January 20 adopted a resolution for repairing or relaying the sidewalk on the west side of Brook avenue, from East 158th street to Third avenue, excepting the portion over the beam tunnel of the Port Morris Branch of the New York & Harlem Railroad.

The Local Board of Morrisania, at its meeting held January 20, adopted a resolution for paving with sheet asphalt on a concrete foundation the roadway of Kelly street, from Intervale avenue to East 163d street, together with all work incidental thereto, at an estimated cost of $4,900. A resolution was also adopted for the paving with sheet asphalt on a concrete foundation of the roadway of Faile street, from the bridge over the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad to Garrison avenue, setting curb where necessary, at a total estimated cost of $1,100. This resolution had been laid over from the meeting held December 30, 1913.

A resolution was adopted for the rebuilding of the sewer and appurtenances on Third avenue, between East 138th and East 140th streets, at a total estimated cost of $13,100. This resolution was laid over at the meeting held December 30, 1913.

The Local Board of Van Courtlandt at its meeting held January 20, adopted a resolution for constructing receiving basins and appurtenances on the east side of Cedar avenue opposite Harlem River Terrace, and on the northwest corner of Cedar avenue and Harlem River Terrace, at a total estimated cost of $1,375. Also adopted a resolution for constructing receiving basins and appurtenances at the northwest, northeast and southwest corners of Davidson avenue and Tremont avenue; on the northeast corner of Grand and Tremont avenues; on the north side of Tremont avenue west of Grand avenue; and on the west side of Grand avenue north of Tremont avenue; and on the west side of Tremont avenue opposite Inwood avenue; and at the southwest corner of Inwood avenue and Tremont avenue, at a total estimated cost of $2,765.

Resolutions were laid over for the acquiring title to the lands necessary for Fieldston road, from Riverdale avenue to the southern limit of the property of the Northern Broadway Realty Associates; for the construction of the sewer and appurtenances in Fieldston road, between Riverdale avenue and Spuyten Duyvil parkway; for regulation, grading, setting curbstones, flagging the sidewalks, laying crosswalks, building approaches and erecting fences where necessary in Fieldston road, from Riverdale avenue to Spuyten Duyvil parkway; for the paving with bituminous concrete on a cement concrete foundation adjusting curb where necessary the roadway of Jerome avenue, from Kingsbridge road to Bainbridge avenue, and with sheet asphalt on a concrete foundation from Bainbridge avenue to the northerly line of the City of New York; and for the regulating, grading, setting curbstone, flagging the sidewalks, laying crosswalks, building approaches and erecting fences where necessary in Spuyten Duyvil parkway, from Fieldston road to Broadway, and the Post road, from Spuyten Duyvil parkway to West 246th street; for regulating, grading, setting curbstones, flagging the sidewalks, laying crosswalks, building approaches and erecting fences where necessary in Randall avenue, from the pier and bulkhead line to the Bronx River to White Plains road; and for the acquiring of title to Thwaites place, between Bronx Park East and White Plains road.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

JANUARY CLOSED WITH PROMISE OF BETTER BUSINESS CONDITIONS FAIRLY WELL FULFILLED.

Big Increase in Cement Production — Brick Demand Better.

THE first month of the new year opened strong on sentiment and closed firm on building material orders. Prices have shown practically no fluctuation. On the other hand building material producers have adopted the policy of encouraging new business instead of placing obstacles in its way, except in such cases where an advance in price was positively warranted by an increase in demand.

There is a feeling that certain lines will advance before long. Structural steel is one of these. Portland cement may prove to be another. Certain lines of hardwoods are almost sure to advance, noticeably maple and oak flooring. The price of common brick will, at least, stay where it is, unless an unforeseen demand develops. Wire reinforcement is still without formal quotation and the demand is such as to warrant expectations of a continuation of this policy. Vermont roofing slate was the best example of the tendency on the part of manufacturers to meet prospective business half way. The talked-of advance was definitely postponed because of a feeling that an improvement in conditions was at hand.

January undoubtedly closed stronger from the financial viewpoint than it would have had not the New York State Highway loan been such a great success. This seemed to have been the last retarding factor tending to disprove the change for the better in sentiment. It is significant that immediately following the announcement of the oversubscription of these bonds the overflow went into mortgages. The market for these securities eventually will result in the title companies being open for bonds and permanent loans, which will have, of course, a good effect upon real estate.

Another indication of a better building movement in the near future is that the demand for renting space in modern commercial and manufacturing loft buildings has improved. Right here may be marked the beginning of another extensive loft building movement in the lower central part of Manhattan. The operation of the new factory and fire prevention laws may be working a hardship on tenants, but it is destined to revive the drooping construction movement in Manhattan. Building managers having modern industrial lofts to rent are noting a better demand, while agents having in hand obsolete structures in the former wholesale districts downtown are complaining that the enforcement of the new factory law is compelling them either to cut down their operating force or to move to large quarters. Owners, therefore, will be compelled to either alter or put up entirely new light manufacturing buildings. In either case any extensive readjustment in factory housing will help stimulate the actual movement of building materials.

It is this butterfly inquiry that the building material men of the metropolitan district are now feeling. Whether it will develop into actual orders depends upon the activity of the spring leasing market which has been looked forward to for more than a year as a probable turning point in a long delayed building movement.

92,400,000 BARRELS OF CEMENT.

U. S. Geological Survey Shows 12 Per Cent. Gain Over Previous Year.

CEMENT production for 1913, according to estimates of the U. S. Geological Survey, represents a total of 92,406,000 barrels or a gain of 12 per cent. over that produced in 1912, when the total quantity was 82,438,096 barrels. The Record and Guide's estimate in November, as published in the issue of November 15th, was 85,000,000 at a value of $76,500,000. Our estimate did not include the outputs of new plants started during the year. The Geological Survey's advance report does not give the estimated value of production in 1913.

	1913.	1912.	Changes.
Stocks	11,375,000	7,811,329	Inc. 45.6%

The Lehigh district contributed 27,079,000 barrels, nearly one-third of the total production, an increase of 9.4% over 1912. Illinois and northwest Indiana produced 12,406,000 barrels, an increase of 16.4%. The output of the Pacific coast states amounted to 8,916,000 barrels, an increase of 21.5%. New York State contributed 5,208,000 barrels, an increase of 15.9%.

The average selling price of Portland cement in 1913 was appreciably higher than in 1912. Increases of from 10 to 25 cents per barrel are reported from several plants in the central and eastern states, but there were slight decreases reported from a few plants in the Rocky Mountain district. Two plants, both in Washington, were added to the list of producers during 1913.

BRICK MEN FAVOR RATES.

Proposed Advance in Freight Tariff Acceptable to Fneade Men.

ONE of the most vigorous protests laid before the Interstate Commerce Commission in its hearings to determine whether the proposed 5 per cent. advance in freight rates by Eastern railroads was warranted, featured one of the meetings at Washington this week.

The contention of the protesting front brick manufacturers was centered in the fact that if an increase in rates is permitted, it would have an immediate effect upon prices in the New York and other markets. It was pointed out that a large part of the front brick used in New York City depends upon railroads for transportation and that it was necessary for Pennsylvania and other plants to compete with front brick manufacturing establishments nearer New York where tidewater shipments were possible. For that reason it was claimed that the granting of the 5 per cent. increase in freight rates would work a hardship upon old established firms in Pennsylvania, which had for years been supplying part of the New York market with front brick.

J. F. Barbour, representing the National Paving Brick Manufacturers' Association, took up the cudgels for the paving brick interests.

Herbert D. Lounsbury, of the distributing house of Fredenburg, Lounsbury & Houghtaling (Inc.), asked to express his views on the subject, said:

"I am not at all opposed to the railroads being permitted to increase their freight rates 5 per cent. I believe they need the extra money and that if it is granted them it will conduce largely in bringing about a return of nation-wide prosperity. Just as soon as you take prosperity from the railroads you feel it in all lines of business. The prosperity of the railroad and the prosperity of the nation in this day is linked together inseparably. Legislation has laid heavy hands upon the railroads in recent years and without this increase there can be no recovery for them.

"Even those manufacturers who have tidewater facilities in New York Harbor would not have a very great advantage, if any, over the Pennsylvania manufacturers, and since the freight is paid at the receiving end I cannot understand why there should be any opposition at all from the front brick manufacturers making brick for this market."

"How about the advance in prices that will have to come out of the consumer, to take care of this increase?" Mr. Lounsbury was asked.

"Any increase in the price of front brick to take care of a 5 per cent. freight increase would be so small that the consumer would have a hard time to find it. Charged up against the cost of the entire building it would not even be discernable, so why worry."

LIME MANUFACTURERS TO MEET.

Annual Convention at Astor House Wednesday and Thursday.

ONE of the important matters that will come up before the annual meeting of the New York Lime Manufacturers' Association at the Hotel Astor next Wednesday and Friday will be the report of the Standardization Committee.

The prominence given to this subject of standardization in the convention reflects the fact that the entire key-note of this meeting will be centred along the line of marketing and selling, reference being particularly made to those conditions of readjustment in business, especially the credits which have occupied the attention of most every line of business. Following Mr. Spackman's report there will be an extended discussion. Architects and others interested in the quality of lime will also find this meeting a profitable one.

Next will come a report from the United States Government's lime expert and investigator, W. E. Emley, who will make a report of the work during the year. Mr. Emley comes from the Government Bureau of Standardization and is investigating and compiling information on the subject of lime.

"Raising the Market for Lime" will be the text of a paper by Karl Laugenback, a German-American commercial scientist, in which he will discuss new uses for lime.

Various technical papers of interest to the lime industry will be taken up by leading authorities. Toward the end of the meeting Merrill B. Sands will discuss "How Much Lime Do We Want to Sell and at What Price?" He will outline a system by which an increase in sales may be had. Another paper will be read by C. J. Curtin on holding up prices in which he will tell how he is going to get around the Sherman and Seven Sisters laws. Henry M. Camp will discuss the subject of the open price policy and Charles Warner will talk about sales promotion policy in the lime industry.

The morning sessions will be held from 9.30 A. M. until 1 P. M. and a buffet luncheon will be served and the afternoon session will begin at 2 P. M. and continue until 7 o'clock. On February 5th the meeting hours will be the same. The officers consist of Wm. E. Carson, president, Riverton, Va.; J. King McLanahan, Jr., 1st vice-President, Hollidaysburg, Pa.; L. M. Palmer, Jr., 2d vice-president, New York City; Geo. J. Nicholson, 3d vice-president, Manistique, Mich.; Fred K. Irvine, secretary, Chicago, Ill.; and C. W. S. Cobb, treasurer, St. Louis, Mo. The executive committee consists of William E. Carson, ex-officio, Riverton, Va.; Charles Warner, Wilmington, Del.; Lawrence Hitchcock, Cleveland, O.; and William Hunkins, St. Louis, Mo.

LARGER BRICK INQUIRY.

Assurances of Ample Supply Bring Architects Back to Burned Clay.

ON the floor of the Building Material Exchange this week a better inquiry was noted for common brick from architects and others who had been under the impression that there was likely to be a shortage of brick in this market. Fearing abnormally high prices many instances were reported where architects had specified other materials, which accounts, in part, at least, for the sluggish market that has prevailed in this department while other commodities were feeling the reflection of improved conditions in the money and building markets.

Further information from up the Hudson indicates that not only is there ample brick for this market's needs well into the late spring, but the Raritan interests also are in a good position to help relieve any demand for brick even though a brisk building movement should start. For that reason common brick consumers may rest assured that prices will not advance much over the range now quoted for some time to come, if bona fide supply and demand are still to be factors in brick price quotations.

REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS GUIDE.

THE REAL ESTATE BOARD'S NEW ACTIVITIES

A Year of Notable Achievement to Be Celebrated Tonight — Enlarged Membership and Extension of Influence Under President McGuire.

THE eighteenth annual dinner of the Real Estate Board of New York, which is to be held this evening at the Waldorf-Astoria, finds the board a much stronger organization than it was a year ago. During the intervening period it has acquired no fewer than 500 associate members, including a large proportion of the biggest owners of real estate in the city. Furthermore, its active membership, which is limited to 200, has been filled up and a waiting list established.

The rapid progress made during the year is partly the result of a new interpretation of its functions adopted by the board and reflected in a change of name which went into effect in January of last year, when the old title of the Real Estate Board of Brokers was abandoned in favor of the Real Estate Board of New York.

Under its original plan of organization the board was a strictly professional body and devoted itself to matters of special interest to the brokerage profession. Under the new plan it takes a broader view of its duties and undertakes to deal with matters of interest to real estate owners as well. It has consequently taken up the work of following legislation at Albany, of scrutinizing appropriations by the Board of Estimate, of watching ordinances proposed in the Board of Aldermen, and in general safeguarding the interests of real estate owners in matters of State and municipal legislation and administration.

After Dinner Program.

A variety of committees under energetic leadership have been appointed and important achievements have been obtained. The result is that the board has rallied to itself support from all quarters and the new enthusiasm and friendships which it has created will be notably apparent at tonight's numerous gathering. The full complement of tickets for the dinner had been sold out by the middle of the week, and even the boxes on the mezzanine floor overlooking the dining-room fill be filled to overflowing. Nearly a thousand guests will listen to addresses by Governor Martin H. Glynn, Mayor John Purroy Mitchel, Professor E. R. A. Seligmann, Arthur Brisbane and Frederick T. Murphy. Laurence M. D. McGuire, president of the board, will act as toastmaster.

Origin of the Board.

The board was established in February, 1896, as an offshoot of the old Real Estate Exchange, which had quarters in the building since displaced by the Chamber of Commerce. It was incorporated in 1908. As already noted, the change of name to the Real Estate Board of New York, which took place in January, 1913, was followed by an important extension of activities. A new infusion of energy in carrying out these activities and in extending the membership took place upon the election in October, last year, of Laurence M. D. McGuire as president, and William J. Van Pelt as vice-president.

Mr. McGuire, according to his friends, must be given a great deal of credit for the good showing that the board is able to make at its eighteenth annual dinner. He has applied himself with vigor to the building up of the association, and his presidency has also fallen in a period when the state of public feeling was such as to enable his work to count for most.

New Work Taken Up.

The general motive of the work recently taken up by the board is brought out in the following interview with Mr. McGuire:

"New laws are suddenly imposed on owners, who are not given sufficient notice to make preparations and who consequently may be forced to disregard existing leases and contracts. Nor are they granted sufficient time in which to readjust renting conditions, to make changes in occupancy of buildings; they are even being deprived of the option of closing up buildings in which it is financially impracticable to comply with the new laws.

"These have been drafted and are being enforced without regard to the cost of compliance on the part of the building owner. To make the changes demanded will in many cases cost more than the value of the structure, the amount of the owner's equity or the rental income from the building for a period of years.

"The laws of the last few years represent the ultimate climax in the over-regulation and disjointed regulation of buildings; they contain obvious errors, the language is vague and uncertain, the requirements are condemned as impractical by engineering experts, there is lack of co-ordination between departments. Even the Labor Department officials are in doubt as to the law's meaning, while as experienced men, they deplore the necessity of enforcing hard and fast rules which make no allowance for the merits of individual cases. The defects are so numerous that all classes of people are justified in challenging the laws and demanding a revision before irreparable loss and damage is caused.

"These laws have been demanded by persons who, though well meaning, lack the experience and ability to construct a reasonable and efficient scheme of improvement. It is conceded that many factory buildings need increased safeguards, but such safeguards should not be enforced until they are properly designed and until there is some assurance that, if installed, they will really provide safety and will be permanently accepted by the authorities.

"It is also conceded that sanitary improvements are desirable, but they should be deferred until safety against fire and accident has been accomplished. There is a limit to the amount of money that can be extracted from a building owner and it is often a financial impossibility to meet the current extraordinary demands for safety and sanitation.

Defective Laws.

"The present enforcement of these laws brings the owners of factory buildings face to face with the necessity of closing up such buildings or spending more money than the structures are worth, or the income they will produce for a term of years. These laws take no account of the operation of existing leases, they ignore the questions of the amount of rent paid, the present state of the building as a rentable proposition or the future of the building in the light of changing business conditions.

"It is an absolute injustice that people who must pay for the improvements are not permitted to say anything about the spending of the money: they have hardly been given time to study the Labor Law or understand its requirements, let alone plan for the financial burdens. In enforcing such laws, both the State and the city are requiring private owners to do what is a financial impossibility in the case of public buildings. The Legislature would absolutely refuse to appropriate sufficient money to make the State buildings as safe relatively as factory buildings are required to be made; neither would the Board of Estimate appropriate sufficient money to make city buildings as safe as the Bureau of Fire Prevention is requiring private buildings to be made.

Reforms Are Expensive.

"The simple fact is that there is not enough money available, either for public or private owners, to carry out such a drastic and wholesale scheme of improvement as the new Labor law demand. It is not enough that these laws demand extensive and confiscatory expenditures for safety purposes, but they require simultaneously even larger expenditures and more haphazard improvements for sanitation purposes. Many owners of buildings simply have not the necessary money to obey these laws and even those owners who have the available means object to spending money on buildings that are vacant or being vacated and whose future from a rental standpoint no man can guess.

"The time has come when the owners of buildings and department officials must come to some understanding which will result in a definite plan for complying with laws. Under the present multiplicity of jurisdiction, the serving of orders is a continuous performance. With the frequent changes in jurisdiction, compliance today is non-compliance tomorrow; with the changes of administration, there comes a new set of officials whose ideas and interpretations vary from their predecessors. The fluctuation in laws and ordinances is bad enough, but what is intolerable is the unstable character of rules and regulations adopted under discretionary powers.

"What solution of this problem of department orders is there? None at all, unless the people who are being deprived of property will unite and support concerted action. What is needed is one central agency, to which all department orders can be referred and verified by competent experts. If this is done, uniform methods of handling such orders can be instituted, a definite plan of cooperation with the city and State Departments can be evolved, facts can be collected for the repeal or revision of unjust laws, and discretionary rules and regulations can be scrutinized and verified before being put into force.

Among the evils which beset real estate in New York, there is none which is bringing the resources of building owners to the breaking point as surely and as quickly as the new Labor Law and the Bureau of Fire Prevention requirements. Unless an intelligent and reasonable enforcement of these laws can be evolved, it will mean the adandonment of many buildings, enforced spending of money for foolish and useless demands and a disturbance of rental conditions that will injure merchants, manufacturers and their employees just as much as the owners of buildings."

The laws and legislative committee of the Real Estate Board has taken up this matter and in order to obtain an expert opinion of the practical effect of the Labor Law on buildings has asked Mr. Peter Joseph McKeon to prepare a statement. Mr. McKeon's report is a particularly valuable contribution, because it represents the opinions of a man who has worked on this problem with insurance organizations, public departments and public associations and, therefore, understands the view points of differing and conflicting interests.

THE CONFISCATORY FIRE-PREVENTION LAWS

Nature of the Legislation and Its Effect on Real Property, the Subject of a Report to the Real Estate Board By a Specially Retained Consulting Engineer.

THE Real Estate Board of New York recognizes the fact that one of the most important problems confronting real estate interests relates to the factory laws that became operative in October and to the reasonable or unreasonable enforcement thereof. The overlapping of authority and the duplication of orders as between local and State departments, together with the new legislation always being proposed, are becoming irksome to real estate owners, and the burden is falling heavily on many shoulders.

Hundreds of notices received by owners are only the beginning of the trouble that is coming. The Industrial Board has not yet furnished its specifications as to fire-resisting material, and has yet to make rulings on many important matters. The Inspection Bureau of the Factory Department in New York City is not yet equipped to make a thorough canvass from building to building; neither is it suitably informed regarding certain points of the law recently enacted, parts of which are ambiguous, and some of which it is physically impossible to enforce.

To the credit of the Factory Department it may be said that in the enforcement of the law it is using every reasonable means to protect the landlords as well as the tenants. No department in New York City is managed along more efficient and painstaking lines, and we are creditably informed that the Factory Department is doing its utmost to administer its difficult duties so that the expense of owners will be as slight as possible. The law, however, must be enforced, and if the law is wrong it is up to the real estate interests to correct it.

THE overlapping of inspectorial duties on the part of city and State departments, particularly the Fire-Prevention Bureau, the Labor Department and the Bureaus of Buildings, has resulted in the frequent issuing of mutually contradictory orders to owners of certain classes of buildings. Each department is working under a law enacted with little or no regard to the provisions of other laws. Its orders must be obeyed under penalty, but the owner, called upon by one department to make a costly structural alteration, may presently be ordered by another department to undo or to modify the work.

As a first step towards remedying the confusion, the Real Estate Board of New York has commissioned Peter Joseph McKeon, consulting expert in fire-prevention, to make a comparative study of the legal requirements imposed by existing statutes, particularly the Labor Law and the law creating the Fire-Prevention Bureau, and to suggest remedies for the defects which he might find. The present article is a summary of Mr. McKeon's report to the Real Estate Board, and is valuable because of the author's comprehensive experience with the New York Fire Department, the Fire Insurance Exchange, the Committee of Safety and other related bodies.

Will Appeal for Relief.

The Real Estate Board of New York under the active direction of Laurence M. D. McGuire, its president, intends to apply both to the Industrial Board and the propert authorities for relief from the evils that have crept into this legislation and portend grave disaster for many real estate owners.

It has been pointed out time and again that, in trying to prepare fire-prevention laws and factory laws so as to make safe and comfortable the occupants of factory buildings, the legislation has been so drafted as to include buildings that are comparatively safe. We now find on our statute books that the definition of a factory "shall be construed to include any mill, workshop or other manufacturing or business establishment, and all buildings, sheds, structures or other places used for or in connection therewith where one or more persons are employed at labor."

By this sweeping phraseology the small and absolutely safe four, five and six-story buildings in New York City are now classed as "factory buildings," just exactly the same as the twelve, sixteen or twenty-story buildings filled with employes, or the six, eight and ten-story old-type buildings used as sweatshops, with hundreds of employes on a floor.

Drastic Legislation.

There is drastic legislation regarding all existing and new factory buildings. This legislation includes in part fireproof stairway enclosures, or stairs enclosed in fire-resisting material; stringent fire-escape regulations, including the fireproofing of frames, sash and doors leading to fire-escapes; other certain rigid conditions relating to various exits, plumbing, ventilation and many other points affecting the use and occupancy of factory buildings.

Owners are now confronted with the fact that absolutely safe four, five and six-story buildings with only a few persons employed—sometimes not over ten or a dozen above the ground floor—are included with the sweatshop or the dangerous buildings, so far as regulation is concerned. President McGuire of the Real Estate Board has raised a protest against this paternalistic wave of legislation that has been sweeping over the city, fostered in many instances by the "uplift socialistic element," whose aims, apparently, have been to club real estate interests at every turn.

With this in view the Real Estate Board has had an analysis made of the recently enacted legislation by Peter J. McKeon, consulting engineer on fire-prevention matters. This report has been turned over to the Industrial and Building Codes Committee of the Real Estate Board consisting of Charles F. Noyes, chairman; Alwyn Ball, Jr., Austin L. Babcock, William P. Bannister, Edward B. Bruch, Lewis Coon, Peter Doelger, James Elgar, Maurice J. Engel, E. R. Graham, Louis J. Horowitz, Irving I. Kempner, Theophile Kick, Jr., Alfred R. Kirkus, James T. Knight, A. L. Libman, Frank Lord, C. W. Luyster, Jr., Thomas Morch, Nathan Hirsch, Joseph T. Mulligan, George H. McCarthy, Walter M. Pegram, John B. Perry, Aaron Rabinowitz, Mark Rafalsky, John Robertson, Anthony Schwoerer, Frank E. Smith, Elbridge Gerry Snow, Frank D. Veiller, G. M. Wynkoop.

An epitome of the report, prepared by its author, Mr. McKeon, follows:

Report of the Consulting Engineer.

"As the new Labor Laws have been in force since October 16, 1913, we are able to take the results of four months' enforcement as a practical test and an indication of how buildings are actually affected. This test confirms the opinion originally rendered that the new standards of safety and sanitation established by the Factory Investigating Commission and the specific changes in buildings demanded by the laws confront the majority of owners with an embarrassing dilemma; namely, to escape the law by vacating the building or restricting the occupancy to mercantile business; or, to spend for improvements more money than the building is worth as a present or future investment.

"There are no buildings known so far that have escaped scot-free; while there are also few which can be made to comply at moderate expenditures. For example, in the case of many small four or five story buildings, the cost of compliance approximates $5000, while some mandatory improvements, such as the fireproof passage from foot of rear fire-escapes actually reduce the income by using the most valuable renting space in a building, the first floor.

"The extent of these unavoidable changes has not been realized as yet by owners or managers in general and it is a question if the people responsible for these laws understood what financial burdens they were inflicting on buildings, which are virtually bankrupt structures. To indicate how much is required to satisfy the law, a list of the structural changes need only be given; namely: enclosures for elevators and hoistways, self-closing gates or doors, protection of the car and machinery; enclosure of open stairs, making all enclosures fire resisting and extension of stairs to roof; new fire-escapes or extensive changes in existing fire-escapes, wire-glass windows for such fire-escapes, stairways, ladders to roof and to sidewalk, exits to street from bottom of fire-escapes, doors in place of windows as entrances; plumbing and water supply for wash-rooms, windows to outer air for dressing-rooms; extensive changes and additions to water closets, such as separate closets for males and females, partitions or vestibules, new plumbing and exposed plumbing and ventilation by windows to outer air. In addition to these structural alterations, there is new equipment demanded by the Bureau of Fire Prevention under its authority in the form of fire drill alarms and automatic sprinklers.

Structural Changes Required.

"Of the preceding changes, it is probable that the cost of the sanitary items will equal or exceed the cost of the safety items, and on the principle of 'safety first', precedence should be given to the safety requirements, particularly as the cost of both classes of improvements would be more than could possibly be extracted from the building.

"The financial resources, or lack of resources, are a most serious phase of such a problem and cannot be overlooked by officials. Many owners simply have not the money available to make the required changes, while owners who are able to do so, hesitate to authorize expenditures for buildings that do not justify an investment, either as present rentable properties or as future rentable properties. These considerations must be borne in mind by an engineer who is making recommendations for safeguarding a building, and they should also convince administrative and executive officials of the practical difficulties of complying with drastic requirements.

A Clearing House for Violations.

"Any permanent relief for the owners of buildings against such laws can be obtained only by an understanding between the owners of buildings speaking through a representative organization, such as the Real Estate Board, and the department officials, whose business it is to interpret and enforce laws, ordinances and department regulations. It is necessary that a Central Agency be established which will act as a clearing-house for department orders and thereby secure uniform treatment of similar orders; such an agency should perform research work and thereby collect data and statistics which will secure the repeal or revision of unjust or wrongful laws; it should co-operate with department officials and establish permanent methods of compliance, so that owners can be protected against repeated demands for compliance made suddenly and on discretionary grounds. Such an agency would be welcomed by department officials because it would assist them in performing their routine work and also simplify many administrative problems.

The Commissioner's Discretion.

"Temporary relief for the owners of buildings from the exactions of the Labor Laws can be obtained at the present time only from the Commissioner of Labor with the sanction of the Governor. Where the Commissioner is bound by express provisions of the law, he can give no relief, but as the administrative head of the department, he is allowed the exercise of discretionary powers under which he can establish a reasonable and efficient policy of enforcement, adopt a program and institute methods of issuing orders. The immediate relief that should be given the owners should comprise changes in the system of making inspections, the preparation of orders and the issuance of orders.

"The officials whose duty it is to prepare these orders have been considerably handicapped by the legislative controversy over the appointment of the Commissioner and the resulting delay before the present Commissioner took charge. The department, moreover, was deprived of an appropriation to be used for organization work, so that the enforcement of the law had to proceed without proper study and planning. The laws are drafted only to be semi-specific, and many provisions are left for interpretation by the Industrial Board, which was also delayed in its work until the appointment of a Commissioner, so that an understanding of many provisions must wait upon action by the Industrial Board.

Time Allowance Too Short.

"It is the conditions just stated which are responsible for criticisms made of the present method of issuing orders. In the opinion of experts who are familiar with the work, the orders are peremptory and do not allow sufficient time for compliance, as the periods named, ten or twenty days, are hardly more than time enough for the owner to make preliminary investigations. The orders do not always distinguish between provisions which should be obeyed by the tenant rather than the owner, and they do not cover all the provisions for which the building is liable. A further criticism is that to comply with the orders, there must be used structural materials, methods of construction or appliances, for which definite specifications are necessary; also, that the orders aim at enforcing provisions of the law for which the Industrial Board has not yet established standards or published rules and regulations.

Incomplete Orders.

"To remove these criticisms and to co-operate with owners of buildings, it is proposed that the Commissioner establish a method of issuing orders which will grant more time for compliance, serve on owners only orders for which they are liable, and that orders when issued shall be complete and inform owners of all the changes which they will be required to make. It is also proposed that where specifications can be furnished to owners, architects, engineers and contractors; and similarly, where the Industrial Board is to adopt rules and regulations governing certain divisions of the law, orders shall not be issued until such rules and regulations are available.

"In the form of a policy of enforcement, it is proposed that the Commissioner under his discretionary power as an administrative officer defer enforcing provisions of the law which have been challenged and are yet to be interpreted, so that the responsibility for compliance is open to a reasonable difference of opinion. In the case of the older type of factory buildings of small height and area, the owners of which are bound to suffer severely in any case, because the value and rental income of these buildings are decidedly uncertain at best, and the cost of even moderate compliance would be excessive, it is proposed that some effort be made to ease the financial burdens. This can undoubtedly be done without violating provisions of the law, or the intent and purpose of the law and without inflicting injury upon the public. For such buildings, the least that can be done is to defer the enforcement of sanitary provisions for a definite period of time. This would be simply following a familiar and frequent precedent whereby a period of grace is granted before new laws or new regulations take effect.

Appeals.

"It is also proposed that the Commissioner establish a convenient method of making the appeals which are permitted under the law, such as the offering of outside fire-escapes as a required exit and a modification of the Required Exit provisions in low buildings. Few owners are aware of this privilege, and it seems reasonable that the department should inform them of it, as is done by the Fire Department, which notifies the person receiving an order that he is entitled to a board of survey.

"Whatever temporary relief can be granted by the Commissioner will only ease the burdens of owners for the time being. It will remain for the Industrial Board to adopt efficient yet economical standards, and the Legislature will eventually have to be asked to correct palpable errors in the law and requirements in excess of what is supported by the facts and experience of experts who have been dealing with this problem along engineering lines."

Questions Before the Industrial Board.

The so-called Occupancy Law, by which term Section 79-e of the general labor law is designated, went into effect February 1. It limits the number of persons to be employed on any one factory floor in accordance with the width of the stairways. The enforcement of the law is in the hands of the Commissioner of Labor, and so far the Industrial Board has formulated no regulations appertaining thereto.

The next meeting of the board will be held February 13. At that time the committee on fire hazards will report on a question relating to fire-escapes, whether one of the old-fashioned type shall be considered a lawful means of exit under the provision requiring two means of exit. (Exterior screened stairways are not in the classification.) A report will also be received in answer to the question: What are fire-resisting materials? A new law requires that stairways shall be enclosed with walls of "fire-resisting materials," from basement to roof, and property owners are anxious to learn what will be acceptable for the purpose. At the same meeting regulations for the installation of fire signal systems will also be the subject of a committee report.

Record Prices in London and New York.

The record price for London property was paid by the corporation of the City of London for the site of some old buildings at the corner of Threadneedle street and Old Broad street some time ago. The corporation paid at the rate of over £3,000,000 an acre, or about £75 a square foot. Sixty pounds ($290.40) a square foot was once given for a small property in Fleet street, according to the London Land Values. The area of the Bedford estate, just purchased by Mr. Mallaby-Deeley, is nineteen acres, covered with valuable property, and the Daily Mail estimates on the basis of some recent purchases in the vicinity for prices publicly recorded that the purchase price in this case must have been about £9,000,000. The mystery as to where the buyer obtained the money has not been dispelled.

The totals are enormous and cannot be matched from the New York City records. But some sales have been made here at a higher rate per square foot than the highest reported from London. The site of the Union Dime Savings Bank Building on Greeley Square, was sold to an English syndicate at a valuation which works out at the rate of $375 per square foot.

The small lot at the corner of Broadway and Wall street sold at the rate of a trifle under $600 a square foot. A diminutive parcel of only 160 square feet, at the southwest corner of William and South William streets, facing the Cotton Exchange, and now forming part of the site of a banking-house, sold at the rate of $625 a square foot in 1905.

The two downtown sales noted did not, of course, establish the market price for neighboring land. It is interesting to note that as long ago as 1872 Anthony J. Drexel paid at the rate of $348.67 for 717 square feet at the southeast corner of Wall and Broad, where J. P. Morgan & Co. are now having a new banking house erected. And in the year 1882 M. Wilkes paid at the rate of $330.70 per square foot for the opposite southwest corner.

RADICAL LEGISLATIVE MEASURES

Would Make All Tenements Over Four Stories Fireproof—Priority For Mechanics' Liens Over Certain Mortgages.

THE attention of the Legislature this week was given over largely to discussing the legal status of the Workmen's Compensation Act and matters relating to canal and highway graft. The opinion that the act is not valid seems to be shared by many of the members of both houses, on the ground that Gov. Glynn signed the bill before the Constitutional amendment enabling the Legislature to pass such a measure had become effective. Gov. Glynn says his first signature dated Dec. 16, 1913, is fortified by a second signature dated Jan. 8, 1914. This second approval was recorded after the Constitutional amendment became law, and before the thirty days had expired during which the Governor is authorized to sign bills after an adjournment of the Legislature. In any event, the Governor holds to the opinion that the Workmen's Compensation Law is valid and has announced his intention of making appointments under it.

Among the new bills introduced into the Legislature during the week the following are of interest to the real estate and building professions.

Senate.

Int. No. 290. Herrick.—Amending the Greater New York Charter (Section 249) by directing the Board of Aldermen, for the year 1915, in fixing the rate of taxation on real estate, exclusive of special franchises, so to apportion the rate that the rate on the difference between the value of such real estate with its improvements, and the value of such real estate wholly unimproved, shall be 90 per cent. of the rate on the value of the real estate wholly unimproved. The rate is to be further reduced 10 per cent. in each subsequent year, until such time as the rate on the difference between the value of such real estate with its improvements, and the value of the real estate wholly unimproved. shall equal 50 per cent. of the rate on the value of the real estate wholly unimproved. The act is not to take effect until the proposed method of taxation has been submitted to the electors at the next general election and has been approved by them. To Cities Committee.

Assembly.

Int. No. 236. Green.—Amending the Greater New York Charter (section 1019a) by providing that certain local improvement assessments are to be payable in twenty annual installments instead of ten as at present. Same as Senate bill introduced, (S. Int. 191, by Duhamel).

Int. No. 237. Green.—Appropriating $10,000 for surveys and estimates of expense of a proposed canal between Gravesend Bay and Sheepshead Bay along Coney Island creek. Same as Senate bill introduced this session.

Int. No. 238. Jones, S. A.—Amending the Lien Law (sections 232 and 235) by providing that chattel mortgages, except mortgages on canal craft, must be filed in the county or borough where the mortgagee resides, instead of in the city or town where he resides as at present. In the Bronx they are to be filed with the register. The bill also provides that such mortgages shall be valid for two years without refiling. At present they must be re-filed annually.

Int. No. 225. Eadie. Providing for indexing and re-indexing the records of conveyances, mortgages and other instruments relating to lots in Queens county. The county clerk is to prepare a map showing all streets, roads and water-fronts of the county and all blocks or parcels of land bounded by such streets, roads or water-fronts. The Board of Estimate of New York City may direct that not exceeding 10,000 copies of the map be printed for sale at a price to be fixed by the board.

Int. No. 166. Horton. Repealing the Laws of 1913 (Chapter 579) in relation to the licensing of small loan brokers. It inserts a new section in the Banking Law (312-a) regulating the loaning of money by corporations in amounts of $200 or under. A married woman borrowing money must present the written consent of her husband.

Tenement Law Amendments.

Int. No. 243. Scheidemann.—Amending the Tenement House Law (sections 14, 16, 21, 22-a, 24 and 56) by requiring all tenement houses over four stories in height, instead of six stories, to be of fireproof construction. The bill makes the provisions of Section 16, in regard to the erection of fire escapes, applicable to four-story tenements. Access to fire escapes, when placed on the rear or outside of a building, is to be directly connected at the bottom with a fireproof passage, not less than three feet wide and seven feet high, level with the sidewalk in front of the building. There are other provisions requiring tenement houses exceeding four stories in height to be provided with tower fire escapes; striking out the provision permitting winding stairs in tenements provided with power passenger elevators; that tower fire-escapes or stairways may be shut off with solid reinforced concrete walls, as well as by brick walls, but not by partitions of terra cotta blocks; that tower fire-escapes or stairways may be designated for use as service stairways, etc.

Int. No. 260. Howard.—Amending the Lien Law (section 236) by providing that chattel mortgages are to be valid against creditors and subsequent purchasers of mortgages in good faith as long as the debts secured by the mortgages are enforceable.

Int. No. 286. Amending the Greater New York Charter (section 1341-a) by permitting the tenement house department to order the vacation of tenement houses defectively lighted or with insufficient fire-escapes.

Lien Law Amendments.

Int. No. 364. Karutz.—Amending the Lien Law (subdivision 7 of Section 9; and sections 13 and 59) by providing that in an action brought to enforce a mechanic's lien the record owner of the premises affected must be made a party defendant. Liens for materials and labor furnished in the improvement of real property are to have priority over purchase money mortgages made under a contract providing that such mortgages shall be subordinated to building and loan mortgages. The bill also provides that when a mechanic's lien on real property is vacated and cancelled by an order of the court as provided in section 59, the sureties on any bond for the discharge of such liens may be released and any deport of money pursuant to law to discharge such liens may be directed to be returned to the depositor.

Int. No. 365. Karutz.—Inserting in the Penal Law a new section (1311) making it larceny for a person who receives a payment under a building loan mortgage and applies the money for any purpose except toward the payment of existing liens or encumbrances against the property on which the mortgage is made, or toward the payment for labor and materials. It also makes it larceny to fail to pay from such money a judgment for labor or materials furnished for improvements, within two days after the entry of the judgment.

Int. No. 392. Kiernan.—Inserting in the Railroad Law a new section (109) requiring the immediate construction of a railroad station on the Third Avenue Elevated Railroad at 3d avenue and 94th street, in New York City. The bill provides that all trains must stop at the station when completed. The penalty for each violation is $100 and the penalties are cumulative.

Int. No. 409. Kiernan.—Amending the Greater New York Charter (Section 837) by designating as one of the piers which the commissioner of docks shall set apart for recreation purposes, and for the convenience of dealers in country produce, the pier on the East River and at the foot of East 96th street.

Int. No. 413. Schaap.—Amending the Greater New York Charter (Section 1038) by providing that the costs which the plaintiff is entitled to recover in tax lien foreclosure actions are not to exceed 10 per cent. of the amount of the tax lien.

Law Affecting Titles.

Int. No. 303. Van Name.—Inserting in the Civil Code three new sections (375-a, 375-b and 375-c) relative to the statute of limitations affecting real property. It provides that title to real property cannot be maintained by a person in an action or special proceeding where he has not been, or his predecessors in title have not been, in actual possession by physical occupation, or in receipt of rent from a person in physical occupation, of the property within thirty years, notwithstanding any provision of law relative to incompetency, imprisonment or other disability. Claim of title by adverse possession cannot be maintained unless the adverse possession has been for a period of thirty years. The bill declares adverse possession to be where the land has been cultivated or occupied; or enclosed or nearly enclosed; or covered or nearly covered by structures; or partly enclosed and the unenclosed part covered or partly covered by structures, or where taxes have been fully paid by the person in possession; or where, though not enclosed, it has been used for fuel supply or fencing timber.

Protective Scaffolding.

Int. No. 115. Farrell. Amending the Labor Law (section 19 and new section 18-a) by requiring that scaffolding supported from overhead with supports more than ten feet apart shall be provided with a third support or guide-rope running from the overhead support through the bed of the scaffold to the ground. Where more than two persons are employed on the scaffold a third guide rope is required irrespective of the distance between the supports. Adjustable or extension frames in the construction of the scaffold bed are prohibited. It reduces from four to three the maximum number of men who may be employed on a scaffold at one time, requires swinging scaffolds to be properly tested at least once a year, and makes it a misdemeanor to construct a scaffold otherwise than as provided by the act.

Int. No. 339. Ittleman.—Authorizing the City of New York to acquire for playground purposes certain property in the Borough of Brooklyn, bounded by Ellery street, Throop avenue, Park avenue and Delmonico place. The board of estimate is authorized to appropriate the money necessary, and the comptroller is directed to issue corporate stock for the amount of the appropriation. The expense of maintenance is to be provided for in the annual departmental estimate of the department of parks.

UNITED OWNERS' ACTIVE.

Association Planning Aggressive Campaign for Enlargement of Scope and Membership.

The United Real Estate Owners' Association has initiated a systematic and organized opposition to the proposed legislative enactment providing for a ten per cent. per year reduction of the tax on buildings for five years and the gradual increase of the tax on land. This bill, known last year as the Salant-Schaap bill, has been reintroduced in the Legislature as the Herrick-Schaap bill.

Henry Bloch, president of the association, has appointed a special committee to take up the question of opposition to this measure and will arrange a conference with representatives of the Merchants' Association, the Board of Trade and Transportation, the Real Estate Board of New York, the Chamber of Commerce, the Bronx Taxpayers' Alliance and numerous other real estate and taxpayers' organizations. The purpose of the conference will be the formulation of a practical plan for giving general publicity to the fallacies of the proposed laws.

The United Real Estate Owners have also empowered a special committee to take up an active campaign for the acquisition of new associations to membership. Besides the Citizens East Side Improvement Association which joined last week, others expected to become affiliated are the Hunts Point Taxpayers' Association, the Park Avenue Improvement Association, and the Tremont Taxpayers' Association. These will be allowed one delegate for every twenty-five members.

For the purpose of still further strengthening the association's membership, the United Real Estate Owners have arranged a luncheon to be given at the Hotel Astor, on February 28, to which many of the large real estate owners will be invited.

A New Club Near Long Acre Square.

A new club house, which will combine the comforts and convenience of an exclusive social organization with the appointments and equipment of a first class athletic club, is contemplated in the Long Acre Square neighborhood. It is to be built by the Gotham Club, recently chartered by the State. The permanent board of officers and directors comprises James Otis Woodward, president; John G. Jones, first vice-president; Walter Hoff Seely, second vice-president; John Herbert Van Tempest, secretary and treasurer, and Thomas Darlington, M. D.; W. Gregory Smith, Dr. W. E. Young, C. E. Byrne and Edgar Distlehurst, directors.

The membership of the Gotham Club will be limited to one thousand. Walter Hoff Seely, as chairman of the site and building committee, is working in conjunction with Henry Ives Cobb, architect, 527 Fifth avenue, who has been retained to prepare plans for a suitable building.

It is proposed to acquire a site in the vicinity of Long Acre Square. The club proposes to spend between one million and one million and a half on the building, which will include all the appointments and conveniences necessary to make it a perfect building of its type. The tentative plans mapped out call for a building ten stories in height. The first floor is to contain the main reception rooms, ladies' reception room, cafe and grill, and the club offices. The second floor will be devoted to rooms for pool, billiards and card games. The third, fourth, fifth and sixth floors will be occupied by apartments for resident members.

The seventh and eighth floors will include the locker rooms for members, gymnasium, running track, shower baths and swimming pool. On the ninth floor will be the main club dining-room, banquet hall and private dining-rooms, with kitchen on the tenth floor; arranged in this manner to serve both the dining-rooms on the ninth floors and the open air dining-room, for summer use, which will be located on the roof, in an elaboratelf designed roof-garden. Upon the roof, in addition to this garden dining-room, will be located squash and hand-ball courts.

The basement and sub-basement, in addition to the necessary mechanical equipment for the operation of the building, will have a complete Turkish bath equipment, rifle range, bowling alleys, etc.

Stretching the Picture Theatre Law.

Pending in committee on general welfare of the Board of Aldermen is an ordinance (No. 56) amending the regulations relative to motion picture theatres, so as to permit persons to stand in the aisles, passageways and space in the rear of the seats, under certain conditions. In the opinion of the Superintendent of Buildings, Rudolph P. Miller, the amendments are not desirable.

Superintendent Miller says the changes proposed would permit the use of theatres of this class for larger audiences than was intended, and larger than are provided for by the requirements of the existing motion picture ordinance.

The number of persons to be accommodated in picture theatres, which need not comply with all the requirements for theatres, was within the last year increased from 300 to 600. The exit facilities are clearly specified and are proportioned in accordance with the seating capacity. If the amendment proposed should pass, the number of people to be accommodated in such a place would be largely in excess of that for which exit facilities are provided.

Superintendent Miller says the provisions of the picture ordinance have been very carefully considered by a commission appointed by the late Mayor Gaynor, and the purposes of the ordinance which was passed as a result of that commission's work, should not be defeated by such legislation as has been proposed. The superintendent has written Borough President Marks to the foregoing effect.

Making Good a Title Guarantee.

There is a general impression around New York that the average title is good anyhow, and that most of the bad titles have been cleaned up. A striking example occurred recently on Long Island of a claim that two hundred titles were bad, and the owner of the claim evidently believed sufficiently in it to start that number of partition suits against separate lot owners.

Samuel Smith died in January, 1850, and left to his son, Chauncey, his farm of one hundred acres, now constituting about one-half the present site of the Village of Merrick, Long Island. His will left the property "to my son, Chauncey, during his natural life and at his death, the same shall belong to his heirs and assigns forever." At a later date, Chauncey and his five children sold the property. One of the five children, a son, died, leaving a daughter, who is now Mrs. Mary La France. Then Chauncey died. Mrs. La France claimed that at the time of the death of her father, she became one of the heirs of Chauncey Smith and that she, not her father who had signed the deed, was entitled to the property. As she had not signed away her rights, she claimed that she was still entitled to one-fifth interest in each lot in the tract.

Meanwhile, the property had been cut up into lots and sold to about three hundred different purchasers and each lot had been guaranteed by the Title Guarantee & Trust Company. The title company's lawyers maintained that the will left the property to Chauncey Smith in fee, and that the grandchildren took no interest in it. However, there were two hundred policy holders who were afraid that they would lose their property or might be embarrassed in obtaining loans or making sales. As there was also some doubt whether Mrs. La France might not succeed, it seemed wiser to pay Mrs. La France a fair sum for her claim rather than cause the property holders the inconvenience that would result from defending so many suits.

Mr. Burdick, third vice-president of the company in charge of the Brooklyn office in the absence of Mr. Bailey, the vice president who is at present in Algiers, said yesterday that the settlement had been made with Mrs. La France for $18,000, and Mrs. La France had used the money to buy a home at Bay Shore, and to show that no hard feelings existed, had arranged with the company to examine and insure the title.

New Brooklyn Picture Theatre.

Tobias Goldstone, architect, 49 Graham avenue, Brooklyn, has completed plans and specifications for a moving picture theatre to be erected at 577-583 Gates avenue, Brooklyn. The owner is Herman Weingarten, a builder, 676 Humbolt street, Brooklyn. The theatre will be modern in every respect, one story, 33 by 100 feet, with a facade of Tapestry brick and Indiana limestone. The auditorium is planned to accommodate about 450 people. The interior of the theatre will be plastered on expanded metal lath with ornamental plaster panels. The building will be heated by steam and have all necessary sanitary conveniences. As noted elsewhere, the owner will build and will be ready about February 15 to take estimates on sub-contracts and materials.

Old New York was once "a city of churches", as much so as Brooklyn is today, but surely and steadily the old houses of worship are being driven away by forces which they cannot successfully combat. Business growth is only one of the factors which sooner or later disperse the congregations, as may be perceived in the case of the Church of the Redeemer.

The world-wide lowering of interest rates in the last three weeks is one of the more remarkable developments of recent years in the financial market. It has been accompanied by a hardly less striking expansion of the iron and steel industry. All industrial signs, it is true, do not as yet point in one direction, but there certainly no longer is occasion for excessive caution in business enterprises.

A rural free delivery route has been established by A. J. Kennedy, Postmaster of Flushing, to deliver mail to the residents of the Little Neck and Douglaston sections. The fourth-class post offices in both these villages were aholished this week, and in the future the two villages will be under the jurisdiction of the Flushing postmaster. Postraster Kennedy promises two deliveries a day.

The official who so far has most distinguished himself under Mayor Mitchel's administration is City Chamberlain Henry Bruere, whose notable articles on the "Cost of City Government," in the Record and Guide last spring, will be remembered by our readers. Besides insuring a yearly saving of $130,000 to the city through his management of the bank deposits in his charge, Mr. Bruere has drawn up a plan for reorganizing the office of the Commissioners of Accounts which promises to be of the very greatest value to the city. With these achievements are coupled other constructive work of high merit. Mr. Bruere is referred to by Dr. Shaw in the current number of the Review of Reviews as the foremost authority on municipal administration in the United States, and the characterization appears to be justified in the light of his first month's record in office.

What the Mayor Needs—A General Staff.

The proposed re-organization of the office of the Commissioners of Accounts is admirably conceived and should result in a real increase in the efficiency of all branches of the municipal administration. It will provide the Mayor with the mechanism which he needs in order to fulfill his responsibility towards the people of New York. The Mayor himself is personally responsible for the efficiency of a large part of the administrative departments of the city government. He cannot redeem that responsibility merely by delegating it to the departmental chiefs. Such chiefs must, of course, be allowed a large amount of discretion in the conduct ot the departments; but the Mayor needs a group of aids who will help him to supervise his department chiefs and to attend properly to his other duties. The present office of the Commissioners of Accounts is intended to help him to keep an eye on the course of the departments, but its functions and powers are not very much more than those of an official inquisitor or spy.

What the Mayor needs is a general staff who will improve methods of organization, originate policies, and bring about co-operation among the several departments of the city government. Such a general staff is provided by the proposed re-organization of the office of the Commissioners of Accounts. The new single head and his deputies will serve the Mayor as an organ of investigation in respect to departmental organization, behavior and policy, and in respect to the general problems of the city government. It will become one of the most important offices in the gift of the Mayor, and will need a man of unusual ability to take advantage of its opportunities. It is very much to be hoped that the bill will be passed without opposition and that City Chamberlain Bruere will himself become the first head of the new bureau. His abilities and experience peculiarly qualify him for the task.

The Folly of a Referendum on the Half-Tax Issue.

The Mayor has announced that he will sign a bill passed by the Legislature submitting to popular vote the proposal to transfer to the land part of the tax now levied on buildings. This announcement was to be expected, because Mr. Mitchel had declared himself to that effect during the campaign. That was the chief reason which made the City Economy League refuse to endorse his candidacy. Mr. Mitchel has also announced that he favors a commission to investigate the whole question of local taxation, particularly with reference to the single tax principle which underlies the existing demand for a reduction of the tax on buildings.

Inasmuch as the Mayor is practically pledged to sign a bill submitting the question of the change of incidence in taxation to popular vote, he can scarcely be urged to adopt any other course should such a bill be submitted to him; but if he is also in favor of a commission of investigation, he should certainly use his influence to have the referendum postponed until after the commission has reported. The only possible excuse for a commission is the fact that reasonable doubt exists as to the expediency, the results and the justice of the proposed change in the incidence of the system of taxation. The duty of that commission would be to collect and publish the facts relative to the matter upon which all parties were agreed, and if possible to agree upon a definite series of recommendations.

Considering the wide prevailing difference of opinion among expert economists as to the desirability of the change, the commission in all probability would not agree; but two reports would be better than none. What is needed is the publication of some authoritative presentation of the facts and arguments on both sides, which in case a referendum is ordered, could be circulated freely among the voters. It would be absurd to arrange both an investigation and a referendum, and have the referendum before the report based on the investigation is published. If the supporters of the proposed change in taxation want the referendum to be ordered next fall, before a thorough investigation can be made, and its results published, it will simply mean that they want on the part of the electorate, not a well-informed and mature judgment, but so far as possible an uninformed and prejudiced decision.

The question as to whether any part of the tax now levied on improvements should be transferred to the land is an extremely technical economical problem. As the Record and Guide has frequently pointed out, expert economists are very much divided as to the desirability of the proposal. Many economists, who are thoroughly in favor of the appropriation by the State of a substantial part of the unearned increment of the land, consider the proposed reduction of the building tax to be inexpedient and unjust. For these reasons the question is one which should not be submitted to popular vote If it is submitted the campaign in its favor will degenerate into an appeal to tenants as a class to secure a reduction of rents at the expense of the land owners. The real estate interests have consequently sound reasons for opposing the submission of any such question to popular vote. In a city like New York in which the vast majority of the people are tenants, it is simply an invitation to this class to confiscate a certain proportion of the property of the land owners. But in any event a body of public-spirited municipal officials should not agree to its submission, unless some attempt were made to help the voters to understand the real public issues, which are involved by the proposed change in tax policy. A public investigation will be the best method of accomplishing such a result.

A Crying Objection to the Half Tax.

Prof. Joseph French Johnson has summed up the most salient argument against the proposed increase in the real estate tax in the following words: "One of the crying objections to the Sullivan-Shortt bill (and it is unanswerable) is the fact that it would fall with equal weight upon those who are fortunate in their investments and those who are unfortunate in their investments. The development of transit facilities in New York in recent years has caused a most remarkable shifting of values. It has increased prices in certain parts of the city, especially in the suburbs, but has caused a decline in values downtown. The doubling of the taxes on land or the halving of the rate on buildings, would make the tax burden bear heavier and heavier on land."

The result would be seriously to increase the difficulty of many property owners who are already struggling to keep hold of their property under most adverse conditions. In those parts of the cities in which land values are rising, and particularly in those sections in which it is profitable to erect buildings where cost exceeds the value of the land, the property owner would be very little injured. He might even be benefitted. But in those parts of Manhattan in which land values have been declining, and which are improved with comparatively expensive but faulty super-annuated building, the land owner would be subjected to still further losses and would be obliged frequently to surrender his real estate to the owner of the mortgage. The increases in taxation, which have taken place in recent years, have already compromised the value of the real estate situated in backward or stationary neighborhoods, and the proposed increase in land taxation would be the severest kind of a hardship to them.

Mechanics' Lien Law Amendments Objected To.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The proposed amendments to the Mechanics' Lien Law, as embodied in the bill fostered by the Consolidated Building Trades Credit Association, while evidently designed to lend further security to the laborer and material man, appear to interfere unnecessarily with the stability of titles to real estate, the rights of mortgagees, and the rights of both general and judgment creditors of owner. No advantage which is not now available to the vigilant lienor would accrue to him because of the adoption of the amendments.

It is recognized as a fundamental principle that neither the mechanic nor material man has an inchoate right of lien. He may acquire a preference if he acts upon his rights. But the filing of the notice originates the lien. If anterior thereto, another has honestly and by diligence acquired a superior right, it cannot and should not be overreached by a lienor who has meanwhile been sleeping upon his rights. No practical mechanics' lien law can be devised which is not founded upon the basic principle that the recording or filing of an instrument affecting real property gives constructive notice to all interested parties of its existence, and that claims founded upon such instruments must, except in cases of fraud, be given priority in the order of their filing.

And our entire statute has been built on this theory. Thus the lienor is permitted at any time to demand the terms and status of the owner's contract with the contractor. (Section 8.) If his suspicions are thereby aroused, he may either demand sufficient security for the payment of his account, or protect himself by at once filing his notice of lien for both past and future claims, since the statute normally limits the extent of the owner's liability to the unpaid balance due to the contractor. (Section 4.) In harmony with this general scheme section 10 permits the service of a copy of the notice on the owner or contractor; section 7 protects the lienor against fraudulent advance payments after the filing of his lien, or against fraudulent mortgages or incumbrances made with the connivance of the beneficiary thereof and recorded after the conception of the lienor's claim; and sections 15 and 16 protect the lienor against unrecorded assignments.

Limitations of space prohibit, at this time, a statement of all of the objectionable features of the proposed amendments, but the following are referred to:

Section 4. Extent of Lien. By the present provision the lien follows the owner's interest in the property if it be assigned by general assignment for the benefit of creditors within 30 days prior to the filing of the notice of lien. The amendment proposes to strike out any such limitation of time and to give the lienor an absolute priority over general creditors, unless such assignment, or a deed in trust, or a trust mortgage, is made by the owner for the benefit of all possible mechanic's lienors (subcontractors being excepted) on the property conveyed, and unless three-fourths of lienors in amount accept the terms of such assignment.

Not only are these amendments unnecessary for the reasons given, but they are so vague and indefinite as to be insufficient to carry out the purposes intended and are in conflict with the provisions relating to "General Assignments" as set forth in the "Debtor and Creditor Law."

Section 7. Advance Payments. It is sought so to change the first portion of this section as to prohibit not only advance payments but any assignment of payments due or to become due except in consideration of work done or materials furnished for the improvement of the property affected, and also by striking out the present limitation of the preference to those liens filed prior to the time provided in the contract for the payment attacked. By a further amendment to this section it is sought to provide that any mortgage, assignment, lien or incumbrance made by an owner to avoid the statute, with or without the connivance of the mortgagee, assignee, or other beneficiary, shall be subordinated to the claims of all lienors regardless of when such claims arose. None of these amendments is necessary to the protection of a vigilant lienor. The amendments to the first portion of the statute are inconsistent with and contradictory to sections 15 and 16 of the present statute, which make the filing of assignments a pre-requisite to their validity. The amendments to the second portion of the section would deprive an innocent mortgagee for value of all of his rights and make it impossible to safely accept a mortgage on real estate. The mortgagee can have no knowledge of the intentions of the mortgagor in making the loan. If the owner has an outstanding contract for the improvement of the property, which makes possible the filing of a lien at any time within four months (the amendment extends the time for filing), and the mortgagee cannot safeguard his interests by recording his mortgage, he never could protect himself, and few contracts for the sale of real estate could be safely closed while such a statute remained in force.

Section 13. Priorities. The amendment gives priority to the lienor over judgment creditors except where the judgment is for materials furnished or labor performed in the improvement of the property, and over all mortgages which are subordinated to building loan mortgages, when the subordinated mortgages do not state a time for payment of the principal, or when such mortgages are paid off prior to the date designated for payment.

The first of these amendments is unnecessary to the protection of lienors. It opens the door to a possible fraud by the owner of real estate upon a judgment creditor, by connivance with a lienor, and would apparently make impossible the enforcement of an execution against real property for a period of four months, during which time there would always be the possibility of a superseding mechanic's lien. The second portion of the amendment is futile since it can be defeated by merely prescribing a demand due date in the mortgages subordinated.

A further amendment to this section provides that all liens shall be "concurrent." If by this it is meant that they shall be treated as if filed simultaneously, so that no priority of claim shall be granted because of priority of time in filing, the provision is impracticable of enforcement and inconsistent with other parts of the statute as now in force and as amended. Thus, this same section, 13, provides that a lien shall have priority over a conveyance or judgment not recorded or docketed at the time of the filing of the notice. Suppose one lien is filed before a judgment is docketed and another after. By the provisions of this section as amended, only one of the liens is to be given priority over the judgment, yet it is also provided that the liens shall be concurrent. If the liens are concurrent, do they concur as of the time of the first or last?

The proposed changes in the method of enforcing liens in courts not of record are impossible of enforcement, since those courts have no equity jurisdiction and cannot determine the rights and order of priority of the various claimants as the amendment would require.

There are other objectionable features in the proposed amendments, but sufficient has been said to show that no amendment should be considered until a more thorough study of the subject has been made by the revisors of the law.

In Defense of the Single Tax.

Editor of The Record and Guide:

In your issue of the 31st ult., you publish an interesting article by Hon. Cyrus C. Miller and an interesting address by Prof. Joseph French Johnson. Both of them are attacks upon the single tax. The interest of both of them is partly due to their mistakes.

Mr. Miller says part of the value of the land is due to labor. That is often true. The part so due would not be taxed under the Single Tax, which proposes to tax "bare land values," nothing more. It is easy to make a man of straw and then destroy him, but what is the use of criticising a doctrine when the part of it criticised exists only in the imagination of the critic? That is not the way to get at the truth.

Mr. Miller says: "In the beginning of the city, land was free to all." This is an error. In what year, since European occupancy, was the land of Manhattan "free to all?" This is a minor point, but a teacher should not make erroneous statements of alleged facts.

It is true that many Single-Taxers propose to take in taxes the whole income of land, but it is also true that many of us do not. While I believe that land values are community-created values and should have gone to the community from the beginning, I also believe that having made land a subject of sale and purchase for centuries we are morraly estopped from taking from the land owners their present possessions—unless, of course, the public safety should hereafter demand it. It is not likely that it will.

If the Single Tax were introduced without confiscation, it would work out in New York City about in this way (I use round figures): Upon $7,500,000,000 assessed value of lands and buildings, we now collect $150,000,000 a year. From lands alone, outside of buildings, we now collect $100,000,000. The increase of land value is $150,000,000 per year. A tax of 7 per cent. per annum on this unearned increment would yield $10,500,000. By lowering the tax on buildings by this amount, annually, in five years all taxes would rest on land values alone. The land owner would retain all the land value he has now and would pay upon it in taxes what he pays now. No mortgages would be disturbed. The public would take the income from future increases in value, but would leave present values with their present owners.

You real estate men seem to be treading the same fatal path the railroad companies trod when railroad regulation was first suggested. First they said there was no need of change and they fought to control the commissions and a change, as bitterly as you gentlemen are now fighting every attempt to change in any degree our archaic tax-system. Then, when the law created railroad commissions, the railroads fought to control the commsisions and so prevent changes. Finally, the public patience wore out. The drastic laws and the fierce public feeling against the railroads today are the result of the blind railroad opposition to any change in their unchecked control.

Today the majority of the members of the Manhattan Single Tax Club are probably in favor of taking the whole rental value of land. If you gentlemen fight against any change; if you continue to insist that a few landlords shall lay down the law to the many landless, taking their pound of flesh to the uttermost; then you will finally create a public opinion that will in truth confiscate all rents.

The Single Tax, limited, theory herein stated offers you a way to reconcile yourselves with public opinion and to keep what you have already got, despite the fact that what you have was created, not by you, but by the public which you flout. The slums of New York, the absurdly high rentals of New York, the 325,000 people out of employment in New York, are a terrible indictment against the land system of New York. The landlord must either bend or break. It is his own fault if he does not choose safety while he may.

On behalf of the club I offer to supply speakers at any time and place. Let us counsel together and get at the truth.

ALFRED BISHOP MASON.

While buyers are still scarce and as a consequence there was no noticeable increase in the number of sales, the character of the week's business differed in one respect from that of preceding weeks. A number of deals were closed in which builders figured as buyers and which concerned properties that are to be improved or to be held for improvements. East 84th street contributed two such transactions, and a whole block front in the Dyckman section, besides vacant plots in other sections, also passed into the hands of builders.

Other interesting deals of the week included the purchase of a high class West Side apartment house by an investor and the sale of an old-fashioned business building in Broome street.

The total number of sales in Manhattan this week was 22, against 27 for last week and 45 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 7, compared with 6 last week and 15 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 15, compared with 21 last week and 30 a year ago.

From the Bronx 11 sales at private contract were reported, against 15 last week and 14 a year ago.

The amount involved in the Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $640,294, compared with $554,530 last week, making a total since Jan. 1 of $5,943,515. The figure for the corresponding week last year was $759,887, making a total since Jan. 1, 1913, of $5,190,129.

TRAFFIC at the 34th and 42d st stations of the 6th av elevated has been materially lessened by the opening, last Saturday, of the new 38th st station. The new station was brought about through the increased traffic as a consequence of the northward shopping movement and local property owners were successful in convincing the Public Service Commission that its speedy erection was imperative.

PERCY AND JESSE STRAUS, of R. H. Macy & Co., are the buyers of the one-fifth interest in 1319 and 1321 Broadway, 111 West 34th st 119 to 123 West 34th st and 122 to 126 West 35th st upon which the Macy store is erected, and the sale of which by Mrs. Elizabeth Towle Bissel, of California, as guardian of John Henry Towle, was reported recently. The one-fifth interest in the property at Nos. 129 and 131 West 33d st was bought by Arnstein & Levy.

THE REAL ESTATE AUCTIONEERS' ASSOCIATION, feeling the injury which may arise if any change in the method of taxation is legislatively agitated, opens its room free—for discussion on this and any other economic measure (which may prove a community interest) —at 2 o'clock each Tuesday afternoon during February, 1914. This was made possible by the order of James L. Wells, president, and D. Phoenix Ingraham and Lewis Phillips, the committee.

THE ST. ANTHONY ASSOCIATION has taken title to the home of Mrs. John A. Logan, Jr., at 17 West 56th st, which it contracted to buy in July, 1912. The association has given in part payment to Edith A. Logan the house at 29 East 28th st, which has been the headquarters of the society for thirty-five years. The 56th st dwelling will be the home of the Logans for some time, as the St. Anthony Association will remain in the 28th st house until it has been sold or leased by the new owners.

THE CENTRAL PARK WEST TAXPAYERS' ASSOCIATION will hold a meeting on Monday evening, February 9, 1914, at 8.30, at the Majestic Hotel, Central Park West and 72d st. It is expected that this will be one of the association's most important meetings, as the matter of building the subway along Central Park West, from 59th to 104th sts will be brought up and plans will be adopted for formally presenting the petition to the Public Service Commission. It is also expected to take up the matter of restriction of business traffic on Central Park West, the asphalting of Columbus av and other matters.

WILLIAM B. MAY & CO., who are active in the matter of restricting traffic on 5th av north of 42d st and south of 110th st so that trucking and delivery wagons will be eliminated from that thoroughfare, thus relieving the serious congestion and making the avenue a suitable thoroughfare for private equipages, report that, from answers to letters which they have sent out, it is learned that practically all of the owners and occupants of properties in 5th av and adjacent streets are entirely in sympathy with such a movement. The consensus of opinion is that such a restriction should be enforced, because the congestion at times is such as to cause numerous and serious delays. It is the intention of William B. May & Co. to continue an active campaign to bring about regulating of the traffic.

THE UNITED REAL ESTATE OWNERS' ASSOCIATION will hold their annual reception at Terrace Garden next Thursday evening. Elaborate preparations have been made for the entertainment of the guests. A vaudeville performance will be followed by dancing, to the music of Henry Conrad's orchestra. Handsome souvenirs in the form of a year book, with special articles, will also be distributed. Among those who have accepted invitations to be present are Surrogate George M. S. Schulz; Rudolph P. Miller, Superintendent of Buildings; John J. Murphy, Tenement House Commissioner, and William H. Abbott, Deputy Commissioner; Bridge Commissioner R. J. H. Kracke; Lawrence M. D. McGuire, President of the Real Estate Board; George Wenner, president of the West Side Taxpayers' Association, and a number of Assemblymen and other public officials.

REAL ESTATE APPRAISALS.

Protest Against Insurance Rates.

The question of the recent rise in premiums for accident insurance, which affects thousands of property owners in this city, was taken up at a mass meeting held last Monday evening, at 142 Second avenue, under the auspices of the Greater New York Taxpayers' Association. This organization, consisting of several hundred real estate owners whose holdings lie in the territory south of 42d street and east of Broadway, has taken up the fight of property owners in opposition to the rise in premiums for accident insurance. The association has gone about this work systematically and earnestly to secure proof against the body of lawyers that has devoted itself recently to the business of prosecuting accident cases which never took place, and when they did take place no injury resulted from such accident. The association has also started on foot a plan to organize a fund of their own in the nature of indemnity insurance.

At the Monday night meeting, the speakers were Ira J. Ettinger, Harold M. Phillips, Abraham Sarasohn, Bernard Goodman, and David Rosenbaum.

All emphasized the necessity of running down the originators of fake cases and their attorneys; also the necessity of fighting every case, where the plaintiff cannot show a clear and justifiable cause of action—two matters entirely ignored by the insurance companies and the chief contributing causes to the present excessive rates.

About $2,500 was subscribed as a defense fund to take care of any liability cases that might arise while the matter is being threshed out with the insurance companies.

—"Pessimism does not pay in real estate." Think rather of the men who have made fortunes in realty and of the thousands of old people who are living in comfort through their frugality and investments in productive property in early life.

Local Fire Alarm Systems In New York Factories.

A fire alarm signal system with a sufficient number of clearly audible signals is required in every factory building over two stories high in which more than 25 persons are employed above the grade story by the new labor law of New York State.

A sub-committee of the Industrial Board has been at work drafting rules and regulations for factory fire alarm systems which will be issued early in February. Before that the Industrial Board will hold a public hearing on the subject of the rules.

At present the most complete rules for factory alarm systems are those in use in New Jersey. Possibly the New York rules will be similar in some respects and improved in others. Some engineers do not favor open circuits in fire alarm systems which are permitted in New Jersey. It is thought that the New York rules will require closed circuits. New Jersey has regarded electric siren horns rather more favorably than gongs. New York, it is thought, will favor gongs and permit horns under certain circumstances.

In draughting its rules for factory alarm systems New York has had the advantage of the pioneer work done by others and can avoid the errors, imitate the accuracies and improve the weaknesses. It is expected that the rules and regulations the Industrial Board will publish will be the most complet yet published, and will reflect the advice of competent engineers.—"Safety Engineering."

The Mortgage Market.

"Purchasers of all kinds of first-class securities realize now that the period of high interest rates lately prevailing has passed," said Randall Salisbury, of the mortgage department of the Title Guarantee & Trust Co., this week. "It may be that mortgage investors are a trifle late in appreciating the change in conditions. There are still some would-be purchasers of mortgages, who, unable to escape from the financial atmosphere of the last few months, are endeavoring to obtain a net return of 5 per cent. on guaranteed mortgages. As a matter of fact, the gross rate of interest today is 5 per cent. on well-located income-producing property in Manhattan and the Bronx. With bonds of various sorts being marketed on a lower than 4½ per cent basis, there is absolutely no reason why guaranteed mortgages should pay a higher rate than 4½ per cent.

"It is perfectly certain that within a comparatively short time the demand for mortgage investments at this rate will be greater than the supply. It seems to me that from a financial standpoint the outlook for real estate is extremely favorable. Not the least important factor in the situation is that the institutions that make a business of handling mortgage loans have a much clearer conception of their problem than ever before."

Bridge Traffic.

According to a count made by the operating companies, the Williamsburgh Bridge is now carrying more passengers than the Brooklyn Bridge. The count was made for one continuous period of 24 hours in the month of November last, of the traffic moving in both directions. The result showed that the Williamsburgh Bridge during that period carried 313,347 passengers, and the Brooklyn Bridge 306,845. The Queensboro Bridge scored a total of 78,980, and the Manhattan Bridge 43,820. The total of all bridges was 742,992, an increase of 12.6 per cent. of the total for 1912, which was 659,591.

—Renting conditions make the new-law apartment houses a profitable investment on Washington Heights. There is a good demand for suites of four and five rooms in non-elevator houses, and also for the larger apartments in elevator houses renting at nine to thirteen dollars a room.

AUCTION SALES OF WEEK.

Except where otherwise stated, the properties offered were in foreclosure. Adjournments of legal sales to next week are noted under Advertised Legal Sales.

* Indicates that the property described was bid in for the plaintiff's account.

The Auction Market.

There were 22 offerings at the Manhattan and Bronx salesrooms this week, and 13 were bought by parties in interest, 5 were withdrawn or adjourned, and 4 went to outside bidders. These were Sadie Schwartz, who paid $98,344 for the one-sty theatre at 45-51 Suffolk street; Anthony Wenner, who bid $15,500 for the four-sty flat at 318 West 37th street, offered at executor's sale; Edmund Berger, who paid $18,200 for dwellings at Lexington avenue and 127th street, and R. Baldo, who secured the three-sty stable at 1449 Vyse avenue for $4,700. The 12-sty loft building at 50-54 West 17th street was bought by the plaintiff, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., for $286,000.

For the coming week, most of the properties offered comprise tenements in Manhattan and dwellings in the Bronx. Among the more valuable properties to be sold are 17 West 36th street, a four-sty loft building to be offered by Bryan L. Kennelly, and 153 Water street, a six-sty loft building, to be sold by Herbert A. Sherman. Joseph P. Day is scheduled to sell six tenements, besides other properties in various sections of the city.

REAL ESTATE ETHICS.

A Code Reported by a Special Committee of the Board.

A special committee of the Real Estate Board appointed to draft a code of ethics to govern the conduct of brokers has made a report to the board of governors embodying the following rules, which are now under consideration and will be acted upon next week.

"A member shall not in any way improperly interfere with any specific transaction of another member.

"A member shall not solicit owners of property with a view of obtaining business that is known to be under the management or in the sole control of some other member, and no proposal of such business shall be accepted unless it comes from the owner without solicitation, or unless information is refused by the broker in control.

"When a member accepts from another member a customer for a property the first transaction closed shall relieve each member from further obligation to the other in connection with subsequent business done with such customer, unless by prior written agreement to the contrary.

"A member shall give an unprejudiced opinion, if he gives any, concerning another member's proposition when asked to do so by a prospective customer.

"A member shall refuse to put a 'For Sale' or 'For Rent' sign on property on which there are already two signs, because in the opinion of this Board many signs on a property do more harm than good.

"No member shall offer property or submit any application for a loan without the knowledge and consent of the owner, or his authorized agent, and then only on such terms as authorized.

"No member shall furnish information concerning a property to other members either in respect to its sale, lease or mortgage, claiming sole agency, unless he shall have been retained in such capacity. No member shall offer any property so furnished him upon any other terms than precisely those stated by the members sending out the information, and all negotiations shall be carried on through such member.

"No member shall under any conditions claim or receive any commission or rebate upon repairs made or supplies purchased in the operation and management of properties in his charge, without the consent of the owner.

"In all cases where an operator, owner or other person shall act in bad faith toward a member, and the member claims that he has been unjustly deprived of a commission, the facts may be reported to the Board of Governors and the Governors may, after consideration of the claim, request the operator or owner or other person to arbitrate the claim of the member, and shall preserve records of all requests to arbitrate and answers thereto, which shall at all times be open for the inspection of the members of this Board."

CANAL STREET WIDENING.

How Shall the Cost be Distributed?—Principal Points.

The owners of property within the area of assessment both directly and through their attorneys have laid great emphasis upon the fact that this widening of Canal street at its junction with the Bowery is simply an addition to the plaza at the Manhattan end of the Manhattan Bridge, and they insist that the expense of acquiring this addition should be paid for in the same manner as was the original bridge plaza, namely, by the city at large. They also refer to a number of other street extensions and widenings which have been carried out by the city in recent years, such as the widening of Delancey street and its extension to Elm street, which extension is known as Kenmare street, the extension of Flatbush avenue, in the Borough of Brooklyn, and the widening of Livingston street, in the same Borough, in all of which the entire expense was assumed by the City of New York. In two of the cases, namely, the widening of Delancey street and the widening of Livingston street, it should be noted that assessments were levied for a substantial part of the expense, but the property owners were relieved from these assessments through acts of the Legislature, the act with respect to Delancey street being permissive and the relief having been granted by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, while in the case of Livingston street the act was mandatory, no action having been taken by the Board.

The committee of the Board of Estimate is not greatly impressed with the argument that because the city has paid the entire cost of certain improvements it should treat all other similar improvements in the same manner, especially in view of the fact that in a number of the cases referred to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment had before it no Local Board resolution, and believed at that time that it had not the power to initiate without such Local Board resolution a proceeding to acquire title and assess any portion of the cost. The right to do this has since been clearly established, and the Board has availed itself of that right in a number of instances, one of which is the proceeding now under consideration.

The committee believes that there has been great local benefit from the important improvements above referred to, and that it was distinctly unfair to place the entire cost upon the city at large, with no local assessment whatever. The members of the committee therefore declare that if there be local benefit from this widening of Canal street there should be a corresponding local assessment.

Those who have appeared before the committee have argued that there is no local benefit whatever, some of them even maintaining that they have been damaged instead of being benefited, and they cite cases where rentals, and even sale prices, have actually decreased during the last two or three years. The members of the committee believe, however, that while there may be cases of this kind this shrinkage in values is only temporary and is due to the disturbance and confusion incidental to the construction work connected with the improvement of the bridge plaza and the building of the subway to connect with the Manhattan Bridge, and that when this work shall have been completed there will be a substantial increase in values, due not only to the creation of the plaza, no portion of the cost of which has been assessed, but also to the widening, the cost of which it is proposed to assess in part upon the property deemed to be benefited.

Figures of Cost.

The Board of Estimate had already determined that two-thirds of the entire cost should be placed upon the city at large and one-third upon a local area of benefit, upon which a hearing was given at the time the proceeding was instituted. While the area acquired is only slightly over 11,000 square feet, or the equivalent of about 4½ city lots, the awards for property taken, including consequential damages, amount to approximately $500,000, while the interest and incidental expenses amount to about $133,000 more. The third of the total expense which under the original resolution of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment is to be assessed, amounts to about $211,000. The area of benefit adopted by the board extends up the Bowery two and one-half blocks above Canal street and half a block south, and includes one and one-half blocks east and west of the Bowery to a point midway between Hester and Grand streets and one-half block on either side of the Bowery from the middle of the block between Hester and Grand streets to the middle of the next block north.

The tentative assessments within this area vary greatly. At the northwesterly corner of Canal and Chrystie streets a parcel 50 by 75 feet, no portion of which was taken, and which therefore received no award, is assessed at $6,295.72. The parcel on Canal street immediately next to this was awarded damages to the amount of $48,000 for about one-third of its area which was taken, while the assessment upon the remnant which was left is $4,657. A parcel on the Bowery having a frontage of 38 feet and a depth of 118 feet, no portion of which was taken, and which therefore received no award is assessed $5,965, while a lot on the west side of the Bowery nearly opposite this, having a frontage of 50 feet and a depth of about 145 feet, is assessed $8,046. The assessments decrease in proportion to the distance from the area taken, until a 25-foot lot on the Bowery is assessed about $300, while a similar lot on the west side of Elizabeth street has an assessment of about $73.

The committee agrees that many of the assessments are burdensome and are probably out of proportion to the benefit which will be derived, although it is said that when the work of construction shall have been completed, the benefit from the improvement will be found to have been substantial and will be reflected in an increase in values, although it is exceedingly difficult to predict the precise amount of such benefit in dollars and cents.

PROPOSED REDISTRIBUTION OF COST.

A further hearing was held on Friday, January 16, at 10.30 a. m., at which all persons interested were given an opportunity to be heard upon the proposed reconsideration and redetermination concerning the distribution of the cost and expense of the aforesaid proceeding so as to place 62½ per cent. of said entire cost and expense upon the City of New York, 30 per cent. of such entire cost and expense upon the Borough of Manhattan, and the remaining 7½ per cent. on a local area of special benefit.

Upon motion of Comptroller Prendergast at that hearing, there was another change in distribution made, which was to place the expense of the proceeding as follows: 55% on the entire city, 30% on the Borough of Manhattan, 7½% on the Borough of Brooklyn, and 7½% on the property owners in the area of benefit. This matter will come up for consideration at a public hearing to be held on February 13.

INCOME TAX REGULATIONS.

The form to be used and regulations to be followed by individuals in making returns of income subject to the new federal income tax have been sent out by the Treasury Department. Every citizen of the United States, whether residing at home or abroad; every persons residing in the United States and every non-resident alien who has income from United States investments of $3,000 or over must make such return.

For the part year 1913 the specific exemptions will be $2,500, or $3,333.33 in the case of a married person, and in future years $3,000 and $4,0000. Where the tax has been withheld on part of the income at the source, or where part of the income comes as dividends on stock of a corporation which is taxable under the corporation tax section of the law, the regulations set forth that such incomes shall be deducted from the individual's total net income when computing the amount on which he is taxable.

Must Act by March 1.

Return must be in the hands of the collector of internal revenue in the district where the payee lives, or where he has his principal place of business, not later than March 1, failure to observe this time limit to be punished with fines ranging from $20 to $1,000.

An extension of thirty days from March 1 in case of sickness or absence may be allowed by the proper collector, provided an application is made by the individual concerned. Returns must be accompanied by oath or affirmation.

Expenses for medical attendance, store accounts, family supplies, wages of domestic servants, cost of board, room or house rent shall not be deducted from gross income, and individuals who own their own residences cannot deduct the estimated value of the rent.

Unpaid Accounts Taxed.

Persons receiving fees or emoluments for professional or other services must include all actual receipts for services during the year, together with all unpaid accounts, charges for service or contingent income for the year, "if good and collectible."

Debts contracted within a current year may be deducted from gross income when found worthless, but not before legal proceedings have proved unavailing. Debts contracted in previous years which eventually prove worthless may be deducted subsequently under the head of losses, when they are charged off.

Amounts due or accrued to individual members of a partnership from net earnings shall be included in the return of the individual, whether distributed or not, and United States pensions must be included as income.

Estimated advance of real estate value is not required to be reported unless placed as an asset on the individual's books. Cost of suits and other legal proceedings arising out of ordinary business may be treated as expense and deducted from gross income of a business.

In computing net income compensation of all officers and employes of a state or any political subdivision thereof shall be excluded, but not where paid by the United States.

GOOD OF BARGE CANAL.

Will Help Lake Champlain Iron Industry and Stimulate Local Traffic.

The construction of the New York State Barge Canal has been proceeding for a number of years. Numerous doubts have been expressed as to the justification for this costly work. In the opinion of Mr. George Clinton, Jr., as set forth at the convention of the New York State Waterways Association, recently, the benefits that will be derived by the State and the country at large are many and far-reaching. These notes are taken from his paper.

The effects of the Barge Canal will be chiefly due to the great reduction in the cost of transportation which is certain to follow. This makes the situation analogous to that presented by the original construction of the canal. It has been figured that the actual cost of transporting a ton of freight over the Barge Canal between Albany and Buffalo will be 26 cents, making the cost per ton-mile about 0.52 mill. This estimate is probably too low, but the cost will be little if any above 0.65 mill per ton-mile. The cost of transportation in the present canal is about 0.80 mill per ton-mile, and by rail about 2 mills. It is understood that these figures relate to the cost of transportation and not to the charges actually made, which differ widely therefrom.

Other direct results of the opening of the Barge Canal will be the opening up of communication with other places, both in and out of the State, not hitherto commercially accessible. A striking example of this is to be seen in that part of the State which borders on Lake Champlain. With the iron ore and limestone which are very near at hand and the cheap coal which will be made available by means of the Barge Canal, the iron industry along the shores of Lake Champlain will, Mr. Clinton prophecies, develop tremendously. Furthermore, if the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association's plan for intracostal canals along the Atlantic coast should be carried out direct communication by barge may be had between all the Atlantic seaports and the cities bordering on the canal.

Among the direct results the most important, perhaps, is the fact that the cheap transportation to be afforded by the canal will place New York City in a position where it can successfully compete with other Atlantic seaports for the export trade in spite of the discrimination which has been exercised against that city by the through-railroad lines by means of differentials. This is a matter which concerns the whole State, and indeed the whole country, for cheaper transportation to New York of products coming from the West would necessarily mean a reduction in the rates for transportation to other seaports, and thus not only New York, but the whole country, would reap the benefit.

Another direct benefit to be expected is the increase in the use of the canal for local traffic. This use has of late years fallen off so that at the present time local traffic constitutes a comparatively small part of the business transacted upon the canal; but it is to be hoped and expected that upon the completion of the Barge Canal, with its low cost of transportation, its large and modern barges assuring safety to cargo and its freedom from annoying delays, merchants and farmers along the line of the canal will see the advantage of using it for the transportation of their goods. This may, perhaps, especially in the case of farm products, affect favorably the high cost of living.

Indirect Results.

The foregoing advantages are surely great, and with them accomplished the wisdom of the expenditure made by the State for the construction of the Barge Canal would need no argument, but the indirect results which are to be anticipated are even greater and more far reaching. The first of these, and that which is most obvious, is the large increase of traffic which will unquestionably take place. Where a cheap trade route exists leading to a market where goods can be profitably sold, manufacturers will, other things being equal, naturally locate their plants on or near that route. The Barge Canal will presumably not only stimulate and thus increase existing commerce, but will create new commercial enterprises which themselves will greatly increase the traffic upon the canal.

This leads to the subject of new industries. The Champlain district is merely one instance of what may be expected to occur at different points all along the canal. With cheap coal from Pennsylvania and cheap ore from the upper lakes there is no reason why blast furnaces should not be established in the central portion of the State to great advantage, particularly as the third great requisite for that industry, limestone, is near at hand.

An important effect of the reduced cost of transportation on the Barge Canal will be the control of railroad rates. The Erie Canal, even at its worst times, controlled and still controls through-railroad rates from the West to the Atlantic seaboard by the threat of competition which its existence implies. That threat of competition will be much more effective in the case of a canal on which the cost of transportation is 0.65 mill per ton-mile than on the present canal, where that cost is 0.80.

For some years past the cities of Buffalo and New York have been losing the benefit of through shipments of grain for export from the West. Anything which largely affects New York City and Buffalo is felt throughout the State. A large part of this grain is being diverted to Montreal by the Canadian water route. The Barge Canal will bring it back.

The Canal Street Crosstown Subway.

On February 17 at 12.15 p. m. the Public Service Commission will hold a public hearing on the form of contract for the construction of Section No. 2 of Route No. 20, the Canal street crosstown subway in Manhattan. This line is to be operated by the New York Municipal Railway Corporation, and will connect the tracks from the Fourth avenue subway coming over the Manhattan Bridge with the tracks in the Broadway subway in Manhattan. Owing to the swampy character of the ground in this section, the commission will submit alternative plans to bidders, one plan calling for construction according to the usual form of subway construction, namely, excavation under cover and the building of a steel and concrete structure; and the other plan through the worst section calls for construction by the tunnel method of two separate tubes lined with cast iron.

—The citizens of Staten Island need better high school accommodations. The Curtis High School at New Brighton is overcrowded. Borough President McCormack said this week that it is an injustice to the teachers and a handicap to the students, who are compelled to work and study at such a disadvantage. He is anxious that additional high school facilities be provided for the people of Richmond Borough, and will co-operate with the citizens to acquire the additional high school accommodations needed at the present time.

Stairway Enclosure Law in New York.

In "stairway enclosures," subdivision 2 of section 79-b, "Requirements for existing buildings," of article 6, "Factories," of the labor law of New York State, it is provided that all partitions of fire resisting material and the doors provided for the openings therein shall be constructed in such manner as the industrial board may prescribe by rules and regulations.

The fire-resisting materials aproved now are brick, concrete, terra-cotta blocks and reinforced concrete. The approval of materials is one of the important matters before the board, and it is probable that the board will approve also the various types of partitions that have been approved by the building department of New York City, says Safety Engineering.

In 1911 the New York City building department required that enclosure walls for elevators or stairs should be of brick at least 8 inches thick, or terra-cotta blocks at least 6 inches thick, in an angle iron frame, unless supported independently on fireproof construction at each story, reinforced stone concrete at least 3 inches thick, or reinforced cinder concrete at least 4 inches thick. Where conditions require it, these thicknesses are increased to meet the circumstances.

In 1913 gypsum blocks, at least 6 inches thick, were approved. Such blocks to be set in an angle-iron frame, unless supported independently on fireproof construction at each story. Hollow blocks are permitted, provided the webs and walls of the same are not less than 1½ inches thick. Blocks must be laid in properly retarded gypsum plaster mortar, or Portland cement mortar,

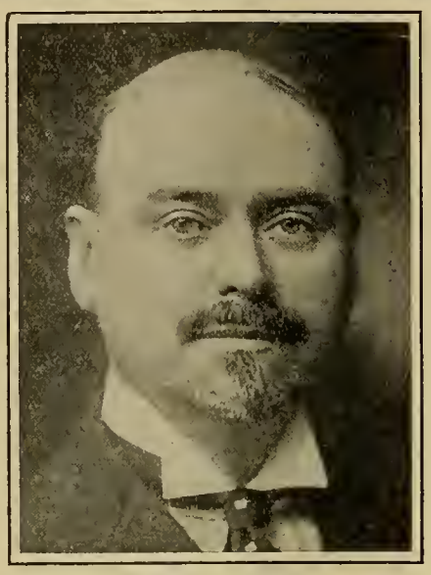
WHAT THE NEW ELEVATOR DESPATCHING SYSTEM IN THE WOOLWORTH BUILDING IS EXPECTED TO ACCOMPLISH.

By EDWARD J. HOGAN

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for the American Real Estate Co.

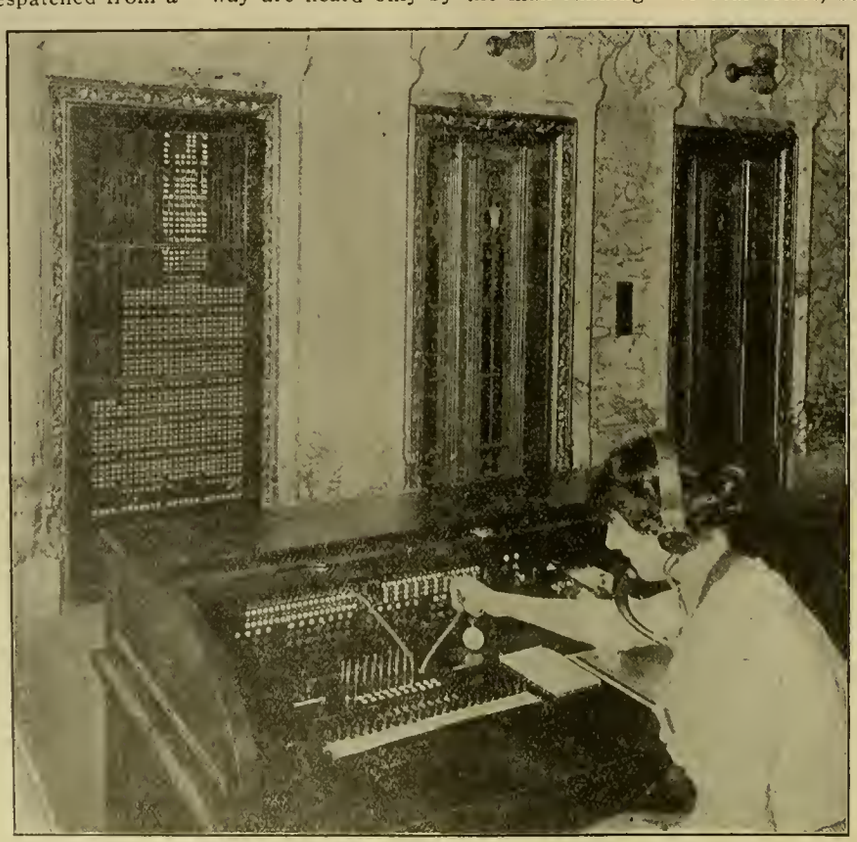
THE elevator despatching system in operation in the Woolworth Building has been designed with the view of ultimately eliminating the elevator starter in the main corridor, as well as making possible the supervision of all cars at all times, and to make one person responsible for the proper operation of passenger elevators and the adherence to a strict running schedule. With these matters taken care of, the hall man is able to devote his entire time to answering questions and the direction of traffic within the building.

The system, which is virtually in an experimental stage, has been in operation since the opening of the building, and is being carefully observed by the owners, architects, building manager and engineers who designed it. The Woolworth Building is the first building of any type to be equipped with the device, and if it fully meets the expectations of those interested, should come into universal use in office buildings, hotels and buildings of this type, where convenience and comfort of guests is one of the great objects, as well as the reduction of operating costs to the management.



The Elevator Group.

The 24-passenger elevators in the Woolworth Building are grouped according to express and local service, as well as according to the heights served by each. There are four local cars which run express to the fourth floor, and then local to the twelfth; seven cars running express to the twelfth, and local to the twentieth. Following these are the cars that run express to the thirteenth and local to the twenty-seventh. There are two cars that run express to the thirtieth, and local to the forty-sixth floor, and lastly the cars which make the high runs, express to the thirty-seventh, and then local to the fifty-sixth floor.



These elevators are despatched from a combination desk and telephone switchboard, located on the mezzanine floor of the building, and operated by a young woman, whose only responsibility is the despatching of the cars and a constant supervision over them for the purpose of maintaining the proper running schedule. This schedule is in operation between the hours of 8:30 A. M. and 5:30 P. M., during which time the despatchers sole duty is to watch those cars.

Directly in front of the despatcher's desk is a panel on which is a diagram of the lay-out of the elevators, the heights served by each marked off by a series of incandescent lights, each vertical row of lights representing the route of an elevator and each light representing a floor. Wires have been run from each car to this panel, and as the cars travel on their journey up and down the shafts, lights are flashed on the board in succession as the cars pass the floors that are indicated. On reaching the maximum height each car is, according to schedule, allowed to stand for eight seconds before descending. Should a particular car stay longer than the allotted time at any floor, the delay is noticed immediately by the operator, who then puts herself in communication with the operator of the car by means of the telephone. There is a telephone instrument installed in every car directly in front of the operator, as well as a megaphone placed on the side of the car and opposite his ear. Should the despatcher wish at any time to say something to the operator in regard to the service, cautioning for delay, etc., the megaphone is used. Directions in this way are heard only by the man running the car, and not by the passengers. If necessary at any time, and for any important reason, the despatcher wishes to have an answer from the operator, or a longer conversation is advisable, the telephone is used in a manner similar to the intercommunicating system, which is well-known to all. Both methods can be used at all times, the despatcher being able to talk while the car is in motion, equally as well as when it is stationary at any floor.

While this method of elevator despatch and control is practically in its infancy, and an experiment, it shows every probability of meeting the expectation of the engineers who designed it, and should mean much in the future to architects and owners of properties of the Woolworth Building type.

EDWARD J. HOGAN.

ELEVATOR DESPATCHING SWITCHBOARD IN THE WOOLWORTH BUILDING.

WHAT THE MANAGER DOES.

The Importance and Wide Scope of His Duties—The Next Convention.

By JOHN C. KNIGHT

Manager of the Metropolitan Building and Ex-President of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers.

SOME months ago I was asked by the editor of Record and Guide to assist him in laying out a series of stories regarding building management and to select some of the writers for these papers. I was also asked if I would not write one of the articles, and in order to do this and not encroach on the subjects which I know will be more ably taken care of by the gentlemen selected, I am going to write more of generalities than on any one particular subject.

The motto which appears under the title of the Record and Guide—"devoted to real estate, building management and construction in Greater New York and vicinity"—has always appealed to me. I, too, am devoted to those subjects, as they are my bread and butter.

I read recently in one of the magazines a story of a young child coming across on the ferry with its mother, and the mother, pointing out the Woolworth building, said: "There is the tallest building in the world"; and the child, looking over at Hoboken, Jersey City Heights and Manhattan, said: "Yes, Mother, it is."

Now the world of the average New Yorker, particularly of the New York building manager, like that of this child, is bounded by the North and East rivers and I feel that the Record and Guide is showing its devotion by selecting writers of these papers from other cities and giving to the New York man the experiences which have taken place in other parts of the country.

Very few New York managers have availed themselves of the privilege of membership in the National Association of Building Owners and Managers, and those that have, have been many times repaid for their expense and time by the papers and discussions that have been brought out and by the acquaintanceship of men in their line in other cities.

About Knowing as Much as Others.

Many New York men have expressed the belief that they did not need to attend these meetings, as they knew as much as the other fellows. Knowing many of the men as well as I do, I cannot but agree with them as to their ability, and yet a real live man in listening to discussions will get some point strongly fixed in his mind even if wrongly stated by a much weaker man, and in combating that idea will bring out from his own work some point that he would overlook if he kept always on his own work. It is much easier to detect an error someone else is making and apply it to your own case than to find it directly in yourself.

The meeting of the association this year will be held in July at Duluth, and Mr. J. E. Randall, of Chicago, the president, will plan a program and conduct a meeting that I hope will be attended by many New York men. I know of several New Yorkers who will be there and who will welcome, assist and introduce the other New York men. I am sure that anyone who attends once will become a member and an enthusiast.

Big Installations.

The average business man does not realize the existence of the building manager, and even though he may be a dweller in an office building, does not appreciate that the present type of building has only existed since 1893 and that the old janitor jokes have become obsolete. The manager has had only a short time to study depreciation and operation problems and other subjects of professional importance which are discussed at the association's convention.

Many office buildings have the population of small cities and carry on their elevators more passengers than many branch railroads. Many electric light plans and water-pumping installations in buildings are larger than the plants of small cities, and in one office building I am familiar with, there is a branch post office doing more business than the whole postal service of the city of Cleveland. The 1,200 telephones installed in this same building required 13,000,000 feet of wire, or 2,462 miles, under this one roof, which also covers 13 miles of plumbing pipe.

Practical Training.

The experience of caring for and operating such installations have trained up men, so that in the future problems of a new building will not be left to a board of puzzled directors or to architects who employ a structural engineer, a heating engineer, an electrical engineer and a ventilating expert.

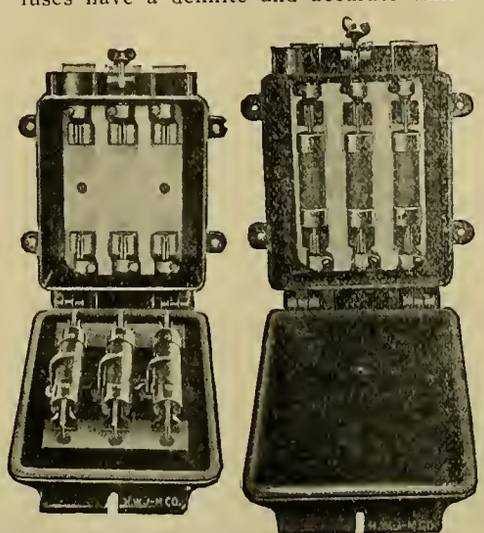
The time has arrived when the largest and best architects are also consulting with the sanitary engineer and the building manager.

The building manager from his experience can plan the location of elevators, suggest the best toilet arrangement, and so locate the plumbing pipes with reference to repairs and accessibility that upkeep may be minimized. He can advise as to electric plant or central station connection. He can appreciate the added cost of maintenance of certain beauty effects which so appeal to the architect.

An Eye for Details.

He can take care of details. Let me cite the case of where a manager had sticks cust so that all doors would be interchangeable and where the hinges and locks were put on in absolutely the same place not a half inch high or low. Another of where a manager condemned thresholds which were only 3/8 inch thick and had them so that the doors would open over all carpets or rugs. Another, where the ammonia of the refrigeration plant was placed under the sidewalk so that an accident would not put the building out of service.

After the completion of the building the managers can arrange an economical force for operation and can systematize the records so that economy will prevail in all departments.



USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration.

No Flashing of Fuse.

BUILDERS, architects, and others identified with the construction and equipment of hotels, apartment houses, hospitals, etc., will be interested in the description of a non-arcing fuse box known as hte "Noark" Service Box, manufactured by the Johns-Manville Co., Madison avenue and 33rd street.

The fuse used in this box represents the highest development in fuses of the enclosed type. Being designed on strictly scientific lines, blow at the proper time and under exact conditions, thus affording absolute protection. The fuses have a definite and accurate time interval of operation, varying from a few seconds on heavy overloads to the infiinitesimal part of a second on dead short circuit. As a result they are said to be more economical than even the cheapest form of open fuse, due to the fact that they require less frequent replacement. Compared with circuit breakers as protective devices they are noiseless, inexpensive and occupy minimum space. And as they can be refilled at small cost their use insures low maintenance expense.

An automatic "spot" indicator in each fuse tells when the fuse has blown. Vent screens placed in the end caps prevent the escape of the filling material when the fuse blows, but allow free egress of the entrained air, thereby permitting the filling material to quickly cool the metallic vapor and prevent any possibility of flame issuing from the ends of tube.

The first cut shows a water-tight service box which may be used as a combination cut-out and switch. The hooks shown in the illustration are attached to the handle in the cover of the box. To break the circuit the handle is turned so that the hooks catch the fuses from underneath. When the cover is raised, the fuses are lifted from their positions, thereby breaking the circuit. When it is desired to simply inspect the box, the handle is given a quarter turn, permitting the cover to be raised without disturbing the position of the fuses.

The second cut shows another type of water-tight box. It differs from the other type only in that the fuses can not be removed except by hand.

Steel Clad Rope.

ILLUSTRATED herewith is a sample of so-called steel clad rope. The American Steel & Wire Co. has designed this rope for use in places where wire ropes undergo a severe service such as in elevator shafts.

This rope, as its name implies, consists of an ordinary rope of six strands, 19 wires; six strands, 37 wires; or six strands, 61 wires, with hemp or wire center. The several strands of wire are given an additional protective covering in the shape of a flat steel strip, which is spirally wound to each of the strands before the rope finally is laid up. Some qualities of steel clad rope are made of different kinds of steel for special purposes. A glance at the illustration will show a fairly accurate conception of the method by which the additional wearing surface is obtained. It will be noted that instead of a series of wound wires each having several small contact points, each strand is a composite whole with one large contact point and wearing surfaces equal to the thickness of the strip. This makes the life of the cable much longer than that not so protected, in some cases reaching as high as 200 per cent., depending upon the conditions under which the rope operates.

The steel clad rope operates about as follows: The steel strips protect the round under wires over a period before it is worn through, then when the flat strips have been worn through to the rope strands, under severe service the protecting surface will gradually be pushed down into the space between the strands leaving the resulting rope still partially protected from external wear or abrasure.

Saves Plumbing Bills.

ONE great problem of office building and apartment house managers is to keep tenants and transients from throwing insoluble matter into the toilet and other waste pipes. Such articles as ink bottles, tin cigarette boxes, tin foil tobacco packages, vegetable matter and rags are frequently found to be the cause of stopped up plumbing systems. Unless the building owner has provided himself with some sort of a mechanical pipe ferret, plumbing bills soon become one of the biggest items of his overhead charges.

But here comes the J. D. Johnson Company, of 54 Cliff street, with the appliance shown in the two accompanying cuts. In one illustration is shown the device open, ready to be inserted into the clogged-up pipe. In the other, the device has been closed by the turning of one of the top handles and is ready to be withdrawn with the offending obstruction. The four jaws are so constructed that they will remove a wire, scrubbing brush, bottle, pieces of brick, stones, coal or any other obstruction. It can be converted into a plunger by wrapping cloth around the tenacles and then locking the ends fast.

Its value to contractors lies in the fact that it will enable them to make sure pipe is cleaned out before the building is turned over to the owners, thus averting the danger of fire with the service pipes clogged so the fire department cannot pump water to upper floors. It is applicable to all pipe sizes used in building construction.

MODERN TENEMENTS NEEDED IN CHELSEA

The Neighborhood Association Interested in the New Hartley Apartments as a Type — Selecting Sites and Influencing Capital.

By ARTHUR M. EAST

DESPITE all the preaching in favor of dispersing factories from congested districts and in favor of building "garden cities" in the suburbs, massive factories and office buildings continue to be erected in midtown, Manhattan, particularly in the neighborhood of Fifth and Sixth avenues and the Twenties. This great center of labor employment pours thousands of operatives and clerks upon the streets every noon hour, when even the casual observer has forcibly impressed upon him the serious nature of the problem growing up here. One naturally inquires where do they all live? One thing is certain, only a very small percentage live near by; most of them go over into the crowded East Side; the others have a long ride home to the Bronx, Brooklyn or Queens.

One wonders why it is that more of these people do not live near their work, and the answer is simple; there have been no additional dwellings built in the districts since these vast factory-loft buildings and department stores have been erected. Not in years has there been any tenement or flat building in the Chelsea and Greenwich districts.

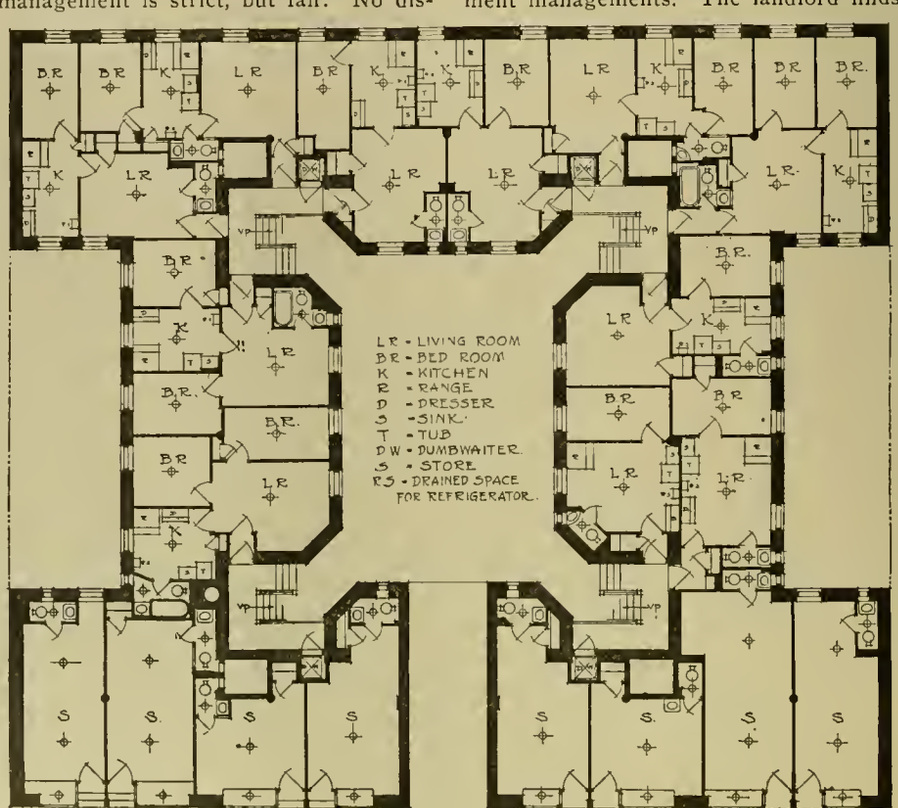
With ample vacant land and with a swarming population to house, why has there been no provision for this influx? The answer to this question is one that many are now seeking. Associations are forming to promote the erection of better homes. Evidently our laws favor loft buildings, which menace public health and comfort, and hinder new tenement buildings, which would conserve public health. Our tenement law may contain so much restrictive legislation as to defeat its own object; instead of producing a good home for the laborer or factory hand, the law may demand such refinements that it becomes impractical to produce a house at such a cost that there will be any financial return upon the investment, provided the rents are within the means of the average tenant.

Profit in Good Housing.

A good deal could be done, however, in housing, right in the Chelsea district, even with our exorbitantly high assessments and with our unnecessarily cumbersome and unscientific regulatory laws. Good houses can be built, and with more profit in them than is thought. It can no longer be done with as little money as years ago, nor can it be done upon such small plots.

A member of the Chelsea Neighborhood Association recently visited the building here illustrated. He was attracted to it on account of its "open-stair" feature. The building is the property of Mrs. Helen Hartley Jenkins, and is situated in West 47th street, the office being upon the premises, at number 525. Here is a building that has been opened but six months; it was immediately filled to overflowing, and there is a list of some thirty families awaiting an opportunity to move in when a vacancy occurs.

The building, to begin with, has great economy of plan. There are no waste spaces of any kind; no halls at all. All the space is utilized for the benefit of the tenant. The rooms are arranged about a hollow square and are only two deep, so that cross-ventilation is provided everywhere from the street to the court, or from the yard to the court. There is no usual stoop and vestibule every twenty-five or fifty feet. The unit division is 100 feet, at the center of which is a broad spacious entrance in which there is neither door nor gate. Through this enter the 96 families who ascend to their various homes in the fresh air of the open stairs, which are in the four corners of the large central court.



An Economical Plan.

The building, six stories high, is built of fireproof material. The walls, floors and 2-inch partitions are all solid brick, concrete or plaster, saving space and also protecting each tenant from the vermin of any other, and, of course, reducing maintenance to a minimum. From each landing of the stairs open four doors through which the tenant enters the vestibule of his own apartment, which consists of two, or three or four rooms as the case may be. The 4-room suites have baths, all other suites have a toilet-room containing a w. c. and a basin. Hot water and steam heat are provided. But the refinements have been kept within reason and reach of the people of the neighborhood. The management is strict, but fair. No discrimination is made against children. There are no arrears at all in the rents, which are paid weekly, upon Thursday, at the office on the premises. The receipt is placed upon a card which the tenant brings with his rent. The weekly system seems mutually satisfactory.

In the Office of a Model Tenement.

A visit to this office upon rent day or upon any other day is interesting to those who have fancied that a tenement must be a hovel, or at best a hard-hearted place in which nobody has any pride and where the sole object is for the landlord through an agent, to grind all he can out of the tenant. Most of the rentpayers come in smiling, with some pleasant remark to exchange with the young lady at the desk, who not only knows them all by name, but also has a keen interest in many of the families.

Some tenants request certain repairs to be made; faucets are leaking, shades have fallen down, or glass has been broken; but all have a due appreciation that everything cannot be done at once, although all know that the request will have adequate and proper attention. The postman delivers to the office packages which will not go into the tenants' mail boxes; department stores deliver goods there when tenants are out, and tenants leave matters to be attended to while they are away at work. This sort of management was introduced by Octavia Hill in London years ago and ever since has been followed by all up-to-date tenement managements. The landlord finds it pays to have a woman in charge, for the management of a tenement is really good housekeeping. The tenant likes to feel that there is someone who is constantly interested in the building and in the tenants. Such management is the best investment that the landlord makes, for thus is assured a mutual sympathy between tenant and landlord.

525-531 West 47th Street.

Social Uplift Features.

Two apartments are rented to a cooking-class from a neighboring settlement. The girls or young mothers are instructed in scientific cooking and practical housekeeping and sensible shopping. Two of the stores are about to be rented to a diet kitchen. In one portion of the building is a group of apartments rented as a boarding-house for a certain class of emigrants during the first weeks after their arrival, while their funds are necessarily low. And thus it is that there is always evidence of interesting activities, but all space is occupied at the uniform rent and according to the printed rules of the house. There is ample opportunity here for a branch of a nursery and kindergarten, for a proportion of the tenants have to close their rooms when they go to work. This necessitates taking their small children some distance until the day's work is over, or until the older children come home.

Such is the Hartley Open-Stair Tenement, the only open-stair tenement upon the West Side, but one well worthy of study and imitation for sites farther south that should serve the loft buildings of the Chelsea district. These tenements are within a block of the Hartley Settlement; the owner is also a large stockholder in the Open-Stair Tenement Company, of 502 to 520 East 77th street.

Mr. Knowlton Durham, the president of the Chelsea Neighborhood Association, which has offices at 1182 Broadway, in an interview with the writer said: "These open-stair tenements are said to be of a higher economic value necessarily from the nature of the plan than the usual tenement erected by the commercial builder. If such is the case, there should be some way of bringing this fact to the attention of the commercial builder as an incentive to a revival of building in lower Manhattan, where many new tenements are needed to take the place of the old shacks that are hardly fit for occupation." The members of the Chelsea Neighborhood Association have shown a vital interest in better housing that is taking the form of selecting suitable plots and influencing capital to build on them.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

COMMON BRICK TRYING TO CATCH UP WITH IMPROVEMENT IN OTHER DEPARTMENTS OF THE LOCAL MARKET.

More Building Money Available As Mortgage Situation Continues to Improve.

AS SOON as it became known that there was not the slightest chance for a shortage of common brick in this market between now and spring a volume of inquiry that took the Building Material Exchange by surprise developed this week. It seemed as though specifiers had been holding back because they feared that higher prices were to be expected with the first improvement in building construction operations, and, in consequence, they preferred to await developments or go into the market for substitute materials. Money is tight up the river and brick is plentiful, both of which conditions make a combination that does not conduce to produce high prices.

The price movement in all branches of the building material market is extremely steady. Prices of the leading lines, like steel, brick, cement, lumber, hardware, oils and concrete ingredients all are steady with the exception of common Hudson brick, which is a little weak except for the best grades.

In discussing price movements of building materials, the condition of the mortgage market has to be considered as a factor, perhaps more so than the actual filing of plans for building projects. In the case of building plans filed it must be remembered that there are frequently very good reasons for filing plans even before building operations are ready to proceed. In the conduct of the mortgage market, however, the freedom with which building money is being released signifies a freer ultimate market for building materials, and for that reason in times like the present the mortgage movement is a much safer barometer upon which to base future business operations.

Officials of all the big companies handling building money in one way or another, such as the Title Gurantee and Trust Co., the New York Title Insurance Co. and the U. S. Realty & Improvement Co., are unanimous in the opinion that the outlook for real estate and mortgages is improving. Recent developments would seem to prove that a return to more normal conditions in real estate in New York and vicinity and a broader market for mortgages are immediate possibilities. The outlook is unquestionably promising. During the month just closed the demand for mortgages has advanced over that of any month since last September. Mortgage money is now available both from institutions and individuals at lower rates than during the months of October, November or December.

Building money lenders inform the Record and Guide that there is no dearth of applicants for accommodation, but the scare arising from possible further legislative disturbance in the business world is such as to warrant continued conservatism.

But building money lenders are not the sole financial factors in the present market. They represent an element that builds on a large scale and is therefore of a more or less speculative character. Money that goes into such operations must, of necessity, be fully protected because it is subject to supervision by the State banking department.

There is another building element, however, namely, business necessity. There are manufacturing concerns that must expand, owners of property that must improve sites to insure payment of taxes, if for nothing more. These interests are the ones who are calling for material today, with hardly an exception.

THE BRICK MARKET.

Over 192,500,000 Common Hards Available for Winters' Needs.

COMMON brick in this market is still weak, but there is an improvement in inquiry. Quotations are made at $6 to $6.50 per M. for Hudsons(but this is only a nominal range. Raritans carry a $6 to $6.25 quotation. There are 11,500,000 brick lying on barges awaiting unloading as the week closes and 192,.00,000 available for consumption in this market between this date and the reopening of the brick manufacturing season. The average consumption of common brick for three months is 220,-000,000 without regard to season, so the conservative estimate of 192,500,000 available for the remainder of February, March and April is ample, especially since there is not likely to be a boom building movement until the construction season gets well under way.

Official transactions for Hudson common brick covering the week ending Thursday, Feb. 5, in the wholesale market, with comparisons for the corresponding period last year and a comparative statement of Hudson brick unloaded from barges for consumption here, follow:

STEEL PRICES ADVANCE.

Five Thousand Tons Bid On This Week in New York.

CONTINUED easing of the mortgage market and the final establishment of the fact that all danger of a shortage of any commodity this winter is over, combined to bring out a stronger inquiry for basic building materials this week. Steel reflects this change for the better, perhaps better than does any other department. So marked has been the improvement in the call for steel, the Carnegie Steel Company has advanced the price of soft steel bars from 1.20c. to 1.25c. base for shipment over the remainder of the first quarter, and it is reported that some of the larger independent manufacturers are asking 30 for second quarter shipments.

Standard pipe has been moved up a dollar a ton by the National Tube Company by lowering the discount half a point, following the booking of large orders. In the fabricated structural steel department the large bookings made in January are responsible for the stiffening of prices by the removal of the lower quoted range, leaving the tidewater quotation now a flat 1.36c. To show what the market is now offering, as proof that this change in tone is not merely a change in sentiment, the following bids were submitted this week:

For a loft building in 23d street, 1,200 tons; for the Astor estate building in 33d street, 2,000 tons; for the Geolet estate, at 19th street and Broadway, 800 tons; for a department store at New Rochelle, 600 tons, and for the telephone building at Melrose, 200 tons.

On the average proportion of basic filling material this tonnage figured on orders during the first week of February will take 1,584,000 common brick, about 500,000 front brick, 2,000 cu. ft. of building stone, 800 tons of terra cotta fireproofing, about 3,000 barrels of Portland cement for foundations and floors, about ten carloads of timber and about 100 tons of plumbing material, rough and fixtures.

When it is considered that this steel represents approximately 5,000 tons, and only a part of one week's building operations, and yet shows a gain of approximately 9 per cent. over the tonnage bid on by steel interests for the best previous week since the week ending October 16, it shows, first, that building money is loosening up and, second, that prevailing low pricese are proving a strong argument to investors for progress.

During the remainder of the first quarter, or until the building season gets fairly under way, weather conditions permitting, the Metropoliton district supply will be fully equal to demand in all branches, particularly in common brick, cement and lumber, and prices are not expected to fluctuate as a result of any strain on reserve stocks. Even in steel, first half prices probably will not further sharply advance although consumers may expect a stronger tone to meet the prevailing second half delivery prices now being quoted as the first half wanes.

LIME MAKERS CONVENE.

W. E. Carson, of West Virginia, Elected National President.

AT the convention of the National Lime Manufacturers held at the Hotel Astor this week more enthusiasm was developed for cooperation than has ever before been noted at these meetings. By virtue of the fact that the convention was again held in New York, the New York association assumed the role of host to the visiting delegates, and what the lime producers from out of town do not know about the Empire City at the end of this memorable week is not worth knowing.

But one thing that was impressed upon their mind was the need of a closer cooperation and a get-together policy in the matter of standardizing lime and its containers. The paper on this subject by E. O. Spackman gripped the attention of the delegates and the discussion that followed it showed that it had soaked well into the pores of lime producers from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Villa land to Canada.

When Charles Warner took up the matter of the use of hydrated lime the audience contained some architects and concrete construction experts who were desirous of knowing how extensive the use of this material has become as a waterproofing agency in concrete work. Mr. Warner's paper was calculated to remove any doubts that might have existed in specifiers' minds regarding this matter.

There were other important papers read by prominent men in the lime manufacturing and distributing business, but the one by C. J. Curtin on the price situation proved to be one of the most valuable and practical contributions to the conference.

The election of officers resulted in the selection of W. E. Carson, Riverton, W. Va., as president; Martin E. Deeley was elected vice-president; Fred. K. Irvine, of "Rock Products," was elected secretary, and C. W. S. Cobb, of St. Louis, was elected treasurer.

LUMBER MARKET WEAKER.

Mixed Car Shipments the Rule in Hardwood Department.

LUMBER, like common brick, has not reflected the improving tendencies of other departments of the building material market. In the hardwood section, for instance, the first week of the month was characterized by mixed car orders, showing that distributors were only filling immediate needs. Oak flooring is firm and in fair demand. Maple shows a slight decline in price, but instead of this tendency being due to a falling off in demand, it has been attributed to a disposition to encourage the shifting of manufactured material at the mills.

The condition of the North Carolina pine market does not indicate any immediate forthcoming change in prices, but long-leaf yellow pine flooring on A sap and lower grades is reported to be a little weaker on list as is the case with Eastern spruce. West Virginia spruce is also less rigid on list and short spruce is inclined to follow suit. Competition for business in spruce is reported to be so keen that prices show a wide range except upon grades particularly in demand, such as 1x8, 9 and 10 inch and 1¼ stocks of short spruce. Some of the mills are cutting only special sizes in desirable items in view of this situation in the market, but others appear to be basing quotations on the amount of stock on hand.

In this respect lumber is following the lead of other departments, but it so happens that lumber is being carried in greater quantity proportionately at the mills than is cement and kindred materials with the result that holders are inclined to move them at any price instead of holding back for the market to recover.

Cypress is picking up on demand, although it is not yet reflected in any price change, nor is there any immediate prospect of a shift either way. The tendency is to hold prices stiffly and make concessions rather than to arbitrarily shade.

Yellow pine is temporarily in a dumpy condition, but the relinquishing of railroad orders for steel means that ties will be in greater demand before long which will take care of the prices of structural grades and prevent any further shrinkage. Besides, many of the mills are closed for the holiday period which will take up much of the supply now on hand.

REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS GUIDE.

NEW YORK, FEBRUARY 14, 1914

BILLBOARD ORDINANCE NOT RETROACTIVE

Backyard Fences Hereafter Erected to Be Limited to Seven Feet in Height, Billboards to Ten Feet—No Signs Will Be Allowed Opposite Public Buildings.

THE income sometimes derived from vacant lots through renting the fences for billboards will be lessened should Alderman Curran's ordinance prohibiting billboards more than ten feet high pass the board and obtain the Mayor's signature. By the terms of the measure all ten-foot billboards must have openings at intervals and must be built of fireproof materials. This latter provision will cause much reconstruction, which of course the billboard firms will have to pay for, if they decide to continue the use of the medium. Ordinary fences less than seven feet high are left unregulated, but all ten-foot fences, whether used as billboards or not, must be built fireproof. Any skysign or billboard that injures the value of adjacent real estate, as many unquestionably do, or presents an obstacle to the use of fire apparatus, is prohibited under the ordinance.

The ordinance, which is not retroactive, will prohibit billboards from being hereafter erected within 350 feet of any land within the jurisdiction of the Park Department, and by the same law no billboard will be permitted on or near any parkway or drive within the jurisdiction of the department, or on any street where the board will be opposite any schoolhouse, church or public building. And nowhere without the consent of all property owners within two hundred feet and a permit from the Building Bureau.

Income from Billboards.

Large sums are in some cases derived from the sale of billboard privileges by real estate owners. High competition among the bill-posting and advertising companies for prominent locations at which to erect billboards or skysigns has served to raise the toll. Not so many years ago tickets to the "show" was all the owner asked, if the bill-poster would keep his walk clear of snow and ice in winter, but nowadays the billboard advertising business has become so considerable that ten thousand dollars a year is not an unheard of annual rental for an owner to exact for the privilege of putting a double-deck billboard around his lot or a huge electric skysign on top of his building.

Billboard Rental Rates.

Bill-posting and advertising companies guard with great secrecy from the public the sums they pay in any particular case, in order that the owners of other choice locations may not know too much, but it is a fact that at least one enterprising concern pays as high as twenty thousand dollars' rental in more than one case. Ten thousand dollars is the annual rental paid in a number of instances. There is no average price for billboard space, but in a general way it is known that the best locations are considered to be those where the most people pass.

Thus, Riverside Drive is rated higher than upper Fifth avenue, and Broadway in the neighborhood of 42d street highest of all. If you see a vacant lot in a high class neighborhood with double-decker billboards on two sides, the owner is getting about one thousand dollars a year from the advertising company, which helps considerably to pay his taxes. But for that he would give some architect a commission to build him a private residence on the site, or else an apartment house as an income producer.

The billboard companies intend to oppose to the utmost the enactment of the ordinance, and have already consulted ex-Chief Croker in respect to the alleged fire-danger from billboards. At the present time they have a case in court against the Superintendent of Buildings to see if they must comply with his order to build fireproof boards in certain cases.

Citations from the Ordinance.

The ordinance specifies that no fence exceeding seven feet in height shall be built without open sections in its surface sufficient to give a view of the premises. If within the fire-limits, it must be constructed of slats or other open-work, or else constructed entirely of incombustible material, except that paper posters may be pasted over the "solid surface", but no open-work section (which every fence over seven feet high must have) shall be covered.

Limit for Roof Signs.

A structure having a tight or closed surface erected upon or above a roof shall not exceed ten feet in height or forty feet in length. Structures not having a tight or closed surface may be erected to the height of twenty feet above the roof. A further allowance is made if a space of six feet is left between the sign and the roof for the firemen. The spaces in the structure must not be less than three feet wide or more than three feet apart.

No "structure" of the sort referred to may be erected on the roof of any tenement house, hotel or other dwelling, except upon a wholly detached private dwelling, or except that a hotel shall be permitted to have such a structure upon its roof when the same is used to identify or advertise the hotel itself only.

No sign, billboard, bulletin or advertisement of any description may be maintained across any doorway, window or opening in the wall of any building. No structure subject to regulation may be maintained upon the roof of any building other than a fireproof building.

No structure subject to regulation shall at any point exceed seven feet in height above the ground, if erected upon the ground, and no "such structure" shall be erected upon a roof unless capable of sustaining a wind pressure of forty pounds a square foot.

The restrictions in the ordinance do not apply to walls of masonry, as stone, brick, marble, terra cotta and concrete.

Must Keep Inside of Building Lines.

No structure for advertising purposes shall be erected outside of the building lines of any street or public place, except signs required by law or lawfully erected for public purposes. Exceptions are also made for shop signs, and for signs relating directly and solely to the premises, for contractors' signs in building operations, and for the signs of transit lines.

Within sixty days after the adoption of the ordinance every owner of a structure subject to regulation by the ordinance (except backyard fences not exceeding seven feet in height, and fences of open trellis-work, and except other fences not exceeding seven feet in height) shall register the same with the Bureau of Buildings, or shall either take down or remove them or so alter them as to bring them within the excepted classes as aforesaid. Any existing structure which is required to be registered will be illegal if not registered; but otherwise the ordinance will not be retroactive.

The Building Bureau will issue a certificate of registration for every registered billboard or sign and collect a fee of two dollars. After the adoption of the ordinance no new structure shall be erected except in accordance therewith, and plans and specifications must be filed with and a permit obtained from the Building Superintendent. Violators of this proposed law would face a penalty of imprisonment.

RESTRICTED DISTRICTS IN GERMAN CITIES

Observations of An American Traveler—Effect of Districting on Land Values An Open Question—But Districting Does Protect Good Neighborhoods.*

By FRANK BACKUS WILLIAMS.

TO the thoughtful person there is a satisfaction absolutely unique in the method and order of a formal garden from a perspective which shows its design as a whole, revealing its unity and determining purpose.

The same pervasive satisfaction comes to us at the sight of many a German city. From the vantage of a good viewpoint we see below us a nucleus of structures of all sorts built uniformly high and close, surrounded by belts or zones of buildings progressively decreasing in height and extent as compared with the lots they stand on, with a resulting progressive increase of green grass and trees to the city's very outskirts, almost rural in character.

Frankfort.

In the German city of to-day, as a result of the application of the principle of progressive gradation, the industrial district exists in many degrees of intensity. Frankfort, for instance, has its industrial districts, its mixed districts and its chief traffic streets, which are really a district by themselves; as well as its residential districts and the original or inner city where are still found the old undifferentiated conditions. In the industrial districts all industries are not only allowed, but favored in so many ways that by far the most of them are located there; and residences, with rare exceptions, such as rooms for caretakers and watchmen, are forbidden. In the mixed districts both manufactures of all sorts and residences are permitted. On the chief traffic streets business and the minor industries, as well as residences, are allowed.

This differentiation between industrial and residential districts in Frankfort, although far advanced, is not complete. The mixed district, for instance, contains both residences and manufactures. The purpose of this, both in Frankfort and elsewhere, is to house the workman near his work. Desirable as this is, the results of the mixed district in other ways, both for housing and for manufacturing, have been bad; for living conditions are injured by the industries, and the factories are crowded and hampered. A better solution would seem to be to create separate residential and industrial streets, making the street the unit of the district. In this way both residences and industries are segregated, and yet form part of the same neighborhood.

No Separate Business District.

The phenomenon of residences in the upper stories of buildings occupied on their lower floors by shops and offices occurs not only on chief traffic streets but everywhere, in cities, where shops and offices are to be found. This is true not only throughout Germany but everywhere in Europe, except on the continent to find the most expensive and fashionable of apartments over stores. There are in the large cities buildings occupied solely for business purposes; but they are rare. In none of the continental cities is there an actual business district. Even on the principal business streets of cities like Berlin—the Leipsiger or Friedrichstrasse, for instance—there is only here and there an isolated building in which there are no residences.

This lack of that most useful differentiation, the business district, is a great disadvantage. Unlike residences, business districts as far as conditions allow, should be centralized and concentrated, to the advantage of both business and housing. It is difficult to keep from feeling an un-Christian joy that Germany, which is ahead of us in so many phases of city construction, is at least behind us in this one.

Next, the application of the principle of progressive graduation, which is the principle introduced by the zoning system, was reapplied to the differentiation of the residential district and produced further developments in it. This was brought about in some cities by making the districts, elsewhere called zones, smaller, and, while still regulating them progressively, doing so without any constant or precise relation to any one center.

Dresden.

Dresden is an example of such regulation. Its district map is kaleidoscopic; and often the same districting appears in ten or twelve parts of the city. In this way, it is thought, regulation may more closely conform to, and more advantageously guide, development.

In other cities this same tendency toward smaller districts has produced results of a slightly different form. The rules for chief traffic streets within zones or districts have already been mentioned. The same development has occurred rather generally in all German centers. This is really only another method of splitting up the more primitive zones or larger district into smaller ones.

Dusseldorf.

Classification along this line has in Dusseldorf taken an essentially similar direction, although again slightly different in form. There, in addition to five zones covering the whole city, and rules for special streets, in many cases running through several zones, there are eleven classes of streets, also within the zones. These classes are in most cases created for various types of housing. The distinctions are often very minute.

There are, for instance, two classes of rules for one and two-family houses in blocks, the one with, and the other without, rear buildings; two classes similar in all respects to these, except that three-family houses are also allowed; two classes, alike in all respects to those first mentioned, except that in each case the houses must be detached, the required open spaces between the houses and the side lines of the house varying, however, in breadth; a class for the better sort of tenement houses, in blocks, with not more than two families in each story; a class for tenement houses similar in all respects to the class last mentioned, except that they are to be of cheaper and simpler construction and suitable for not more than three families on any one floor, etc.

When we remember that the lots on which these class restrictions are imposed are widely scattered throughout the zones and subject not only to class but to the various zone restrictions as well, we may come to the conclusion that in Dusseldorf differentiation has reached its uttermost limit.

Districting by Streets.

The system of regulation by streets is applicable universally. Broader districts are, it is true, at times necessary. Certainly the offensive industries should have a considerable tract quite to themselves. But even in this case the district will consist of a certain number of streets with the lots on them; and streets may, therefore, be used as convenient units for the district.

Munich was the pioneer in this system of districting by streets, adopting it in 1904. In 1912 Karlsruhe followed. Instead of any of the older forms or districts she now has sixteen classes of streets. According to present limitations it would seem that this system is destined to become the prevailing one in Germany.

Apparently the German himself is, on the whole, satisfied with districting as a system. A large and increasing majority of German cities have adopted it, and none of them has made any attempt to abolish it later, though in some cases an effort has been made to do away with a particular district or change its position altogether. In Frankfort the location of one of the old manufacturing districts is felt to be a disadvantage to the city as a whole; and, partly for this reason, a new one was created. The old district has not been abolished; but the natural extension of it is not allowed, and the new district is made as advantageous as possible, in the hope of attracting the industries located in the old.

The boundaries of districts, too, are often changed. Usually it is the business district which encroaches upon a residence district. This means a disturbance of living conditions; but as there are invariably more concentration and higher land values in the business than in the residence district the change produces higher prices for land, and there is little or no complaint.

Conclusion.

As a rule, districting does preserve the character of neighborhoods. This is an advantage in every way. It saves the waste of destruction, reconstruction and readjustment, inevitably attendant upon a change of character; and by making such a change impossible it steadies values. It prevents the conflict of alien activities to their mutual disadvantage. It raises land value in the only way possible without injury to anyone; for it increases the usefulness of the land at least as much as it does its price.

The effect of districting upon the general level of land values is an open one in Germany; the controversy on the subject heated and bitter; and the mass of literature with regard to it, already in existence, more than any one person can even read. Its effect on housing and on the health and vigor of the German people is quite another question.

REAL ESTATE MEN AROUSED BY OPPRESSION

Protest Entered at Annual Dinner Against Single-Tax Legislation, Confiscatory Labor Laws and Over-Regulation of Real Property.

CLOSE to one thousand men were seated at the one hundred and ten tables that filled the main floor of the Waldorf-Astoria banquet hall and overflowed into the boxes on the occasion of the annual dinner of the Real Estate Board of Brokers last Saturday evening. It was the biggest turnout in the history of Waldorf banquets, and the brokers themselves voted it the most enjoyable and significant to them, in that there was a definite theme for the speakers, and because a very emphatic protest was raised by the president in behalf of the board against the wrongs that are being committed against property owners through over-regulation and over-taxation.

By order of the Industrial and Building Codes Committee (Charles F. Noyes, chairman), reprints of articles that had appeared that morning in the Record and Guide, entitled "The Real Estate Board's New Activities," and "The Confiscatory Fire-Prevention Laws," had been distributed through the hall, and every one was therefore prepared for the pointed remarks which came from the toastmaster, President McGuire. Prof. Seligman's exposure of the Single Tax measure now in the Legislature was in line with the board's own exposure of the injustice done to property owners through the factory and fire-prevention laws.

The guests of the evening included J. Romaine Brown, Edwin A. Cruikshank, Geo. R. Read, Robert E. Dowling, Tax Commissioner Lawson Purdy, Borough Presidents Marks and Mathewson, Public Service Commissioner Williams, Persident Marble of the Merchants' Association, Allan Robinson, Captain Reynolds K. Townsend, Elbridge Gerry Snow, Charles H. Strong, Franklin Pettit, Michael Friedsam, Lewis L. Clarke, Abram I. Elkus, Frederick H. Ecker and Thomas Shall cross.

Neither the Governor nor the Mayor was present, but the Governor sent a long letter and the Mayor a good substitute in his young City Chamberlain. As wide publication has already been given to remarks made on the occasion, general public attention has been drawn to the pronounced stand which the Real Estate Board has taken against the stream of regulatory laws which the up-State legislators have permitted city politicians to put through—laws which many now suspect are mainly intended to make salaried places on the public payrolls for as many persons as the taxpayers can afford to maintain.

Should Rally for Self-Defense.

In his introductory remarks President McGuire said:

"Never has there been greater need for organized effort to protect the interests we represent. The real property owner has become the victim of theorists and faddists ready and willing to try any and all schemes, some new, others long since repudiated but now revived and masquerading under misleading titles. We have the Society for the Reduction of Rents and Taxes on Homes advocating the halving of the tax on buildings. Of the many questions confronting us this, perhaps, is the most serious, in that it is the most dangerous. It is the forerunner of the single tax. The revival of this legislation must now as when originally advocated be opposed by organized forces.

Existing Unjust Laws.

"The existing labor laws are unnecessary, burdensome, unjust, impracticable and grossly detrimental to property rights. The many conflicting violations placed upon property by the various departments are putting owners in many instances to wholly unnecessary expense. The board proposes to lend its best efforts in an endeavor to straighten out the unholy muddle caused by the conflict of authority in the State and municipal departments. That the fundamental values of property have withstood these many assaults is a proof that the real property value is secure. Nevertheless every effort should be made to amend the laws in such a way as to make them fair, just and reasonable."

Prof. Seligman Against a Popular Referendum.

Professor Seligman, of Columbia, directed his remarks against the proposed referendum on the question of reducing the tax rate on buildings and increasing the tax rate on land. He said in part:

"The agitation has been ingeniously managed so as to identify it in the popular mind with the project of lowering rents. This change in taxation, however, far from being a simple matter, is in reality one that calls for the most careful analysis and the most accurate knowledge of economic law.

"In the first place, will rents be lowered? So far as the tax on land is concerned, it must be remembered that in many parts of New York not a little capital must be invested in order to blast away the hills or to make the rock excavations. To the extent that these improvements are made in the land (not on the land) the tax will be shifted to the tenant; so that a part, at least, of the increased tax on land will go to increase rents.

"How about the tax on the house? It is said that taxes are like anything else—reduce the price and you increase the consumption. It is forgotten, however, that the demand for houses is strictly limited by the population. After the slack has been taken up, that is, after a certain fringe of the population who are now boarders and lodgers will occupy apartments of their own, the new equilibrium between housing and population will have been reached and there will be no further demand for new houses except that which comes from the normal growth of population. The only effect of a sudden exemption of houses from taxation will mean a building boom, to be followed by a collapse.

More Congestion Instead of Less.

"But what will be the social consequences of the change? It is claimed that it will lead to less congestion. We must distinguish between congestion per room and the greater congestion per acre. If the buildings are exempted there will be higher buildings in the slums and a greater congestion per acre. Even a building law will not remedy this, for if all buildings were built up to the maximum height there would be far more congestion that at present. But what is much worse is, that in all the other boroughs we would have a compact city as in Manhattan. There will be no open spaces, no gardens around the houses, no vacant lots. The evils of the slums will be spread throughout the entire metropolis. We shall have a worse congestion than at present.

Small Land-Owners Would Suffer.

"Furthermore, the real people who would benefit would be the rich and not the poor. The rich man who builds a mansion on Fifth avenue, the rich corporation that inhabits the Woolworth Building, on what theory of taxation should these be exempted? Again, all the modest house owners, where the land has come to be worth more than the house, will be forced out of their homes, and New York will become a city of lofty apartments. Above all the modest land owner will suffer. All land is not owned by speculators. Why should the small man who has invested his property in land have a part of that property confiscated? I do not object to the taking away of a part of the future increment of land values, because everyone will be warned in advance; but I do protest against the confiscation of actual property.

"We see, therefore, the essential complexity of the problem. It can be solved by no mere shibboleth such as that of lower rents. It is a matter for careful, unbiased and unprejudiced discussion. It involves considerations that the ordinary man in the street utterly fails to grasp. It is therefore of all questions the one least suited to a popular referendum."

Mr. Brisbane's Experiment.

Arthur Brisbane spoke on the merits of a single tax, but told of how foolish it would be to attempt to apply such methods in this country. The chief reason for this was that Americans want to own their lands and not hold them merely under a lease. He gave as an illustration his personal experience in a large tract of land in New Jersey. He is erecting twenty houses there which he has offered to workers practically rent free, but is meeting with difficulty chiefly through the fact that even the foreigners who want to work the land want to buy it outright.

Frederic T. Murphy, son of Patrick Francis Murphy, enlivened the proceedings with a humorous talk. Joseph P. Day read a dispatch from J. Clarence Davies at Palm Beach, and City Chamberlain Henry Bruere said a few words.

Mr. Bruere, speaking for Mayor Mitchel, said he thought that the Mayor would carry out his pre-election promise to sign any bill that might be presented to him providing for a referendum on the question of reducing the taxation on buildings.

The Governor's Letter.

Governor Glynn in his letter said: "I have pointed out to the public and to the Legislature that unless the State reduces its expenditures or increases its revenues from indirect sources New York will be compelled to raise millions each year by direct taxation. It is one thing to preach economy. It is another to practice it. After my appeal to the various State departments asking them to reduce expenditures I find that their requests for this year are $4,000,000 in excess of the appropriations made last year. I have called the attention of the State departments to this fact and have explained to them that I meant what I said. I have requested them to revise their requests for appropriations and explained that it is better for them to use a pruning knife on their budgets now than compel me later to resort to an axe."

As a souvenir of the occasion the Title Guarantee gave copies of Bromley's pocket and desk atlas of the Borough of Manhattan. As it contains a map of every block in the city, with every piece of real estate plotted thereon, the gift was a most exceptional and useful one. The Lawyers Title Insurance and Trust Company gave silver pencils each in a separate box. The Home Insurance Company presented every one with a leather wallet.

The dinner committee was composed of Messrs. Elisha Sniffin, chairman; Joseph P. Day, Edward L. King, Robert T. McGusty and Donald W. Brown.

BILLS IN THE CITY'S INTEREST

One Measure Would Exempt Dams and Other Water Supply Structures from Taxation—New City Departments.

FROM the bills already introduced in the Legislature at Albany, it is apparent that proposed amendments to the Greater New York Charter, the Tax Law, the Lien Law and the Tenement House Law will be prominent among the subjects to be discussed during the present session. Most of the notable bills affecting the Greater New York Charter are administration measures and will probably be enacted. Among these may be mentioned Senator Griffith's bill creating a central department for the purchase of supplies for the entire city and Senator Herrick's, establishing a department of licenses, which is to have the exclusive exercise of powers now distributed among a number of licensing authorities.

Bills of special interest to the real estate and building profession are the following:

In the Senate.

Int. No. 343. Whitney.—Amending the Housing Law (Chapter 774, Laws of 1913; new subdivision 17-a in section 2, and amending section 63) by providing that semi-fireproof dwellings may be built with an area not exceeding 1,250 square feet within the outside walls, not over three stories high above basement or cellar, with first story walls not less than 12 inches thick and second and third story walls not less than 5 inches thick. A semi-fireproof dwelling is defined as one in which the external and party walls are of brick, stone, iron, steel, concrete, reinforced concrete or other equally substantial and fireproof material. Semi-fireproof dwellings may be built with an area not exceeding 2,400 feet within the outside walls not over 3 stories high with walls not less than 12 inches thick. Such a dwelling may be built 4 stories if certain material is used. The bill makes detail specifications as to the kinds of material that may be used in various parts of the strctures. To Cities Committee.

Private Pavements.

Int. No. 358. Patten.—Amending the Greater New York Charter (section 948) by providing that pavements laid at private expense and accepted by the city prior to June 20, 1910, shall be deemed permanent pavements; that such pavements laid and accepted since June 20, 1910, shall be deemed permanent pavements if so classified subsequent to April 18, 1912; and that all other pavements laid at private expense and accepted since June 20, 1910, shall be deemed preliminary pavements. Whenever any pavement is laid to replace a preliminary pavement, if the cost of replacing the pavement exceeds the cost of the replaced preliminary pavement, the excess must be assessed upon the property deemed benefited, and the balance of the cost paid by the city. Same as Senator Patten's bill of last year (S. Int. 1742, Pr. 2259, of 1913). To Cities Committee.

Int. No. 359. Duhamel.—Amending the New York City eighty-cent gas act Cchapter 125, Laws of 1906; amendment to section 1) by fixing eighty cents as the maximum charge for gas in the Thirtieth and Thirty-first Wards of Brooklyn. Same as Senator Duhamel's bill of last year (S. Int. 78, Pr. 79, of 1913). To Miscellaneous Corporations Committee.

Int. No. 361. McClelland.—Amending the Tax Law (sections 220, 211, 221a and 243) relative to the transfer tax. It abolishes the distinction between tangible and intangible property for purposes of the transfer tax. All transfers less than $500 are exempt from the transfer tax and all transfers to a father, mother, widow or minor child of the decedent are exempt to the extent of $5,000. The bill substitutes an entirely new schedule of rates of taxation on transefers of property as follows: Transfers to a father, mother, widow or minor child in excess of $5,000; 1 per cent. on amounts to and including $25,000; 2 per cent. on the next $75,000; 3 per cent. on the next $200,000; 4 per cent. on the balance. Upon transfers to a brother, sister, wife or widow of a son, or the husband of a daughter of the decedent: 2 per cent. on any amount up to $25,000; 3 per cent. on the next $75,000; 4 per cent. on the next $200,000 and 5 per cent. on the balance. Upon transfers to other persons the tax is to be 5 per cent. on amounts up to $25,000; 6 per cent. on the next $75,000; 7 per cent. on the next $200,000; and 8 per cent. on the balance. There are also other provisions. To Taxation and Retrenchment Committee.

New Franchise Tax Schedules.

Int. No. 362. McClelland.—Amending the Tax Law (sections 181, 182, 185, 193 and 197) relative to the franchise tax on corporations. It substitutes an entirely new schedule of rates as follows: ¾ of a mill on each $1.00 of the par value of the capital stock if no dividend is declared; 1½ mills on any portion of capital stock on which a dividend of less than 6 per cent. is declared or made. The stock is to be assessed at not less than its actual value and not less than the average price at which it is sold during the year. But if this would produce a less amount than a tax of ¾ of a mill on the par value of all the stock issued then the tax is to be at the latter rate. Where a dividend of 6 per cent. or more is declared on any stock, the tax is to be at the rate of ¼ of a mill for each one per cent. of dividends on each dollar of the par value of such stock. A minimum tax of $2.00 is provided. There are also other provisions regulating the time of filing of required reports. The bill also makes the tax applicable to every foreign corporation doing business in the state except banking corporations, fire, marine, casualty, and life insurance companies, co-operative fraternal insurance companies and building and loan associations. To Taxation and Retrenchment Committee.

"Improvements" Defined.

Int. No. 370. McClelland.—Inserting in the Poor Law a new section (31) authorizing the Common Council or Board of Aldermen in each city of the first or second class to establish municipal lodging houses. Such a lodging house in a city of the first class must have an aggregate capacity of at least one per cent. of the population of the city; if in a city of the second class, a capacity of at least one-fourth of one per cent. of the population of the city. The necessary money for the support of municipal lodging houses is to be raised by taxation in the city, but the state is to reimburse each municipality at the rate of 5 cents per night for each person lodged. Lodging houses are to be in charge of the overseer of the poor, or like officer in each of the municipalities. To Cities Committee.

In the Assembly.

Int. No. 441. McGrath.—Amending the Greater New York Charter (sections 1027 and 1035) by directing the collector of assessments and arrears, within 60 days of the time set for the sale of any tax lien, to give notice to all interested parties of such sale, providing they have filed in the office of the comptroller a memorandum definitely describing the property and giving their names and addresses. The bill also provides that no foreclosure action shall be brought by the holder of any transfer tax lien, without giving printed notice to the last owner of record, and other parties in interest.

Int. No. 442. Murray.—Amending the Lien Law generally (sections 2, 4, 7, 10, 13 and 17). Among other changes, it provides that the term "improvement," when used in the lien law, shall include the drawing of any plans or specifications by an architect or engineer, and the making of any surveys for the proposed erection, alteration or repair of any structure. Structures erected on land and temporarily attached, so as to be removable from place to place, are included within the provisions of the law. The time within which notices of liens are to be filed is extended from ninety days to four months after the completion of the contract, or the final performance of the work, or the final furnishing of materials. When a lienor, who has filed a lien after the commencement of an action and before trial, makes application to the court to be made a party, the court must direct him to be brought in by proper amendment.

Int. No. 476. Knight.—Amending the Lien Law (sections 201 and 202) by reducing from ten days to one week the time, after service of notice of lien, within which the lien must be paid. It also permits the sale of personal property to satisfy a lien after ten days from the publication of notice of sale. The present provision is that fifteen days shall elapse after the first publication of such notice.

Int. No. 490. Garbe.—Amending the Real Property Law (section 450) by providing that cemetery lands are to be subject to special assessments for street openings and street improvements, including the laying of sewers, except in the case of cemeteries not over three acres in extent owned and used by religious associations. They are also to be liable for their share of the expense of the condemnation proceedings in opening the streets when this expense is assessed on adjoining property to be benefited.

Int. No. 491. Goldberg.—Amending the Greater New York Charter (section 837) by directing the commissioner of docks to set aside a recreation pier at the foot of East 70th street on the East River.

Would Hurt Borrowing Capacity.

Allan Robinson, in a talk before the Prospect Heights Citizens' Associations in Brooklyn, on the question of the single-tax and the Herrick-Schaap bill, said:

"This is how the scheme will work out. On an investment of $100,000 one naturally expects an income of about $5,000. If this is reduced by taxes to $2,500 it follows that the property becomes worth only $50,000 as an investment. In other words its assessed valuation is reduced. The single tax would reduce the assessed valuation of property in New York City by $400,000,000 and this means that our borrowing capacity would be reduced, because the debt limit is thereby lowered 1- per cent., or $40,000,000. This will stop our subways, our docks and all our other civic improvements.

"Vancouver is usually cited as a proof of the success of the single tax. Yet instead of lowering rents, stopping speculation and relieving congestion we find that rents are higher, speculation increased 200 or 300 per cent., congestion become so great that a limit had to be set on skyscrapers, and the acutal amount of building fallen off during last year.

"The single taxers are becoming Socialists. They deny it now, but men who have gone so far will go farther. Joseph Fels is spending $100,000 a year in their campaign. It is possible that they might get the bill through and that Mitchel would sign it, but I do not believe that he knows what it is. Bruere admitted, after hearing Arthur Brisbane and Professor Seligman riddle it, that perhaps Mitchel had been carried away by the enthusiasm of youth."

TO BRING ORDER OUT OF CONFUSION

And Eliminate Conflicting Orders. This Will Be the Principal Work of the New American Society for Fire-Prevention.

THE American Society for Fire Prevention having been organized to do things which the National Fire Protection Association never has done, and does not consider within its province, there is no reason, in the view of ex-Alderman A. W. Herbst, founder of the first-named society, why the utmost harmony should not exist between the two. In a letter which Mr. Herbst has written to President Kohn of the National association he says there are many organizations in existence throughout the United States aiming at the reduction of the fire hazard, but that the field of endeavor is so large there is room for all. Each can do its good work, and each should be encouraged by every other organization. He says the very fact that the National has been in existence for many years should be all the more reason why it ought to welcome new blood and new energy into the field:

"We here have not been at all ignorant of the monumental character of the work ahead, but we at least have realized that every agency working to-day for the common cause has ample opportunity for beneficent effort for a generation to come without any good reason to be considered as treading on the toes of anyone else.

What the New Society Is Doing.

"Allow me to enumerate a few things that we are doing and which seem to be within our own special province. In the first place, we are working energetically with real estate owners, constructors, architects and financiers who are engaged in the erection of large buildings, to the end that when specifications are prepared they shall require all that can be specified to be of fireproof construction. Your organization, on the other hand, as I understand it, devotes its energies to the preparation of standards, and the education of the people to the observance of these standards.

"I found, and your personal observance will bear me out, that in addition to making such standards, militant and aggressive work must be done to overcome powerful, selfish interests and the manipulations of partisan political coalitions, in order to receive official recognition of these standards in the form of absolute legislation.

Its Greatest Work.

"Another work largely occupying our attention, possibly the greatest work we have on for some time to come, is through an educational campaign and general newspaper publicity to reduce, and possibly to eliminate absolutely, the conflict of authority, with resultant conflict of orders and rulings, between various city and State departments throughout the country concerning building construction and fire prevention. As our little booklet outlines, this conflict of authority has worked vast hardship on property owners and has done more than any other one thing to create resentment on the part of the general public to the subject of practical fire prevention. Your organization, I believe, has done little or nothing to cope with such conditions. Our organization, I believe, is making it a prime reason for existence.

"Furthermore, the enactment of reasonable and honest building codes, not only for New York City but for other municipalities throughout the country, is another field of activity in which we not only can be extremely useful but are proving every day now that we are useful. My own connection with building code work in this city has given me an experience that is valuable in this direction, and this experience should be welcomed by all interests favoring a reduction of the fire hazard. This is a field in which your organization is not active, and this held readily can be extended, as we now are extending it, from the local governing bodies of various cities to the legislatures of the various States.

Safe Housing of Records.

"The extension of the Public Records laws of a few of our Eastern States, notably New York, so that other States can benefit by the experience of New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island and New Jersey, and provide for the adequate and safe housing of their important documents, such as wills, deeds, vital statistics and other records kept by county, town and village clerks, to other States of the Union, is still another field in which we properly can be active. It alone would justify our presence in the field as an organization for fire prevention, without properly incurring the disapproval of the National Fire Protection Association.

"In view of the courtesy that you showed me in writing so exhaustively on the subject, and in view also of the fact that you stated that you would use your letter as an answer to certain of your correspondents who had inquired of you regarding our organization, I also am writing to you in extenso. Should you, upon careful reflection and study of the above details, find that the good work of this society might benefit the public in the great work in which both organizations are engaged, and might supplement substantially the efforts of your society, although in some slight details we might appear for a moment or two to be encroaching, I would suggest that in such an event a conference between you, as president of your organization, and myself, as one of the officials of this society, might be of advantage.

"Our feeling is that the field is broad enough for all, that each has its function to perform, and that any organization, no matter how long standing, can be aided by co-operation from other sources. Any organization that desires to welcome co-operation and is not actuated by an inclination to stifle co-ordinate effort, will find us ready and willing to do our share toward pulling the load."

Held in Abeyance.

Seven thousand new firms opened offices in New York last year, most of them settling south of Chambers street, according to the Real Estate Board's Bulletin. The number that moved away is not given, but in the natural course of events there will come in due time a very complete tenancy of the usable offices in the district. The only question concerns time and fitness. An immense amount of new space is being put on the market, too much to be absorbed readily, and some of the old buildings will rent less easily because of having their light dimmed by the new skyscrapers and of being over-shadowed in other ways. But sooner or later metropolitan demand evens up fairly well with supply, and there are important economic and commercial changes coming which will accelerate the demand.

One big building project that has been held in abeyance since the summer of 1912 is still in an uncertain stage. Plans for the erection of the new Western Union Building, on Broadway, twenty stories in height and to cost $8,000,000, have not yet been circulated for contractors' bids, notwithstanding that the annex at 14 to 18 Dey street is practically completed.

The delay is attributed to complications in the government action in the case of the American Telegraph & Telephone Co. and its relations with the Western Union Telegraph Co. Dow, Jones & Co. announced about two months ago that the Western Union Co. had asked permission to withdraw the property of the company at 195 Broadway from the mortgage given as security for an issue of $20,000,000 4½ per cent. 50-year refunding and real estate mortgage bonds, all of the issue being now outstanding.

The Western Union building has a frontage of 75 feet on Broadway and 275 feet on Dey street with an L to Fulton street. The value of the present land and building is estimated at about $3,000,000. If the arrangements of adjustment with the government do not interfere finally with the project, this property will be sold to a syndicate which will organize a company in which the Western Union Co. will have an interest.

FIREPROOF TENEMENTS.

The Schneiderman Bill Would Add to Construction Costs and Raise Rents.

The amendment to the Tenement House Law as proposed by Assemblyman Schneiderman in his bill No. 243, just introduced in the Legislature, that all Tenement Houses hereafter erected over four stories in height be fireproof, is certain to meet with great opposition on the part of builders and real estate operators. Mr. G. Richard Davis, of the firm of A. L. Mordecai & Son, who is chairman of the Allied Real Estate Interests' building committee, said:

"For the past five years we have been adding to our laws governing building construction so many and varied regulations that the cost of construction has been increased from ten to twenty per cent. It is undoubtedly true that many of the new laws were necessary changes, and those which added to the safety of the tenants by requiring additional means of exits and fireproofing, and by protecting the requirements for light and air, are such as we all must agree to.

"It nevertheless is a fact that it is almost impossible today to erect tenement houses and comply with the new laws governing their erection and still keep the cost low enough to enable us to rent finished apartments at anything like a reasonable rent. This is true even in the most remote parts of the Bronx where lots can be purchased at from $1,000 to $3,000. The tenement house cannot be built cheaply enough to permit the owners to rent rooms at the old-time prices, such as four to five dollars a room.

"The result is that the old tenement houses, which are unsanitary but cheap in rent, are overcrowded, and the congestion of population, about which there is so much complaint, is due largely to the very conditions which such a law as Assemblyman Schneiderman seeks to create."

Steel Works to Tidewater.

Official denial is given to reports that the Bethlehem Steel Company is negotiating for a tract of land at Bayonne and no confirmation can be obtained for an earlier report that inquiries have been made at South Brooklyn in behalf of other steel interests desiring to purchase either a terminal or a manufacturing location. Nevertheless the very general belief in real estate circles that there is something hatching is supported by the logic of national and economic events. Ore is not going to be railed from the seaboard here to Pennsylvania from South America and back again in the form of steel products for long, without there being a very careful consideration by steel interests of the advantages of having export plants on tidewater.

—The population of White Plains has doubled in ten years, being now 22,000.

Inspectors for the Public Service Commission have verified the statement of complainants before the commission that the car service on the Sixth avenue and Eighth avenue surface lines is infrequent and insufficient. The commission, it is understood, will order more cars to be put on.

Rentals in the old wholesale section have not on the whole noticeably improved since the great migration to uptown centers, but vacancies made within a year have been more than made up by the incoming of new trades, and some local benefit is expected from the operations of the new occupancy law relating to factories.

The improvement of the East River and Hell Gate in New York harbor, a project that calls for an ultimate expenditure of $13,400,000, was approved this week by the House Committee on Rivers and Harbors. An initial appropriation of $500,000 will be made to begin work. Municipal and State authorities and the Engineer Corps of the War Department have indorsed the project.

According to the Automobile Chamber of Commerce, the increase in fatalities caused by motor vehicles is due not to greater recklessness in driving but to the larger number of cars in use. The mortality rate per 1,000 automobiles registered is said to have remained stationary. Yet the increase in fatalities from 274 in 1911 to 451 in 1913, throughout the State, is unquestionably larger than might have been expected in view of the more stringent traffic regulations of the last year or two.

Since Lloyd George's land taxes went into effect a number of realty holdings in England and Scotland have been put upon the market. The latest to find a buyer is the freehold estate in the barony of Assynt, Sutherlandshire, belonging to the Duke of Sutherland. The purchaser is John William Stewart, a railroad contractor of Vancouver, who is to pay $300,000 for it, if the deal is sanctioned by the courts. The property is entailed, which accounts for the necessity of submitting the transaction to a judicial review.

Two Wise Decisions.

The Public Service Commissioners have finally adopted two wise decisions. They have decided to connect the Lexington avenue subway with the Park avenue subway by means of a diagonal tunnel under the Grand Union Hotel, and they have decided to place the express station of the Broadway subway at 42d street instead of at 47th street. To one who is not an official the commissioners seem to have taken an unnecessarily long time to reach two decisions the need of which has from the beginning been fairly obvious; but they have decided right in the end—which is the important thing. The location of the express station of the Broadway subway at 42d street will in particular confer large and lasting benefits upon the travelling public of New York City. Long Acre Square is the most important meeting point of the two systems, as well as one of the most important centers of traffic in Manhattan.

The location of two express stations at 42d street will enable Brooklyn passengers to reach the west side of Manhattan and the Bronx with the smallest amount of inconvenience; and it will perform a corresponding service in respect to Brooklyn for the inhabitants of the West Side and the Bronx. It will give passengers on the Brooklyn Rapid Transit an easier connection with the Grand Central Station and an easier way of reaching the places of amusement and the shops on and near 42d street. It will also give the lower West Side of Manhattan better access to certain parts of Queens than they could otherwise obtain. The result will undoubtedly be the conferring on the Long Acre Square station of the primacy among all the stations on both branches of the dual subway. In the course of time more passengers will embark, disembark and transfer at that point than at any other point in the whole city, and, of course, correspondingly extensive arrangements will have to be made for the accommodation of this traffic. It will mean the construction of a capacious concourse, leading to and from the several subway platforms, and along this concourse more people will pass than along any other footway in the city. It will enable a passenger both to transfer from any one subway to any other subway and to return to the surface at any part of Long Acre Square as far north as 43d street.

The two express stations will stretch down Broadway and Seventh avenue as far south as 40th street and ought to make the property in that immediate neighborhood peculiarly available for theatres. In reaching this decision the commission has deserved well of the people of New York, but the way to deserve better of them will be to avoid further delays and to concentrate all their energies on accelerating the construction of the new system. The additional delay of every month is enormously costly to the property owners and people of New York City. The most troublesome technical questions have now been decided, and the knotty engineering or financial problems which remain should be quickly disposed of. Every section of the new system should, if possible, be placed under contract during the next few months.

Confiscation Through the Single-Tax.

The president of the Manhattan Single-Tax Club published in the last issue of the Record and Guide a defence of the single-tax which is worth a little consideration. Mr. Mason is a very liberal advocate of the single-tax. He does not wish to confiscate existing land values. He says: "While I believe that land values are created by the community and should have gone to the community from the beginning, I also believe that having made land a subject of sale and purchase for centuries we are morally estopped from taking from the land owners their present possessions." He seeks, consequently, to apply the single-tax without confiscation, and this he believes can be done by the gradual appropriation by the city of the $150,000,000 which, according to him, represents the annual increase in land values.

Without admitting Mr. Mason's premises, we may none the less dissent from his conclusion. If, as he says, the community is "morally estopped from taking from the land owners their present possessions," he has assuredly pronounced a moral condemnation on the single-tax, for the single-tax would most assuredly result in confiscating a certain part of existing urban land values. The result of carrying out the plan which Mr. Mason proposes, of lowering the tax on buildings by $10,500,000 every year for five years, would be to deprive a large number of real estate owners of their property. Mr. Mason's calculation is based upon an average annual increase of land value in New York City, amounting to $150.000,000; but he overlooks the fact that of late years there has been no such increase in land values. The constant augmentation of taxes has resulted in the appropriation by the city of a large part of any increase which may have taken place. The additions which have been made of late years to the assessed valuation of real estate have been due to an attempt to level up these values for purposes of taxation. They do not for the most part represent an increase in the price at which real estate can be sold. Under conditions now prevailing in the New York real estate market the increased taxation of ground values would simply mean the confiscation of existing ground values and in many cases the partial wiping out of the security for the mortgage.

Even if, however, the annual increase of land values should amount, as Mr. Mason says, to $150,000,000 a year, his plan to impose the single-tax would still result in confiscation. He must know that the increase in ground values is not spread evenly throughout the city. Some property would have increased considerably in price. Some property would have been only moderately affected; and, finally, some property would have either diminished in price or remained unaffected. In the case of the last two classes of real estate the transfer of the building tax to the land would certainly result in the confiscation of part or all of the value of the land. Thus any method of imposing a single-tax such as that proposed by Mr. Mason would result in a gross discrimination. The increased land tax might be carried with ease by some taxpayers, whereas in the case of others it would mean severe and probably irremediable loss. The only way in which the city government could appropriate some of the increment in real estate values without injustice is by means of the increment tax.

Cannot Afford to Bridge the Hudson.

The people who favor a Hudson River bridge have been getting very active of late and intend to make an effort to secure the legislation which is necessary for the construction of such a connection between New York and New Jersey. The terms of the bill divide the cost, which is estimated at between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000, between the city of New York and the neighboring counties in New Jersey. It is safe to say that any such legislation will meet with vigorous opposition on this side of the river. New York is not in any position to spend $20,000,000 or $25,000,000 on a Hudson River bridge. The city cannot afford the expenditure, and its inhabitants would not derive any benefit from its construction commensurate with the expense. When the first Brooklyn Bridge was built, Brooklyn paid two-thirds of the cost, while Manhattan paid only one-third, a division which fairly represents the proportionate benefit which the two sides of the Hudson River would derive from a similar connection. But even if New Jersey were willing to pay two-thirds of the cost New York would not be interested enough to contribute the remainder. One or two traffic tunnels are all that is needed to accommodate the vehicles which need to cross under or over the Hudson River. The taxpayers have spent enough money on bridges. They are a luxury—in which not even New York is rich enough to indulge.

Untaxing Buildings Would Make Realty Investments Uncertain.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

It seems from the article, "In Defense of the Single Tax," by Mr. Alfred Bishop Mason, president of the Manhattan Single Tax Club, in your issue of February 7, that both Prof. Joseph French Johnson and I were mistaken in our opposition to the single tax. I can believe this of myself, but not of Professor Johnson.

I had an idea (and possibly Prof. Johnson had it also) from what Henry George and other single taxers have written scores of times that the single tax advocates proposed to levy a tax on land which would equal its income and destroy its selling value. Now comes Mr. Mason, describing himself as a single taxer, who proposes a perfectly obvious increment tax, which is not a single tax at all. To call it a "single tax, limited" is no more likely to make it pleasing to land owners than the highwayman who promises not to take your watch if you give him your purse.

From the tax assessors we have the statement that the annual increase in the value of land in New York City amounts to $150,000,000. If that is true, it amounts to only 3 per cent. on the assessed valuation of land in the city, which is in round numbers $5,000,000,000. This is less than if the money invested had been loaned on mortgage.

This increase of $150,000,000 is made up of several items, among them one of $15,000,000 in assessments, which is a contribution to capital account from earnings of labor and is not an unearned increment, but belongs to the owners.

Another item is an increase in the value of land by reason of the erection of buildings on it. This is not an unearned increment, but also belongs to the owners of the buildings. On the other hand, the assessed value of buildings and improvements is $3,000,000,000 in round numbers. Buildings decrease in value at least 5 per cent. a year, or $150,000,000, which equals the increase in land, including the contribution from assessments.

Our investments in land have been based on the theory that where there is a decrease in the value of buildings it is made up by an increase in the value of the land. This makes for steadiness of values and accounts in large part for the confidence investors all over the world have in New York City real estate. Who would be benefited by making real estate investments uncertain, as would be the case if the buildings were the only security? Is it to be supposed that cheaper rents would result?

Overlapping Municipal Departments.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

I have read with considerable interest in the Record and Guide the article on overlapping of department orders and the resulting confusion. This matter is nothing new to the architects practicing in this city who have complained for many years of this ridiculous condition; in fact, ever since the enactment of the present Tenement House Law, which was made ridiculous in its enforcement by former commissioners, we have endeavored to have this department consolidated with the Building Department, where it properly belongs.

The public at large is being hoodwinked in the enactment of the various new laws in the interest of the working or industrial community, who derive but little real benefit from such enactments; but they, as well as the taxpayer, must bear the burden of having these laws carried into effect by an army of inspectors, etc.

Whenever a new department has been created it must be headed by a high-salaried commissioner, with his staff of assistants, suitable headquarters, etc.; otherwise the department would be of little value; and this, of course, costs money.

If the entire work as now done by the various separate departments where consolidated under one head, and that the Building Bureau, the work as now required to be done would be accomplished in a systematic manner without the present annoyance and conflict of the various departments and at a cost of but little more money than now required by the Building Bureaus of the city.

Without going into details, the appropriation for three of the city departments are as follows:

Tenement House Department..	767,109
Fire Prevention	259,425
Total	$1,781,644

What sums are used by the Water, Sewer, Health, and Industrial Departments to keep the inspectors busy I am unable to say. ADAM E. FISCHER.

Local Assessments for Playgrounds.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

In view of the movement of the Old South Brooklyn Civic League, the application of the Harlem Chamber of Commerce, and the bill introduced in the Assembly by Assemblyman August Flamman of Kings County, for the acquisition and condemnation of property in various sections of the Boroughs of Manhattan and Brooklyn for playground purposes, the Brooklyn Board of Real Estate Brokers has adopted the following:

Be it resolved, that we, the Brooklyn Board of Real Estate Brokers, desire respectfully to protest against any such further expenditure of the public moneys for the purpose outlined, particularly in view of the number of small parks scattered throughout the city, portions of which are and should be made available for playground purposes without detriment to the park or the neighboring property. And we recommend that the policy established by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment in the fall of last year whereby the cost of the acquisition of the Brownsville playground is to be assessed upon a certain local area be strictly adhered to in all such applications for local playground sites, such being the most fair and equitable to the taxpayers at large.

And be it resolved, that there is absolutely nothing whatever in this resolution that could be construed that this board is opposed to playgrounds. On the contrary, we are very much in favor of playgrounds under the above conditions.

And, further be it resolved, that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to His Honor, the Mayor, the Comptroller, the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, the chairman of the Sinking Fund Commission, the presidents of all the boroughs, and the President of the Board of Aldermen.

BROOKLYN BOARD OF REAL ESTATE BROKERS,

Keep the Public Service Commission Out of Politics.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

Those of us who have been actively identified with the plans for rapid transit improvement in New York during the last three years, are now vitally interested with the public at large regarding the appointment of a commissioner to succeed Commissioner Eustis in the Public Service Commission. There is evidence of a growing tendency to regard the appointments to the Public Service Commission on the basis of political expediency rather than on the basis of public welfare. There is also evidence of a disregard of the geographical divisions of the city.

The commissioners' oath of office, of course, covers the entire city, but it has always been felt that there should not be a preponderance of commissioners from one locality. Commissioner Eustis has been regarded as especially qualified to maintain the interests of the Bronx in the general development of plans for the city at large. In the consideration of his successor, however, many names have been advocated which have no identification with this section of the city, or even with transit improvement, although there are at least three or four Bronx men who have made a careful study of municipal transit, and who are also familiar with the other departments of work coming under the jurisdiction of the commission.

Anyone who has studied rapid transit in New York and has studied the methods of European cities, including transit and other branches of municipal utilities, and especially those in German cities, cannot fail to realize the importance of a Public Service commissionership as it bears upon the daily convenience and the annual tax assessment of the people of New York. If the public itself regarded the work of the Public Service Commission at its full value to the city, there would be an emphatic protest against even the suspicion that appointments to the commission were made with any other consideration than the important work for which the commission was designed, and which it will be able to carry out, if the public's conception of its scope and importance does not become so blurred as to permit deviation from the original standards.

It would be well for the city if the scope and purpose of the Public Service Commission, and the character and volume of the transactions with which it is concerned, were frequently forced upon the attention of taxpayers and of those who depend upon public utilities in their daily life.

W. R. MESSENGER.

Praiseworthy Public Service.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

As a reader of your publication, and believing that where praise is due it should be given, I want to pay a tribute to the Bureau of Buildings in the Borough of Richmond.

I had occasion to visit there some time ago to fill out certain blanks, with which I was unfamiliar, and the courtesy and consideration by the clerk in charge and his assistants was certainly praiseworthy. While I was present I noticed that many of those who called wished to file plans for small dwellings, and they were evidently not conversant with the details, but these were fully explained in a kindly manner, suggestions made, and every assistance given.

In these days when criticism is rampant of city employes, I hold it is equally just that praise be rendered where deserved, and that other readers, and possibly your own representatives, will bear me out concerning the bureau above referred to, as regards patience, tactfulness and kindly consideration.

JOHN McDONALD.

A Get-Together Force Wanted.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

It may seem presumptuous for the writer, a layman, to express an opinion in commendation of your lucid and convincing thesis on the real estate fraternity's need of a get-together force. If the polls prove to be the deciding medium for treatment, why not some attempt to coalesce more with the voters (the tenants)? The landlords are a small quantity in comparison. If it is possible, why not arrange an alliance of the Merchants' Association, the Economy League and the Realty Board, combining also with financial and labor organizations and reform movements, with a give-and-take policy to seek the common end of the supremacy of our city in order that peace and harmony may prevail over antipathy and chaos. It should not prove impossible to arrange. A NEW YORKER.

THE WEEK'S REAL ESTATE NEWS

Brokerage Sales, Auctions, Foreclosure Suits, Building Loans, etc., Together With Brief Personal Items.

The Bulk of the Trading Affected Properties on the Upper West Side.

Most of the transactions consummated this week concerned small and inconspicuous properties. Nearly all sections of the city contributed to an increase in the number of sales and aided in doubling last week's record. The holiday apparently had no effect on the business. The more important deals of the week concerned West Side holdings. A high-class West End avenue apartment house and another on St. Nicholas place were particularly noticeable. Other interesting sales involved a loft building on 26th street and vacant plots on Riverside drive acquired by operators.

The total number of sales in Manhattan this week was 45 against 22 for last week and 35 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 7, compared with 7 last week and 15 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 38, compared with 15 last week and 20 a year ago.

From the Bronx—16 safes at private contract were reported, against 11 last week and 14 a year ago.

The amount involved in the Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $295,079, compared with $640,294 last week, making a total since Jan. 1 of $6,238,594. The figure for the corresponding week last year was $1,199,391, making a total since Jan. 1, 1913, of $6,389,250.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

The two houses are said to have been valued at about $400,000. In part payment the seller took 632, 634, 644 and 650 Coster st, four 2-sty two-family houses, each on lot 20x100, between Spofford and Randall avs.

The West End av apartment figured in the trade at $550,000, and the 31st st plot, which, it is said, will be improved with a 16-sty loft building from plans by Walter Haefeli, was held at $225,000.

Riverside Drive Transaction.

The George Backer Construction Co., consisting of George Backer and Arnstein & Levy, purchased from Lowenfeld & Prager the northeast corner of Riverside Drive and 144th st, a plot of about five lots, fronting 100 ft. on the drive and 128.8 ft. on 144th st. UNITED OWNERS' BALL.

A Numerous Attendance at Their Annual Reception at Terrace Garden—Features of the Evening's Entertainment.

A large and representative gathering of real estate holders assembled at the United Real Estate Owners' Association's annual reception and ball at Terrace Garden, on Lincoln's Birthday. The numerous organizations identified with the association attended with such large delegations that the big hall was taxed to its capacity. Boxes had previously been sold at auction to each of these organizations, including the Greater New York Taxpayers' Association, the Real Estate Protective Association, the 10th, 11th and 17th Wards Taxpayers' Association, the 18th and 21st Wards Taxpayers' Association, the Real Estate Owners' Association of the 12th and 19th Wards, the South Bronx Property Owners' Association, the Murray Hill Taxpayers' Association, and the Harlem Property Owners' Association. The box holders held receptions of their own in each of the boxes, at the close of the vaudeville performance, which opened the program at 8:15.

The dancing arrangements were under the supervision of William H. Mehlich, who introduced some picturesque features, in the way of illuminating with various colors several of the dances. The grand march, in which nearly all joined, was led by President Henry Bloch and Miss Louise Volz.

Among those present were Tenement House Commissioner Murphy, Deputy Commissioner Abbott, Cyrus C. Miller, Magistrate Levy and a number of Assemblymen, Aldermen and other public officials. Handsome souvenirs were distributed in the form of the official year book, which featured special articles by Cyrus C. Miller, William A. Prendergast and William H. Abbott, Jr.

The reception and ball were managed by the arrangement committee, of which Charles H. Schnelle was chairman; Charles J. F. Bohlen, treasurer, and Isaac Hyman, secretary. The chairmen of other committees for the occasion were Isaac Hyman, Harry Bierhoff, Henry Bloch, William H. Mehlich and Edward Engel.

NEW HOMES ON LONG ISLAND.

Total of 6,300 Residential Structures Erected During 1913.

RALPH PETERS, President of the Long Island Railroad, has just issued a compilation of building statistics covering the territory which his railway serves which answers to some extent the question raised by builders as to why multi tenanted structures were not in better demand. Outside of Long Island City and Brooklyn, the railroad reports a total of 7,600 buildings were erected, of which 6,300 were dwellings.

One of the interesting details shown in the reports was that during the last nine years 63,000 buildings have been erected outside of Brooklyn and Long Connecting the Subway Lines.

It has been definitely decided that the junction between the existing subway and the new Lexington avenue subway shall be made at 42d street. The Public Service Commission has instructed its Chief Engineer to prepare plans for the construction of what is known as the diagonal station plan for this junction. The existing subway running down Park avenue will be connected with the Lexington avenue subway north of 42d street by a diagonal branch running from the existing subway, under the Grand Union Hotel, diagonally across 42d street and under the property of the New York Central on the corner of Lexington avenue and 42d street, into the Lexington avenue line. The express station will be located on this diagonal line, and will extend under the greater part of the connecting line. It will connect with the Grand Central Station, with the existing subway, the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad and the Steinway Tunnel. The Commission has decided to condemn the property of the Grand Union Hotel, which will be needed for the purpose. An easement under the property of the New York Central, on the north side of the street, will be acquired either by purchase or by condemnation. A change has also been authorized in the route of the 162d street and Eighth avenue connection, which will connect the existing Ninth avenue elevated railroad with the proposed elevated railroad on the Jerome avenue branch of the Lexington avenue subway. As originally planned, this route curved to the south after leaving Anderson avenue and continued easterly across Jerome avenue and through 162d street to River avenue and a connection with the Jerome avenue line. The change involves the continuation of the route from Anderson avenue in a straight line to the Jerome avenue elevated on River avenue, thus eliminating two curves. By this change the stretch of 162d street east of Jerome avenue will be relieved of the elevated structure, which will run through the interior of the blocks fronting on that street. An agreement to modify the certificate granted to the Interborough Rapid Transit Company for this purpose has been approved by the commission and sent to the company for its acceptance.

There will be an express station on the Broadway subway in Manhattan at 42d street. This is the subway which is being built for operation by the New York Municipal Railway Corporation. The plans of the Public Service Commission for the First District provided for a local station at 42d street, but property owners at Times Square objected and demanded an express station. After considering the matter for several month the commission decided to grant the request for an express station, but to locate the station in Broadway south of 42d street. The property owners wished it located north of 42d street, but there were too many engineering difficulties in the way.

Most Difficult Subway Work First.

Chief Engineer Alfred Craven of the Public Service Commission had adopted the plan of placing under contract first the most difficult work, which would take the longest time to build, and to follow this with contracts for the less difficult work. Preference is also given to the lines which will be necessary to enable both the Interborough Rapid Transit Company and the New York Municipal Railway Corporation to begin operation by January 1, 1917, as contemplated by the Dual System agreements.

As far as Brooklyn is concerned, Engineer Craven says the New Utrecht avenue elevated railroad has been placed under contract; that the Gravesend avenue elevated line would have been placed under contract, but for the failure of the commission to get the necessary consents of property owners and the necessity for applying to the Appellate Division for legalization of the route.

The plans for the Canal street subway, to connect the Manhattan Bridge with the Broadway subway in Manhattan, will be ready for advertising within two or three weeks. The Broadway subway in Manhattan is under contract as far north as 26th street, and the remainder, between 26th street and Seventh avenue, would be under contract except for the controversy which has arisen in regard to the Times Square station. Plans for the extension of the Broadway subway through 59th and 60th streets to the Queensboro Bridge will be ready for advertising by March 1.

Plans for the Whitehall-Montague street and Old Slip-Clark street tunnels will be ready for advertising about the middle of February. Plans for the Flatbush avenue section of the Eastern Parkway subway will be ready for advertising about February 1, and the plans for the remaining sections to Buffalo avenue about August 1; that the plans for the Nostrand avenue branch of the Eastern Parkway subway, will be ready by July 1, and those for the Livonia avenue extension by August 1. The chief engineer also stated that contracts for the reconstruction of existing lines in the Brooklyn system had already been let for the Broadway-Myrtle avenue connection, the Lutheran Cemetery extension and the Sea Beach line. The commission is now in communication with the Federal government with the view of getting its consent to the construction of the Whitehall-Montague street tunnel, under the East River. There is a difference between the commission and the War Department in regard to the conditions under which this consent shall be given, but it is expected that an agreement will be arrived at in time to prevent delay in the construction of the tunnel.

Light Your Halls

Twenty inspectors have recently been detailed by the Tenement House Department to see that hallways of apartment and tenement houses are lighted at night in accordance with the law.

The law reads that there shall be a light at night in the lower hall and one in the hall on the second floor. Many owners and occupants of tenement buildings unconsciously violate these provisions because of an inadequate method of controlling the light.

If you feel that the hallways of the buildings you own or occupy are inadequately lighted or the lighting improperly controlled we shall be pleased to render you any assistance in our power.

Write us and one of our lighting experts will show you how electric light will not only protect you against law-violation, but he will prove to you that it's the most economical form of lighting for hallways.

A Reorganization of the Brooklyn Transfer System.

A general reorganization of the transfer system among the surface car lines of Brooklyn is foreshadowed in a statement made during the week by counsel to the Public Service Commission in a case involving transfers on certain lines of the Nassau Electric Railroad Company. This statement was to the effect that a committee, composed of representatives of the commission and representatives of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, had been making a study of the transfer situation and had about agreed upon a plan for a general reorganization, by which transfers upon transfers will be eliminated, and yet the opportunity to transfer between any two points on a journey in the same general direction for a single fare will be preserved. The proposed arrangement will include the lines of the Coney Island and Brooklyn Company, now owned by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system, as well as all the surface lines of that system. The report in detail, with maps showing the transfer points, will be on public exhibition at the offices of the commission, 154 Nassau street, Manhattan, for a week, beginning February 10, and on February 17 the commission will hold a public hearing thereon.

Revised Crosstown Line For Brooklyn.

A new map has just been prepared by Chief Engineer Cravan of the Public Service Commission showing the proposed route of the Crosstown Subway which is to connect the Eastern District with the Bedford section and intersect the principal lines of transit up and downtown in this borough. While the route in the main follows that tentatively talked of when the scheme took shape, some important changes have been made.

As laid out on the new map the route begins at the Queensboro Bridge plaza and extends through Jackson and East avenues to Newtown Creek, which it is proposed to cross by a bridge, the tracks on the Queens side to be on an elevated structure. On the Greenpoint side of the creek the route will cut diagonally across two blocks between Oakland street and Manhattan avenue and then proceed under the latter to and under McCarren or Greenpoint Park.

Provision is made for its connection with the East River tunnel for Fourteenth street, Manhattan, at Greenpoint avenue, if the tunnel route is changed from North Seventh street. From McCarren Park the Crosstown line will proceed under Roebling street to and under the Williamsburg Bridge plaza, where connection will be made with the bridge, and then under the widened Roebling street and Taylor street to Kent avenue.

There a right-angled turn is made into the latter, which is followed to Flushing avenue, where a diagonal connection under private property is made to Franklin avenue, under which the route extends to the Brighton Beach Railroad tracks at Fulton street.

Influence of Architects in Fire Prevention.

In the report of the special committee appointed to represent the American Institute of Architects at the seventeenth annual meeting of the National Fire Protection Association in New York, May 13-15, 1913, the growing influence of the N. F. P. A. was emphasized, also the desirability of active co-operation of the architectural profession in the work of the association.

The recognition by the association of the powerful influence of the architect in fire prevention in the election of Robert D. Kohn, a prominent New York architect, as president, was remarked by the committee, also the work accomplished by certain of the association's committees of which architects are enthusiastic members.

The special committee, the members of which are Julius Franke, William L. Plack and J. Foster Warner, declared in its report that the "existing constitutional prerogative of the property owner" is a serious obstacle in the campaign for fire prevention, and in concluding the report, said:

"The architects of America can and should take the initiative responsibility to the limit of their influence with clients by advising that reasonable fire resisting methods of construction be observed, not alone upon their merits, but because of the ultimate economy that must result by anticipating a tidal wave in the form of a sudden popular demand for stringent laws that will fix the standard so high as to require costly alteration in the best, and prohibit the occupancy of all buildings under the ban of condemnation issued by duly constituted authorities. The process of evolution is ever active, and it is only a matter of time when landlords will be obliged to submit to humanitarian equalization. Only justice is desired, but do not force it. Let us advise ways and means whereby a composite perspective may be voluntarily accepted by the owner as an inevitable matter of course."

Architects shoulder a grave responsibility in this matter of fire prevention. How many of them realize it?

Ventilating the Broadway Subway.

In order to relieve certain adverse conditions on the Broadway subway now under construction, other conditions are being created that are not beneficial to the general public. A special committee of the Real Estate Board, of which committee ex-President Tredwell is president, has made a report to the board, saying that while the committee can offer no scheme of relief, it feels that the present proposed method of ventilation and pressure relief by means of gratings will not be to the best interests of Broadway. There is urgent necessity, the report says, for the engineers of the Broadway subway to discover a method that will not be a serious detriment to all concerned, and perhaps to the subway itself.

Limit of Occupancy in Factories.

Under the new Occupancy Law, for factory buildings, the authorities have figured out that in a room containing 9,000 square feet of floor space, assuming all conditions to be of the best, 135 persons may be employed. If such a building were divided in the middle by a fire wall properly erected and fitted with fire doors, it would contain two areas approximating 4,500 square feet. Assuming that one-half of such space were occupied by machinery, tables and stock, there would still remain 2,250 square feet of free floor space. And under this law such free floor space would permit the employment of 450 persons upon the entire floor.

Zone System in Chicago.

Chicago is considering the creation of exclusive residential districts, according to a letter from Mr. A. W. Beilfuss, Chairman of the Special Park Commission of Chicago. A committee of the City Council has prepared a bill amending the general municipal act so as to give all the cities and villages in the State of Illinois the power to establish exclusive residential and industrial districts. In new residential districts this will prohibit the erection of buildings other than residences and the usual outbuildings appurtenant to residences. No business can be maintained in a residential district except by the consent of all or a specific majority of the real estate owners in such district measured by the street frontage. The city council is also empowered to prescribe the general character of the residences that may be constructed in residential districts.

In order that districts now primarily residential might in time become exclusively residential, the bill makes certain provisions with reference to the future location and regulation of commercial and industrial establishments in such districts. This power authorizes the council to direct the location of and to regulate the construction and maintenance of all factories, stores and other businesses in those parts of the city where a majority of the street frontage is now used exclusively for residential purposes.

In the creation of exclusive industrial districts, the council is empowered to direct the location of, and to regulate the use and management of more than thirty enumerated types of commercial and industrial establishments, and of such other commercial and industrial establishments as emit offensive and noxious fumes, odors or noises.

The council is also empowered to direct the location of all material piles or stores on vacant property.

A Time Clock Question.

The first case to pass upon the right of a master to withhold the wages of a servant who has failed to punch a time clock or otherwise to record his time, seems to be Matthews v. Industrial Lumber Co., 45 L.R.A. (N.S.) 644, which holds that the pay of an employee cannot be withheld for his refusal to obey a rule of the employer requiring him to register his time on a time clock, if he has not assented to such rule.

TRAFFIC CONGESTION IN TALL BUILDINGS CAN BE OBVIATED BY DOUBLE-DECKED ELEVATORS.

By HERMAN GUMPEL, Structural and Mechanical Engineer, of Chicago

THE principles governing elevator traffic form a subject of great interest to those responsible for the returns on the capital invested in tall buildings. It is obvious that the elevator installations in many office, mercantile and factory buildings, not to mention department stores, are seriously lacking in capacity. The present standard of sufficiency is the satisfaction of the tenants merely. The possibility of fire or panic in a building where the occupants of the upper floors are depending on the elevators for relief, is nowhere taken into account. Since buildings are built for profit merely, their operation is a competitive business, and only legislation, dictating the minimum amount of equipment from the viewpoint of emergency accommodation, will bring a change.

But even with an abundance of elevators an otherwise fireproof building is not fire safe. To effect this, all elevator shafts and stairway wells, as well as the respective doors, should be fireproof. A still better solution is shown in the accompany illustration. Here not only elevator and stairway wells, but also the elevator landings, are surrounded by a fireproof partition. Any combustible material would have to be kept out from this part of the building. This would make obsolete a recent suggestion to bisect a factory building from cellar to roof into two isolated sections by means of a fire wall, allowing the occupants in case of fire in one section to take refuge in the other, however rendering stairways and elevators in a section useless, where there is a conflagration. A building, according to the illustration would be divided into as many horizontal fire isolated compartments as there are floors, and the occupants of a burning section could easily find a safe place of refuge with the benefit of full elevator and stairway facilities.

TYPICAL FLOOR PLAN OF FACTORY LOFT BUILDING; ELEVATORS, STAIRWAYS, LANDINGS AND LOBBIES FIREPROOF ENCLOSED.

The Efficiency Limit.

Mr. Bolton in his recent article suggests that the following advice should be given to elevator operators in business buildings generally: "After your car is half-filled, the more passengers you admit per trip, the fewer you carry per hour." In other words, Mr. Bolton is placing an efficiency limit of loading for elevators at fifty per cent. of the full floor capacity, and is claiming that any passenger carried above this limit will lower the number of passengers carried per hour.

Elevator traffic conditions in buildings governed by such an efficiency limit of loading vary greatly. Much depends on the class of buildings, on the arrangement of the elevator plant, on the length of time required by the stops and on the number of passengers entering or leaving the car at each stop. These latter two totals are not constant. If there are only a few stops, the car does not exceed its normal round-trip time, and still it may leave the main floor densely crowded. Moreover, the amount of inter-story traffic, even if the car leaves the main floor only half-filled, can lengthen the round-trip time considerably.

"Down" stops, where the passengers are stepping merely in front of each other and leaving the car at the main floor in one unit, are decidedly shorter than up stops, where passengers are frequently disturbing each other in their movements. In office buildings the maximum traffic is only one way, either "up" early in the morning and after lunch time, or "down" late in the afternoon or before lunch time.

Results of Observation.

All these complications of conditions influence the efficiency limit of loading. During rush time "up," I have frequently observed that there was such a proportion between round-trip time and number of passengers carried as to suggest an efficiency limit of seventy per cent. However, the same car when carrying a full load of passengers but making fewer stops was arriving within schedule time. It readily will be seen that in this case half-filled elevators would not contribute to the betterment of the service. Besides, in real practice, the public would most energetically object against any tendency of elevator operators to disregard stopping signals at the enclosure doors with only half-filled cars. I venture to say that an hour's test during rush time with half-filled cars and in a fairly rented building would disprove this rule.

In any event I fully agree with Mr. Bolton that elevators in many buildings are seriously lacking in capacity, a most objectionable feature, especially in view of the important part elevators play in an emergency. In this case, an elevator will ascend to a certain floor without stop, accept there as many passengers as possible and descend to the main floor, where it will discharge its human load. On account of the absence of a multitude of stops, the observance of any efficiency limit of loading will not relieve the situation in the least, but would decidedly be a disadvantage.

The Double-Deck Elevator.

Mr. Bolton advises as the only remedy for traffic congestion to increase the customary number of elevators. But we all know that the income derived from the capital invested in tall buildings is limited and on an average not more than 5½ per cent. Any tendency towards more elevators than heretofore, which would reduce the usable floor space and consequently the returns on the investment, would meet with disfavor from the realty operators. Taking into consideration the interests of both owner and tenant, the only logical solution is the double-deck elevator. These have been frequently described and favorably commented on in current literature (Record and Guide of Dec. 4, 1912), Elevators of this type accommodate two floors at one single stop simultaneously, thus reducing the number of possible stops to one-half. A great number of stops during rush time are at adjacent floors, and stops in the same direction and under similar conditions are requiring about the same length of time. This will explain the simultaneous and therefore time saving action of a double-deck elevator, while serving two floors at one single stop.

Old Premises Made Over.

An interesting object lesson in estates management is presented by the group of old dwellings which Vincent Astor is making over in 43d and 44th streets, opposite the Hotel Astor. Here were ten houses, five on each street, and each having four stories with two-story extensions in the rear. The revenue from them was less than the land should produce, so Mr. Astor determined on a change.

First, the fences between the yards were removed and one large central court, which will have grass plots, seats and flowers next Spring, has been laid out. In the buildings the first floors have been fitted out as stores, while on the floors above the doorways, halls and stairs have been rearranged so as to altogether transform the old layout into exceptionally cozy bachelor apartments.

—Of $135,625,710 expended during the year 1913 for the operation and administration of the city government, according to Comptroller Prendergast, the modest sum of $101,369,113 was paid in salaries alone. No wonder taxes and rents are high.

BUYING BUILDING MATERIALS.

Some Timely Tips for the Building Manager and Owner's Representative.

AT some time or another the building manager or owner must enter the building material market for supplies. Those supplies may be for new buildings or for alterations. Frequently the contractor is employed to make the purchases, but in this department the building manager or owner's representative has an important part in making sure that the quality of materials he is paying for is brought to the job. Team work between the building manager and the contractor is essential, and some of the leading contracting houses of the day have systematized this work so that the building manager in figuring on the completion of the structure may know exactly when he can promise his tenants occupancy. This is the way L. C. Wason, in "Problems of the Contractor," describes how one contracting firm caters to the building manager.

"In the purchase of manufactured articles such as doors and windows, and in letting subcontracts, hundreds of dollars can be saved and better results obtained if handled by a person who by long experience has become familiar with all the details of the materials themselves, the dealers and manufacturers in various localities, and who is also familiar with the relationship of all these materials to one another, as well as with the estimate and contract.

Paying For Sash Priming Twice.

"To illustrate one little point where a subdivision has caused expense. In order to save time, window-frames have been bought by the job superintendent from a local mill. These are sometimes primed with paint by the manufacturer and sometimes are not. If the painting contract is let by another person without knowing what has been done with window-frames, it has happened that priming has been paid for twice.

"Similarly, all changes, either additions or deductions, from the original design, should be handled by one person in order to see that no mistakes are made.

"The purchasing department never buys an unknown sand until it has been thoroughly investigated by a laboratory, although this may cause an annoying delay. The tests continue at intervals throughout the progress of a job. Once, gravel from the most available pit had a coating of a reddish substance appearing to the eye to be clay, which was strong enough to hold grains of sand to the stone even after it had been handled roughly with a shovel. By the usual eye and hand tests this material would have been rejected, yet samples sent to a cement-testing laboratory showed on the average about 150 per cent. of the strength of the same cement with standard sand. It seemed peculiar that the fine red material should have no injurious effect on the tensile strength tests of briquettes with bank sand, while low compression tests were obtained on cubes made with gravel.

"The laboratory testing the same reported that under the microscope this fine red clayey material was really a very gritty substance, and called it finely pulverized rock. It clung tightly to the stone, binding to it particles of sand, and yet washed off when shaken in water. It appeared that if this fine material could be removed from the surface of the stone, and if it was not too plentiful, a perfectly satisfactory concrete would be obtained with this aggregate. Experiments made by keeping a batch in the mixer a longer time than is usually the custom appeared to clean the stone, and good, hard concrete was obtained with a not objectionable pink tint. Extra mixing was done throughout the job with complete satisfaction.

"The lumber and steel schedules are generally the first to demand attention. Lumber used in contact with cement is almost always ordered planed four sides. A correct ordering schedule for lumber cannot be made, of course, until the work of detailing forms is nearly completed in the drafting-room. It is possible, however, to make an approximate schedule for canvassing for prices. By referring to standards it is often possible to tell in advance what sizes are wanted, and in this way to be ready to order material forward immediately whenever centering details are completed. As lumber arrives, the material of different dimensions, qualities and finishes is filed by a prearranged plan worked out in the office, handy to the woodworking shop, and given a number or letter obtained from the key plan.

Cutting Down Steel Cost.

"The steel is taken off the plans by one man and checked independently by another. This schedule is then studied in regard to reducing the variety of lengths, and frequently these can be reduced to one-fifth of the number shown on plan. It is usual to order a schedule of bars three-quarter inch and larger in multiples of six inches, and to buy steel five-eighths inch and under in the longest lengths that can be put on a single flat car, and cut it up on the job.

"The largest size recommended, in the square, is one and one-quarter inch, and one and three-eighths inch in the round; the smallest, one-quarter inch; all sizes to be multiples of one-eighth inch.

"On one large job there were over 400 different lengths of bars shown on plans, and by scheduling large bars in multiples of six inches and ordering small bars in long lengths, as above described, the mill order was reduced to 46 different lengths. This method increased the weight of order so as to cost only eighteen dollars in excess of the exact schedule taken from plans. This amount was saved many times over in the greater convenience of sorting to deliver the small bars in bundles weighing from 125 to 145 lbs. This insures the men getting a load of proper weight for greatest efficiency. They are also easier to handle, with no picking up of one bar at a time and the trouble of unraveling that is found with small sizes."

BOILER SPECIFICATIONS.

Uniformity Desirable in the Interest of Both Manufacturers and Owners.

The large number of local laws regulating the construction of boilers in force throughout the United States has made it imperative that a man who is engaged in the manufacture of boilers for distribution throughout the entire country should seek to have uniform specifications enacted, so that he need not carry stocks of materials and stocks of boilers on hand to meet the requirements of various localities. This opinion was expressed by Thomas E. Durban, of the Eric City Iron Works, of Erie, Pa., before the American Boiler Manufacturers' Association at Cleveland.

"The multiplicity of laws, differing one from another, make a needless waste," said Mr. Durban, "and as the cry of the country now is for conservation and economy we think that this argument can well be used with the lawmakers of all the States who will take the subject up. The waste comes from the fact that a manufacturer is now almost compelled to build each boiler to meet the requirements of each law, necessitating slow progress through the shop and enormous investment in material. The further fact that different manufacturers put different interpretations on the laws brings about a great conflict in the price of boilers.

"With a uniform law and the co-operation of all manufacturers these differences would be largely overcome, so that the boiler would reach the consumer not only a better boiler, but for less money. Not only would the manufacture be able to produce the goods and sell them for less money, and be more certain of his profit, but he would eliminate the probability of a large loss in case his foreman or designing engineer should get confused in the various laws. There is no concern manufacturing boilers that has not suffered from the lack of uniformity in the laws. All this can be eliminated; the public can be protected, both as to its life and its investment; the manufacturer can make more money on less investment, if we can suceed in getting concurrent legislation, or approximately concurrent legislation, in various States.

Concurrent Legislation Needed.

"We are fully alive to the fact that no problem that has ever faced the American people has been more discussed than concurrent legislation. The different laws in different States tremendously embarrass manufacturers doing interstate trade, and they affect our social relations. We know the action that has been put forth to have uniform laws for crime and on credit, and on other matters too numerous to mention; but we believe no subject for concurrent legislation has been broached by people who have been so unitedly combined as to what is required as this problem that we have. And there is no doubt in the writer's mind that a conscientious effort on a specification upon which we have all united will influence the lawmakers in a great number of States who have not yet passed a law and in turn will influence the laws already on the statute books to such an extent that corrections will be made in them to make them conform to a standard which we can and will ultimately adopt.

The Present Diversity of Boiler Laws.

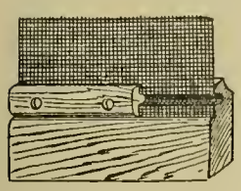
"Boiler laws are coming out from the East, West, North and South—in every direction. Not only are the laws themselves different, but a different interpretation has been put upon the same law by different inspectors and different builders. I presume without exaggeration that there are at least one hundred laws and changes to laws in the United States alone governing the manufacture of our product, and this can be multiplied by a thousand times as many inspectors as there are laws.

"For instance: We have asked a decision of one point—the butt strapping of drums. It is our interpretation of the law as it is written, in several of the States, that it is necessary to make all butt strapped seams to a minimum length of 12 feet. We have been informed by some inspectors that this does not apply to water-tube boilers, and by other inspectors that it applies to all boilers. We conformed our specifications to meet the letter of the law; that is, to have no butt strapped seams over 12 feet long, whereas we have found out since we put this order into effect in our works that many boilers or drums of boilers are being made and passed with butt srtapped seams as long as 20 feet.

"In spite of all this, we are thoroughly impressed that the boiler inspection laws have been and will be beneficial to us all—all the boiler manufacturers and all the users—and that out of it will come the ideal boiler in design, workmanship and material."

Income Tax Uncertainties.

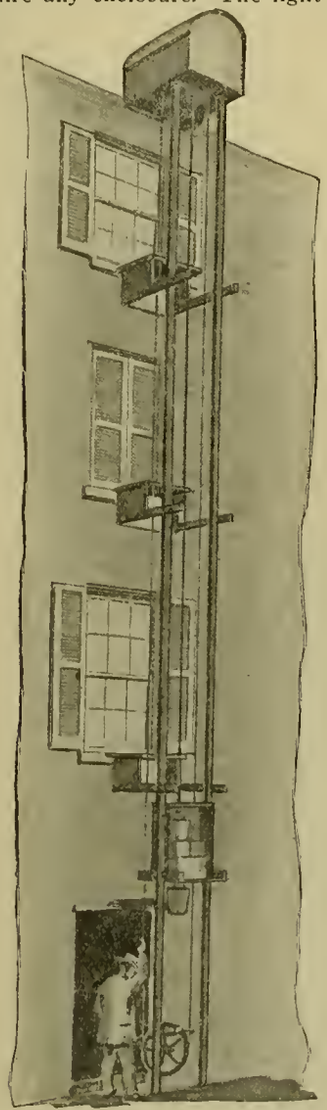
Many points in the income tax law still remain in dispute among lawyers. Even the Government officers are sometimes at variance. The Deputy Commissioner of Internal Revenue has stated that he does not think that the clause of the act relating to indebtedness secured by collateral applies to mortgage indebtedness of real estate companies, and, moreover, the Department is not following the ruling of Attorney General Wickersham.



In this connection Walter Lindner, of the law committee of the Allied Real Estate Interests, says that real estate owners should be cautioned to this effect and advised that, notwithstanding these rulings, the items of interest in question should be included under the head of expense in the return on the ground that the language of the act clearly justifies it, whatever may be the opinion of the Department.

USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration



A New Type of Window Screen.

THE difficulty experienced in procuring window screens that are so constructed that small night insects cannot crawl through the space between the screen binder and the screen sash seems to have been removed by the introduction on the market of the system of screen sash illustrated. It will be noted that there is a groove placed in the sash over which the binding veneer is nailed. This gives an even tension on all parts of the screen and also prevents insects from crawling into the room through tiny crevices opened up by reason of the old method of nailing screens fast to the sash by small nails at intervals.

An Out-door Dumbwaiter.

CONSIDERABLE attention is being given by architects and builders to the out-door steel tube dumbwaiter that is being manufactured by the Standard Electric & Elevator Co., of 123 South Calvert street, Baltimore. The advantage of this device is that it provides an inexpensive and space-saving convenience for apartment houses and does not require any enclosure. The light is not obstructed and neither is the swing of the window shutters interfered with.

One reason for the interest centered in this appliance is that considerable money can be saved by eliminating the expense of making a shaft through the center of the building. No floors have to be cut, no plaster or partitions marred no window-trim is scratched, nor the furnishing of rooms disturbed. It consists of two-inch hollow tube guides, one of which contains the center of weight. These guides are adjusted by patented clamps on brackets, approximately 8 to 12 feet apart, which are secured to the building by expansion bolts. The machines are protected from the weather by a hood, as shown in the illustration. The ropes cannot kink or twist as a result of weather conditions, as they are held at uniform tension whether wet or dry. They are adaptable to buildings of any height.

Granite Rings on Steel Cores.

IN the construction of the Continental and Commercial National Bank building in Chicago several novel construction features are being introduced. We illustrate herewith the unique method of setting the mammoth granite pillars at the entrance of this building that will represent in Chicago what the Equitable building will represent here in New York.

After the granite columns have been first laithed from the solid square block into cylindrical forms they are then segmented into approximately two foot sections by huge diamond saws. Before the cap stones on these pillars are set these segments are lowered down over fabricated steel I's and are cemented into place.

The erection of this great building has caused more comment than any recent construction in Chicago since the early days when the Masonic Temple was the marvel of western city skyscrapers, and it is the peculiar application of building practice such as the placing of these columns that arouses such widespread interest. The employment of this system is said to reduce considerably liability to damage in transit of solid pillars. They are cheaper to produce, cheaper to transport and with steel core they have greater weight sustaining power. In case of fire calcination with consequent collapse is not so liable to occur because the weight of the superstructure is borne upon the steel core.

Elevator Shaft Safety.

NEWSPAPER articles told the story the other day of a preoccupied man who stepped into an elevator car and, while the door was being closed, suddenly decided to get off again. The car had started upward. He was thrown to the floor and his arm scraped the front wall of the shaft. The operator lost his head and turned the controller full on instead of full off. In the next instant the car had shot up to the next floor where an overhanging floor-lip projected a half inch into the shaft. The man's arm was caught by this projection and was cut off at the shoulder. Arms are worth from $5,000 to $100,000, depending upon owners.

The accompanying drawing shows what may happen in any elevator shaft at any time if the shaft has projections that are capable of catching and holding any object or person losing his balance in a car. It merely emphasizes in graphic detail, one way that accidents and subsequent damage suits may be avoided. Architects, owners, office building and apartment house managers knowing of dangerous conditions such as described to be existant in their buildings will find specialty houses in this city who, for comparatively little cost, will remove these danger spots without seriously interfering with the regular traffic in the shaft. Coating Iron with Aluminum.

INTERESTING experiments have been conducted at the Franklin Institute in making iron rustproof by coating it with aluminum. The iron article to be coated is first galvanized or tinned and then immersed in molten aluminum at about 700 degrees or 800 degrees C. During the immersion the surface is swept by steel brushes. The tin or zinc passes into the molten aluminum, and aluminum replaces it on the iron surface. The article is treated in this manner in two or more of such baths; the greater part of the tin or zinc is left in the first bath. It is claimed that this process causes the aluminum to adhere to the surface of the iron so well that it will not come off, tarnish, or corrode under the action of air, water or heat, and cannot be stripped off by mechanical means.

A MODEL CITY AT ARCHITECTS' EXHIBITION

A Unique Collection of Colonial Designs — Suburban Domestic and Landscape Work Predominate This Year — Few City Skyscrapers.

STRIKINGLY different in its general aspect is this year's exhibition of architectural works at the Fine Arts Building. Times not long ago are recalled when commercial buildings, particularly city skyscrapers, were the paramount objects of interest and the most numerously represented of any class in the exhibitions. And then there was an era during which the modern city apartment house claimed an extraordinary amount of interest. Neither class has been prolific of late, or else has been dressing with so much sameness that the spotlight of professional interest has been directed elsewhere.

New York City work certainly does not dominate the architectural section this year. Always the city has something of monumental quality under way to be elegantly figured and prominently hung at the annual show; and, naturally, there are renderings of Mr. Cram's new design for the Cathedral of St. John's, Mr. Brunner's Riverside Drive extension, Carrere & Hastings' plan and plaster model of the Manhattan Plaza of the Manhattan Bridge and York & Sawyer's large panels depicting the Guaranty Trust Company's Building, besides some other city work.

Suburban Work.

But a fair inference from the collection of pictures is that our city architects are busy with commissions for public and institutional buildings in other cities, and with domestic and landscape work in the suburban towns of Long Island, New Jersey and the Hudson River counties, as the departments named are very strongly represented. Of all the architectural renderings, those of country houses and grounds are the most numerous, and some say this is the department which evinces the most pronounced advancement and certainty of purpose. The tendency is plainly toward the American Colonial first of all, and then in a lesser, but still in a marked degree, toward the English domestic styles.

Thus in the "model city" alcove, the prevailing style is our Colonial. This is a collection of designs that have actually been translated into buildings. There is first a panorama of the dream city which shows the situation of every house, church, office building, house, store and factory, besides the school, bank, post office, court house, country club and public library. The residence of Prof. Lyon Phelps at New Haven, for which Murphy & Dana were the architects, the Weeks' house at Englewood by Hays & Hoadley, and the workmen's cottages at Jamaica, which Electus D. Litchfield planned, have been chosen by the committee to represent the model residences. The Groton School by Peabody & Stearns, the Mason Library at Great Barrington by Blanchard & Barnes, the Piping Rock Clubhouse by Guy Lowell, a church at Andover by McKim, Mead & White, a bank at Danbury by Parker Morse Hopper, and the post office at Beverly, Mass., by James Knox Taylor, have been selected as typical buildings by the committee.

The gallery devoted to architecture is not very large and no doubt many interesting designs have been turned away this year as in the past, and of course the members of the committee who made the selections for the model city refrained from introducing any of their own work. Hence there is nothing in the alcove from Goodhue, Lindeberg, Embury, Hardenburgh, Gmelin, Tompkins, Kiessling, Cass Gilbert, Hewlett, Brunner or Bacon. It is said that the committee collected eight or nine hundred photographs of buildings from which to make selections.

The medal of honor for architecture was awarded this year to York & Sawyer, the medal of honor for sculpture to Karl Bitter and the medal of honor for mural painting to Barry Faulkner.

The Annual Dinner.

The awards of prizes made at the annual exhibition of the Architectural League were announced at the dinner on Saturday evening by President Cass Gilbert. Speeches were delivered by Edward Robinson, director of the American Museum of Art; J. Hopkinson Smith, the author; Dr. R. Clifton Sturges of Boston, president of the American Institute of Architects; John W. Alexander, president of the American Academy of Design, and Jesse Benedict Carter, director of the American Academy in Rome.

Dr. Sturges urged the league to make a greater effort to win the public's support by interesting the man in the street in its work.

In the course of an interesting talk Mr. Smith advised the architects to adopt the method of coloring their plan drawings to make them appear as near as possible like pictures, so as to be better understood by boards of directors.

A Congregational Home at Flatbush.

A new building for the New York Congregational Home for the Aged will be erected during the year on the property recently purchased by the board of managers of the society. The plot is in one of the best sections of Flatbush, on Linden avenue, between Bedford and Rogers avenues, and is large enough to afford a picturesque setting for the building, with ample space for landscape effect and recreation space for the guests of the home.

The building will be built according to plans and specifications prepared by Parfitt Bros., architects, 26 Court street, Brooklyn. The plans call for a three-story and basement building, of brick and Indiana limestone, fireproof throughout. The building will measure on the ground about 56x120 feet. In design the home will be pure Colonial of a simple treatment, with lines that should blend beautifully with its park-like surroundings.

The project will represent an outlay of nearly $500,000, including the price of the site. The funds are well in hand, and it is expected that active building operations will be started during the coming summer. Asa A. Spear, 79 Wall street, New York City, is treasurer of the home, and it is through his interest and leadership the new building is made possible.

Platt, 11 East 24th street, was appointed architect this week for the new $1,500,000 elevator apartment house which Vincent Astor, 23 West 26th street, is to erect on the east side of Broadway, between 89th and 90th streets, covering the plot 200x150 feet. As announced about a year ago, it is the intention of Mr. Astor to construct modern buildings on all of the Astor estate holdings which are poorly improved or vacant.

Reynolds Estates to Build Apartments.

W. Myron Reynolds, investment broker, and manager of the Reynolds Estates, 31 Nassau street, is having designs prepared for a twelve-story high-class fireproof apartment house, to occupy the block bounded by Bridge street, High street and Mack place, fronting on the plaza of the Brooklyn approach to the Manhattan Bridge. The plot is 100 feet front by 100 feet deep, and the first story will contain a photo-play theatre and stores, with arcade, the eleven upper stories being laid out in commodious one and two-room suites, being so planned as to do away with the usual multiplicity of partitions, passages and stuffy little rooms. The living-rooms will be provided with built-in bookcases, carefully-studied wall spaces for pianos, furniture, and in their finish and decoration will especially appeal to individuals and families of culture and refinement. The block will be known as "The Plaza." The architect, Horace Greeley Knapp, of 111 Broadway, Manhattan, estimates the cost at $260,000.

McKIM, MEAD & WHITE in a letter sent to the Sinking Fund Commissioners, saying that certain comments by members of the Sinking Fund Commission Jan. 21 have given rise to exaggerated statements that the building is extravagantly planned, ill-suited to its purpose, and a failure. The letter reminds the board that the site of the building was acquired, "not for the purpose of erecting an office building, but to permit of the construction of a system of rapid transit between the Manhattan terminals of the East River bridges," so that up to the first floor is used for the Brooklyn Bridge station, taking up twenty per cent. of its cubic contents. The plan was chosen by a jury of architects as presenting the best solution. It is further stated that the building will cost $12,000,000, "which is less per cubic foot than any other granite faced office building in New York."

GROWING THE VARNISH TREE.

Department of Agriculture Is Urging the Cultivation of Chinese Importation.

After several years of experimenting in the South the Department of Agriculture at Washington is ready to advise farmers in the warmer parts of the United States to grow varnish trees and will help start the new crop, which, with care, should bring good profits, even on ordinary land.

Last year the United States imported 5,000,000 gallons of tung oil, expressed from the seeds of the Chinese tung or wood-oil tree, an oil which in recent years has had a revolutionary effect on the varnish industry. It makes a high-grade, quick-drying varnish with only slight tendency to crack.

The tree which produces this varnish is a native of the Yangtze River region. In some respects it resembles the catalpa; in the Spring it is covered with large flower clusters before the leaves appear.

The tree begins to bear fruit when four or five years old. The fruit is the size of small apples, each containing four or five large oil seeds. The yield of these seeds in China is thirty to seventy-five pounds to the tree. The oil from the seeds constitutes nearly 25 per cent. of their substance. The apple-like fruit would be worth 25 to 40 cents a bushel, and when the trees are planted twenty feet apart the gross yield from an acre would be, at these prices, $50 to $85 an acre. One eight-year-old tree near Tallahassee, Fla., bore last year two bushels of fruit.

The cultivation and marketing of the fruit and the manufacture of the oil from the tung tree is said to be a simple process. The distribution of several thousand trees in the South in 1906 and 1907 has brought out considerable information as to the behavior of the trees in the United States. It has proved a rapid grower and withstands a temperature approaching zero. It drops its leaves in the Winter and does not start again until early Spring. Therefore its crop is not likely to be injured by late frosts.

Tung trees have grown and fruited well in South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, Florida, and California, and the Government specialists see no reason why the experiments should not result in a profitable industry, particularly where land is of little value for other crops.

The present consumption of tung oil in the United States would require about 40,000 acres of orchards, and the Department of Agriculture points out that the consumption is likely to grow. The department has on hand for distribution to experimenters a limited number of one-year-old trees. What is now wanted to develop the industry, officials say, is the creation of acre plantations in the hands of private individuals.

Smokeless Combustion of Coal in Boiler Furnaces.

The Bureau of Mines has just issued Bulletin 40, which is a reprint of U. S. Geological Survey Bulletin 373, revised by Henry Kreisinger. The authors of the original bulletin were D. T. Randall and H. W. Weeks. The Bureau of Mines has made extended tests to determine the conditions necessary for the smokeless combustions of bituminous coal in boiler furnaces. In the investigations of industrial establishments a study was made of the conditions in 13 nf the larger cities in Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, Missouri, New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania, between 400 and 500 plants being inspected. Sufficient information was collected to make the data from 284 plants of value for this report. In nearly every city visited coal was supplied from points both in and out of the State, so that although nine States were visited, the facts ascertained apply to coal from a greater number. The main purpose of the inspection was to obtain a better knowledge of the influence of furnace design, and of the conditinns under which combustion takes place, on the production of smoke. The summary of conclusions as given in the Bulletin will indicate what was learned by the tests.

A furnace, well designed and operated, will burn many coals without smoke up to a certain number of pounds per hour, the rate varying with different coals, depending on their chemical composition. If more than this amount is burned, the efficiency will decrease and smoke will be made, owing to the lack of furnace capacity to supply air and mix gases.

Extremely high volatile matter in the coal usually gives low efficiency. The highest efficiency was obtained when the furnace was run at low capacity. When the furnace was forced the efficiency decreased.

With a hand-fired furnace the best results were obtained when firing was done most frequently, with the smallest charge.

Small sizes of coal burned with less smoke than large sizes, but developed lower capacities.

Peat, lignite and sub-bituminous coal burned readily in the type of tile-roofed furnace used and developed the rated capacity with practically no smoke.

Coals that smoked badly gave efficiencies 3 to 5 per cent. lower than the coals burning with little smoke.

The January Building Slump.

As shown by the preliminary report to Bradstreet's journal last week, there was no gain in building expenditures during January, but rather a heavy shrinkage alike from January, 1913, and from December of last year. The decrease from December was especially marked, and at New York City the falling off was very heavy because of the large total recorded in December in Manhattan Borough. Taking the country as a whole, the decreases outnumber the increases considerably, but the decrease at New York appears relatively more pronounced because of the December total having been so large, the heaviest of any month for nearly two years, in fact.

The total aggregate expenditures at 125 cities for January was $42,976,618, as against $50,349,048 in January, 1912, and $63,766,048 in December, 1913. There is here shown a decrease of 32.6 per cent. from December and of 14.6 per cent. from January last year. As partially explaining this slump, it might be noted that the total building expenditures at New York in January (four boroughs reporting) was $9,168,026, as against $10,376,880 in January last year and $21,017,173 in December, 1913. Here, it will be seen, the decrease was 56 per cent. from December and 11.6 per cent. from January, 1913.

One of the weak points of the American architect was considered to be their inability to understand and carry out Gothic—a failing readily understood when it is remembered that the architectural record of the United States covers little more than two centuries, and that, apart from the indigenous remains of Mexico, Peru and Yucatan, nothing remains in the two Americas of an earlier date than the Spanish Renaissance buildings of Mexico and Southern America.

In these circumstances design of a Classic or Renaissance character is more natural to the American than the European, and this is also emphasized because of the climatic conditions of the United States, as over the greater part of its territory the summers possess a heat and intensity which we only find in Southern Europe.

Excepting for the round-arched Romanesque type of architecture, which we may almost say was "invented" by Richardson, and which, after a series of years, was swept away by the general endeavor to follow classical lines, the buildings of every other type have been few and far between. We see in New York and many of the older towns deliberate attempts to copy certain periods, usually with a greater and more painstaking attempt at accuracy than we find here. But the so-called Gothic of the United States is usually a hard and lifeless imitation of corresponding work carried out here. We have now in England a number of designers who can carry out churches and other buildings which combine considerable freedom of design with much of the spirit which has rendered mediaeval work so interesting.

The building which we illustrate here, the Graduate College of Princeton University, shows that one firm of architects in America understand the spirit and nature of Gothic design, and we think the accompanying illustrations will be of general interest to our readers. We do not remember a finer instance of modern Gothic design in this country, and it is doubly interesting as showing what can be accomplished by education, knowledge, and skill in a land without mediaeval traditions.

Mr. Cram believes that the exponents of Classic traditions are working on wrong lines, and, though we are not with him on this point, we think the Princeton College shows the absolute mastery of the style which he believes in.

Messrs. Cram, Goodhue & Ferguson are also the architects of the Military College at West Point—a fine example of semi-military design.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

FIRMNESS MARKS PRICE MOVEMENT, BUT INQUIRY RATHER THAN BOOKING OF ORDERS, AT PRESENT, IS RESPONSIBLE.

Cement Stocks Pile Up—Hardware Firm—Lumber More Freely Ordered.

PRICES in most departments continue firm, which is perhaps the most reassuring factor in the construction outlook, as far as the metropolitan district is concerned. It shows that the character of the inquiry for second quarter and later deliveries is born of available money that will be turned into contracts as soon as the building season arrives. Steel and its allied products, such as reinforcement and nails, are the leaders in this particular. It is also significant that sand, crushed stone and cement, all closely associated in construction work, are being firmly held. In gravel, prices actually have advanced.

The change for the better in steel-making pigiron shows that steel companies are preparing for better construction conditions later on. Lumber is also moving more freely and hardware is in a good position, both on inquiry and current demand.

There is still some tendency to attribute the hesitancy in releasing funds for building purposes to the currency legislation recently enacted and now being made operative, but men who keep a close finger on the building money pulse believe that the measure will equalize working capital through the various regional centers, insuring a more equitable distribution to meet the needs of legitimate manufacturing and mercantile requirements.

Under the new law, also, considerable sums of cash reserves will be released, which, under the old statutes, were lying idle in bank vaults. For instance, where the Government in the larger reserve financial centers required a cash reserve of 25 per cent. by banks, only 18 per cent. is demanded under the fixed law, while in less important territories, where the cash reserve was fixed at 15 per cent., it will now be only 12 per cent. This should result in considerable financial expansion.

Such being the case, it is reasonable to suppose that part of this former reserve fund will find its way into building and real estate investment; and it is believed that the large building material interests, like the steel, sand, cement and brick interests foresee this and are thus encouraged to hold their prices and stocks in such positions and in such quantities as to encourage new building projects and at the same time insure a profit.

STRUCTURAL STEEL TONNAGE.

A Comparison Between That Used In Buildings and Railroads.

THE inquiry is frequently made by readers of the Record and Guide as to what proportion of the steel tonnage reported may be figured as going into building construction and the following statistics show not only the relationship between the volume of steel that goes into building construction and that used in railroad and other lines, but also shows the proportionate distribution of steel into other avenues of consumption.

Rails, 3,300,000; structural shapes, 2,800,000; wire rods, 2,700,000; plates and sheets, 5,900,000; merchant bars, 3,700,000; total of all finished rolled forms in 1892, 6,200,000 tons, in 1902, 13,900,000 tons; in 1912, 24,700,000 tons.

It will thus be seen that the structural shapes, which, with a portion of plates, constitute the material in structures, are a very small portion of the total steel used.

Commenting upon the foregoing figures Henry V. Hodge, writing in the Engineering Record makes the following interesting observation regarding the future of structural steel, particularly in its application to building construction:

"It will further be seen that we are doubling our total production every ten years. Our engineers and manufacturers have recently awakened to the great foreign market which has heretofore been practically monopolized by Europeans, and we are now designing a large portion of the bridges and structures of other countries, especially of South America. This is evidenced by our report in 1912 of manufacturers of iron and steel to the value of $289,000,000, as against imports of the same materials of $29,000,000. Of this total of $289,000,000 of exports $120,000,000 was in various classes of machinery and only $13,000,000 structural steel. Our total exports of manufacturers of iron and steel are being tripled every ten years, as shown by the following figures. Value of exports, 1892, $27,000,000; 1902, $97,000,000; 1912, $289,100,000. We are now exporting ten times as much as we import, and this field has only commenced to develop, so that we need have no fear for the continued development of the steel industry in the future.

WEATHER STOPS BRICKLAYING.

Lowest Unloading Record for Week in Several Years.

LESS brick was unloaded this week than in any week since the prolonged cold snap of January, 1912. The total was only 513,250, the holiday helping in keeping the total low. No more Hudson brick will be covered this winter, there being a total of eighteen covered barges left unsold at the wholesale docks, which is more than ample to take care of the requirements of this class of brick trade for the remainder of the season. Prices quoted are still nominal and wholesale demand is spotty.

THE HARDWARE OUTLOOK.

Window Glass Quiet—Nails Easy—Rope Firmer.

CURRENT hardware business in New York and vicinity for the period since January 1 last, according to some, is a little in advance of the corresponding weeks in 1912.

Trade in window glass is still exceedingly quiet, yet prices are quite well maintained, and there is, it is said, little if any further going out of blast by glass factories. People in the business seem to be on the whole optimistic, but there is criticism of the long continued legislative action which keeps manufacturers and others in an uncertain frame of mind. Buyers are specifying generally for current wants only and are not accumulating stocks.

In the metropolitan district wire nails are being taken with moderation, and buyers are not looking ahead to any extent. The late cold weather has served to check consumption, although there is a fairly good business doing, considering the customary dull season. Wire nails, out of store, are based on $1.90 per keg, with some concessions obtainable. Cut nail prices are well maintained. Stocks are light and deliveries from mills are two weeks behind. Cut nails, out of store, are on the basis of $1.85 per keg.

Business in copper perked up around the first of the year, but consumers have concluded that the actual conditions did not justify the information given out by large interests at that time, and trade in this material is very dull. Better times are looked for before long, however. Copper sheets are still on the basis of 20¼ per lb.

In the rope department there is a somewhat firmer tone in the market for Manilla hemp, and especially for wire rope. The recent legislation regarding factory and labor laws apparently has spurred building managers and insurance companies to be more ridged regarding rope inspections, with the result that the buying movement in this department has shown big strides since the first of the year.

CONCRETE INGREDIENTS.

Bars Easy—Triangle Mesh Prices Steady—Sand Firmer—Gravel Stronger.

THE improved inquiry for Portland cement for early spring deliveries is being reflected in other departments of concrete construction. Bar reinforcement prices are nominal on the basis of $2.25 delivered from warehouse New York for ¾-inch and larger. The range runs from that figure to $2.75 for ¼-inch. Triangle mesh prices are steady and are without change.

Sand is quoted at 50 cents a cubic yard for cargo lots for 500 cubic yards delivered along side dock New York. Gravel prices are stronger and run from 95 cents to one dollar. Gravel sellers have all the business they can take care of now. For gravel which has passed the subway specifications as high as $1.10 and $1.15 is asked.

The conditions in the crushed stone department are such as to indicate a very heavy demand for the remainder of the winter and early consumption of quarrying. The subway is taking by far the largest quantity at present and this is taxing the available stored supply.

HARDWOOD MAY GO HIGHER.

Low Stocks at Manufacturing Points—Pine Roofers Up.

REPORTS from the wholesale market show that yellow pine mills have some sawing ahead and that, with the increase in inquiry, improvement is at hand. Locally, there is a fair amount of inquiry and some business is being booked, but prices have not changed except on social orders. Yellow pine flooring in grade of A flat and lower, shows slight increase.

In hardwoods there is a better outlook and indications point to a rise in hardwood prices in the spring on account of shortage of available stocks in shipping conditions. Clear white and red oak floorings have eased off about one dollar. Maple floorings shows an advance of about two dollars. Mahogany stocks are small and some are in demand. There are medium stocks in foreign cedar, but the market is quiet. There is no change in the base price of hemlock. Inquiries and orders are fairly plentiful and the mills have ample business in hand to keep them going.

In spruce there is little or no business being done in Eastern stock. In short spruce some houses have advanced the prices from fifty cents to a dollar, but in other instances the prices quoted a month ago still prevail. "In West Virginia spruce the market seems to be off about two dollars on the list on all sizes, although some houses are holding out for full list prices.

The North Carolina pine market shows a better tone than it did thirty days ago. The city market is quiet, but the suburban territory and in the Long Island Sound markets both inquiry and demand have substantially strengthened, especially for future deliveries. Prices are also holding firm as a rule, roofers showing an advance of at least fifty cents over the December quotations and the tendency is upward.

STRUCTURAL STEEL MARKET.

American Bridge Company Reports Fair Tonnage Since January First.

STEEL building orders are holding their own, as far as February business is concerned. The inquiry continues good, and this has been reflected in freer orders. Prices are now 1.36 and 1.41 tidewater, first half deliveries, whereas a fortnight ago they were 1.31½ and 1.36.

The American Bridge Company began the year with a back log of about a hundred thousand tons of structural work in the Eastern district and has reported a liberal tonnage since the first of the year, including about 60,000 tons of subway work. This tonnage, however, will not be available for the mills for almost a year.

To date more than half the steel required by the Equitable Building has been delivered, or about 16,000 tons. The remaining 16,000 tons for this structure will run along for the next few months. Quite a fair proportion of the steel for the Hell Gate Bridge has also been delivered, or at least the part that was to be handled by the American Bridge Company. As soon as the steel in the Equitable Building begins to be set up the New Jersey Company will begin the delivery of the 10,500,000 common brick required in this operation. About 7,000,000 hollow brick will be used.

REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS GUIDE.

COURT DECIDES SPRINKLER CONTROVERSY

Sustains Fire Commissioner in the Kaye Case—Defines Sprinkler Requirement and Opens Way to Enforcement of New Factory Laws.

IN an opinion by Justice Scott, which was unanimously concurred in by his associates, the Appellate Division of the First Department has affirmed the conviction of Charles Kaye for misdemeanor, for refusing to comply with an order of the Fire Commissioner requiring the installation of automatic sprinklers in the loft-building, 30-34 W. 25th street, Manhattan.

Mr. Kaye's prosecution was a test case, instituted to determine the Fire Commissioner's power to demand sprinkler-protection for the tenants of typical loft buildings and their hordes of employees. It proceeded upon the theory that the Asch Building disaster, in which 146 persons perished under the most harrowing circumstances, would not have happened had the loft in which the fire originated been provided with a sprinkler equipment. The testimony showed that the Kaye Building is substantially a counterpart in height, construction and equipment, to the structure in which the holocaust occurred, as it then existed. Since the fire, the Asch Building has been provided with a sprinkler system. During Mr. Kaye's trial before the Court of Special Sessions it was shown that his building was filled with highly combustible material which would make a hot, quick-burning fire, and that, at times, there were as many as 275 work people in its "zone of great danger to life," the lofts above the seventh story.

Contentions of Counsel.

Carlisle Norwood, of the Realty League, counsel for Mr. Kaye, contended that the prosecution was for the violation of an ordinance, which it was not a crime to disregard; and that, in any event the authority to require the installation of automatic sprinklers was not conferred upon the Fire Commissioner by the ordinance. He also argued that section 83b of the Labor Law, which was enacted by chapter 332 of the Laws of 1911, had rescinded whatever power the Commissioner ever had to require sprinklers in the defendant's building, and, therefore, Mr. Kaye was justified in disregarding such an order.

In their brief for the People, Robert C. Taylor, Assistant District Attorney, and A. C. MacNulty, Assistant Corporation Counsel, pointed out that section 773 of the Greater New York Charter made it a misdemeanor to refuse to comply with a fire-prevention order, and that Mr. Kaye was accused of this refusal, and not of a violation of the ordinance itself. They showed the Court that it had previously held that automatic sprinklers were squarely within the authority of the Fire Commissioner respecting the installation of fire-extinguishing equipment. They also demonstrated that the building was not within the class of structures to which section 83b of the Labor Law relates, in that more than 200 people were not regularly employed therein in the lofts above the seventh story, and, therefore, the Fire Commissioner's discretionary power to order sprinklers in this building was not impaired. Under the circumstances, counsel for the prosecution contended that the defendant was guilty of misdemeanor in refusing to comply with the sprinkler order.

Effect of Labor Law Provision.

The vital point of the case was whether or not the enactment of section 83b of the Labor Law, relating to sprinkler systems in factory buildings, had operated to repeal, by implication, the provisions of the ordinance concerning the same subject. Upon this point the Court held:

"The question, however, is always one of intention, and it carries with it its own limitation that the repeal of a specific act by a general one will be implied only when they are inconsistent, and where it is apparent from the general law itself that it was intended to repeal and supersede all special laws. The amendment to the Labor Law does not respond to this test. It provides imperatively that automatic sprinklers must be installed in buildings answering a certain description. As to these, no discretion is left to the Fire Commissioner or any other administrative authority, except to approve the pattern of sprinklers to be used. But, the Act goes no further, and, neither in terms nor by proper inference, does it provide that sprinklers shall be required only in buildings of the character described in the Act. The effect of the Act is simply this. Prior to its enactment the Fire Commissioner was given discretion to require sprinklers or not to require them in all buildings. By the Act this discretion was taken away as to certain buildings, but was left unimpaired as to all others. We find no inconsistency here, and no indication that the Legislature by prescribing that certain buildings must have sprinklers, meant to declare that no others should be required to have them."

Sprinklers Included in Ordinance Provision.

Concerning the authority of the Fire Commissioner to order the installation of sprinklers under the provision of the ordinance of December, 1911, requiring the owners of factory buildings to "provide such fire hose, fire extinguishers, buckets, axes, firehooks, fire-doors and other means of preventing and extinguishing fire as said Fire Commissioner may direct," the Court declared:

"The argument that the ordinance does not authorize the Fire Commissioner to order the installation of automatic sprinklers is based on the rule or doctrine of ejusdum generis. That rule, of course, is too well established and known to require reiteration here, but it is, after all, but a rule of construction and must yield to the apparent purpose of the Legislature or other enacting body. If we read the whole ordinance of 1911, it will be seen that its obvious purpose is to provide so far as possible against fires, and especially against the rapid spread of fires in places wherein, owing to the manner of their use and occupation, a fire, unless quickly subdued would be likely to result in great damage and loss of life. It would be unreasonable to attribute to the Legislature or the Board of Aldermen the purpose of committing to the Fire Commissioner the discretionary power to require slight and often ineffective precautions to be adopted, and to deny him the power to require the adoption of such other, and much more highly effective means of control, as might be from time to time invented or adopted."

Discretion of Fire Commissioner.

Concerning the discretionary powers of the Fire Commissioner, the Court stated:

"It is also suggested that the ordinance, if construed to invest authority in the Fire Commissioner to order the installation of automatic sprinklers, is to that extent invalid because it unreasonably allows him a discretion which may be used oppressively. That is an argument which, if sound, should be directed to the law-making power and not to the courts. As has been pointed out, the ordinance, in so far as it affects the cause at bar, is no new enactment, but is a mere re-enactment and continuation of an Act of the Legislature. It is essential that the authority to compel proper precautions against fires and their spread should be confided to some one, and it is clearly a legislative and not a judicial function to detemine in whom such discretion should be vested. We are, therefore, of the opinion that the ordinance of 1911 furnishes sufficient authority for the order which the appellant refused to obey."

Disregard of Fire Order a Crime.

The Court, after setting forth that section 773 of the Charter made it a misdemeanor to refuse or neglect to comply with an order of the Fire Commissioner, and that section 775 of the same statute empowered him to require the installation of fire-extinguishing equipment authorized by a law or ordinance, summarized the situation, as follows:

"As soon as this section (775) became a law, section 773 became applicable to it and it became a misdemeanor 'to wilfully violate or neglect or refuse to comply' with any of its provisions 'or any requirement, order or special direction duly made thereunder.' Thus (a) the ordinance of 1911 empowered the Fire Commissioner to order the installation of sprinklers. (b) Section 775 of the Charter conferred upon him legislative authority to require the installation of the fire extinguishing equipment authorized by the ordinance. (c) Section 773 made it a misdemeanor to disobey such an order. We are, therefore, of the opinion that the defendant's refusal to comply with the order of the Fire Commissioner was a misdemeanor."

Reasonableness of the Requirement.

Apparently, the only real chance Kaye had to checkmate the fire authorities was to show, as a matter of fact, that in his individual case the sprinkler-order was arbitrary and oppressive. Commenting on the efforts made in Kaye's behalf to that end, the Court declared that in the face of the testimony this could not be said judicially.

GARDEN CITIES NEAR GREAT CENTERS

Status of the Movement Here and Abroad — Three Types of Communities — Aims and Methods — 30,000 Population For the Ideal Community.*

By GEORGE E. HOOKER, Civic Secretary City Club, Chicago.

THERE are three types of communities to which the term garden is prefixed, namely, the Garden City, the Garden Village and the Garden Suburb. In 1912 there were in Great Britain 30 estates falling under one or another of these three types, and varying in size from six to 3,818 acres. They comprised altogether about 10,000 acres, of which 2,400 were developed with over 9,000 houses, sheltering 37,500 people. The present investment is probably about $12,000,000 and will presumably be several times greater when the schemes in hand are completed in the course of the next few years.

The movement has extended to Germany, where in June, 1912, there were ten garden city estates being developed, on which 669 houses had then been erected. It has spread to France, Hungary, Italy, Sweden, Canada and the United States, and the propaganda is at least going on in Spain and Australia. Forest Hills Gardens and other garden cities within the bounds of Greater New York; Forest Hills Gardens in Boston; Fairfield, the newest steel town, near Birmingham, Alabama; the new industrial village at Marcus Hook, Pa., and numerous other housing experiments recently initiated or now under consideration in this country, reflect the widespreading influence of this movement, even though none of these American instances involves all of its distinctive features.

Origin of the Term.

The term garden city appears to have been, if not originated, at least given public standing by Mr. Ebenezer Howard of England, in his history-making little book, "Garden Cities of To-morrow", published in 1902, as the second edition of his "Tomorrow; A Peaceful Path to Real Reform", published in 1898. By a garden city, Mr. Howard meant a self-contained city—supported by local industries of its own—ideally laid out on a goodly site surrounded by a wide and permanent agricultural belt, its population being arbitrarily limited to about thirty thousand people, distributed at a density not above twelve families to the net acre, and its land tenure being such as to turn all increment in land values above a five per cent. dividend on cost of acquiring and developing the estate, into the coffers of the community.

Of the garden city proper, therefore, there is but one example in Great Britain, namely, Letchworth, which was started nine years ago on the central third of an acquired estate of six square miles, thirty-four miles northeast of London, and now comprises forty local industrial firms, together with a population of 8,000. Hellerau, situated a few miles out from the City of Dresden, Germany, is a much smaller and a more recent example of such a community.

A Garden Village.

This is a community which is only residential in character, and is created by the proprietor of some large industry, near which it is located, for occupation by the employes of that industry. Port Sunlight, built by Lever Brothers, adjacent to their soap factory in the outskirts of Liverpool, beginning in 1895, and now comprising 135 acres, with 800 houses occupied by 3,200 employes of the company, is the finest example of this type. There are probably half a score less conspicuous examples in Great Britain.

*From a paper before the National Housing Conference.

GEORGE E. HOOKER.

A garden suburb denotes an area in the outskirts of an existing important city, developed on ideal lines for residential purposes only, and designed for tenants from this city, irrespective of where they may be occupied. The first and best known is Bournville, situated four miles from the heart of Birmingham, to which city it was recently annexed. It was begun in 1895 by Mr. George Cadbury, on a part of the site to which the Cadbury Brothers' chocolate works had been moved from a crowded district in Birmingham.

The Hampstead Garden Suburb is perhaps the most conspicuous example today of the garden suburb. It was started in 1907, on an estate five miles from the heart of London, comprising 240 acres, lately increased to 352 acres, of which 180 acres had in 1912 been developed with 1,030 houses accommodating 4,500 people. There are probably a dozen or more less well-known British instances of the Garden Suburb.

While keeping in mind the three types of garden communities mentioned, we may perhaps allow ourselves for general purposes to follow the common custom of applying the term "Garden City" loosely to all these types, and thus to speak of the Garden City movement as including them all, and as related to other efforts toward housing and social reform.

Methods.

What are, now, the distinctive garden city methods of development? While these are not all exemplified in all instances, the following are, I think, the chief essentials:

Single Ownership—The entire estate belongs to one owner at the start, and remains under one owner, subject only—aside perhaps from the public streets—to temporary or leasehold rights in individual occupiers. Aside from this owner, no one but an occupier can have any continuing rights in any portion of the estate. By this and other means speculation and non-resident ownership are excluded, and the highest practical degree of operating freedom is secured for the gradual and orderly development of the estate according to experience and changing needs.

Skillful Planning—The estate is skillfully laid out as a whole before any part is built upon. Its different sections are all located to their most appropriate uses—residential, industrial, commercial, recreative, scenic; scrupulous attention is given to the preservation of features of natural beauty and vistas; to the allocation of the most salubrious and attractive sites for residence, to the assignment of industry to the leeward if possible of the rest of the estate, to the wise location of the main lines of communication, and to the adjustment of transportation factors to industrial, commercial and social needs.

The industrial district also, if there be one, is arranged so as to secure the most convenient contact with transportation lines, and to supply power and other special facilities in accordance with some general plan. The sites for the chief buildings, or groups of buildings, public and semi-public, are fixed, the subordinate streets, of proper width and direction, are located as development requires, the general character of houses for different residential districts is decided, and in general the aesthetic resources and possibilities of the site and plan of development, as well as the social and institutional life of the future inhabitants, are constantly kept in mind.

Characteristics.

Low Density.—It is characteristic of all these garden community enterprises that the density of population is definitely limited to a low average—ranging from six to twelve single family houses per gross acre. This is the most central and vital feature of garden city development.

Gardens.—Nearly all dwellings are of the cottage or single family type, and nearly all have annexed to them ample spaces for the cultivation of flowers, shrubs, garden vegetables, and fruit trees. The growing of these is also encouraged by having the garden prepared, as well as the house, when the tenant takes possession. Gardening advice is made available and flower and vegetable shows are promoted among the occupants. Bournville gardens yield two shillings per week per year to the family.

Limited Profit.—The income on investment is in practically all cases restricted to a low limit, this being usually made a legal provision in the enterprise. The limit is from 4% to 5%—usually 5%.

Unearned Increment.—It is arranged in the most important instances that the increase in the site value of the estate, or the unearned increment, shall inure to the benefit of the community, this being done in different ways in different cases.

Sustained Character. — Centralized ownership and management make it possible to exercise control over the entire estate in such a way as to protect it from speculation or the results of individual irresponsibility, and to maintain its character in a permanent manner; thus occupiers are afforded a peculiar assurance that the residential amenities of the neighborhood will be preserved.

Good Homes.—By economizing in streets through building them narrow and using inexpensive paving on subsidiary roads a saving in the cost of lots is effected hich makes it possible to include that much more land in the lot.

REALTY OWNERS WIN DECISIVE VICTORY

Successful Opposition to Herrick-Schaap Bill at Yesterday's Hearing Before Mayor Mitchel and Estimate Board — Action By Leading Associations.

THE introduction of a bill in the Legislature for the third time with the object of changing the system of taxation so that ultimately it will be in conformity with the theories of Henry George has aroused more interest this year than heretofore because of the circulation of reports that the bill is likely to pass at least one branch of the Legislature. It is claimed by the Single Tax party that twenty-six Assemblymen have pledged themselves to vote for the bill, which this year provides for a referendum of the question to the electorate of the State.

Putting to a popular vote one of the most technical economic questions of which it is possible to conceive without first having the whole subject carefully inquired into by a commission of learned men duly appointed by the Governor is a proposal which has caused city property owners to stand aghast. They can imagine the consequence of inciting lower East Side mass meetings with cries of "Vote for Lower Rents and Lower Taxes." In view of the danger of having so perilous a venture made without the fore-knowledge to be derived from scientific investigation under official auspices, the real estate and property owners' associations without exception have taken a pronounced stand against the bill, and this brought about definite results yesterday.

Hearing at City Hall.

Before the largest crowd that ever attended a public hearing in this city, Mayor Mitchel and the entire Board of Estimate and Apportionment listened in the afternoon for nearly two hours to the arguments for and against the Herrick-Schaap bill. It was the occasion of the first public clash of the adherents and objectors to the proposed legislation. Each produced their best and most convincing speakers. The Mayor allowed thirty minutes to each side for presentation and fifteen minutes for rebuttal.

In behalf of the bill, the speakers were Frederick C. Leubuscher, Frederick L. Cranford, Charles T. Root and Benjamin C. Marsh.

In opposition appeared Professor E. R. A. Seligmann, Cyrus C. Miller, Dr. Henry W. Berg, Henry Bloch and William J. Schieffelin.

Many of the most prominent real estate men in the city were present. All the boroughs sent large delegations, Manhattan being represented by Laurence M. D. McGuire, Robert E. Dowling, Robert E. Simon, Henry Bloch, William J. Schiefflin and Allan Robinson, among others; Brooklyn, by William J. Niper and F. T. Conn; the Bronx, by Cyrus C. Miller, Surrogate Schulz and James L. Wells; Queens, by Alrick H. Mann and Edward H. Macdougal, and Richmond, by H. S. Van Clief and Edward P. Doyle. That the real estate interests were finally aroused to decisive action was clearly indicated by the large and representative gathering. The speakers were frequently interrupted by the applause which greeted a particularly strong argument, and the Mayor made no effort to check the demonstrations.

The meeting was a significant one, not only because it brought together representatives of all the powerful real estate interests of the city, but also because it resulted in what will in all probability initiate a successful opposition to the bill.

At the close of the meeting upon resolution of Comptroller Prendergast the Board of Estimate went on record by a unanimous vote as being opposed to the Herrick-Schaap bill. Mayor Mitchel stated that he would appoint a large committee of experts in the very near future to investigate the question and report on it.

Attitude of Citizens' Union.

This week the Citizens' Union came out in opposition and President Schiefflin has made, through Secretary Youker, a statement to the Record and Guide of the attitude of the union on the proposed legislation to halve the tax on buildings and the principle of a tax on unearned increment. Mr. Schiefflin says:

"Bills, having as their object the exemption of buildings from taxation, have been before the Legislature for several years. Many of our broad-minded citizens, however, are vigorously opposed to the principle embodied in the pending Herrick-Schaap bill. Many more are opposed to the plan of deciding tax questions by a referendum. We are included in this latter class. For the purposes of this report, we do not deem it necessary to reach a final decision upon the merits of the single tax, the underlying principle of the Herrick-Schaap bill, because we are firmly convinced that the principle of a tax on future unearned increment is a much better solution of the problem.

"Some of the reasons urged against the Herrick-Schaap bill are:

"(1) There should not be a referendum because taxation is one of the economic problems most difficult of solution. Time and expert knowledge are needed to solve it and a referendum does not afford such an opportunity.

"(2) Experts are convinced that house rents will not be lowered by the operation of the Herrick-Schaap bill or similar measures. As Prof. E. R. A. Seligman has recently pointed out, even if more houses were built on account of the reduction of the tax on buildings, the effect would be a temporary one. He shows that the demand for houses is controlled by extent of population, and a sudden exemption of buildings from taxation will simply lead to a building boom and not to a permanent lowering of rents. He points with emphasis to lessons from the history of taxation in Vancouver, and shows that in recent years the return to higher rents is remarkable.

"(3) Lower rents can now be had in the suburbs, yet the poor people continue to live in the crowded tenement districts.

"(4) Congestion will not be relieved. In considering the question of congestion, the difference between the congestion per room and per superficial area, must be borne in mind. The latter kind, that is the congestion of blocks, will be enormously increased and is the more serious from the citizen's standpoint. Each landowner will be interested in putting the highest building permitted by law upon his land in order to take advantage of the reduction in tax on buildings. The resultant congestion will be extremely detrimental to the city from the standpoint of fire, panic and ventilation, including light, air and sewage connection. As experts have conclusively shown, the true remedy for congestion is not in the lowering of the tax on buildings in whole or in part, but in proper attention to the problems of transportation, the limitation of the height of buildings, the broadening of streets, and the creation of open spaces.

"(5) The poor man will not get the benefit of the reduction of the tax on buildings. The owner of the skyscraper and the expensive dwelling house, the big hotels and buildings of a similar kind will reap the benefit.

"(6) The effect upon the financial resources of the city will not be beneficial. As economists have pointed out, land values will be decreased by the higher taxes. If, instead of taxing both the land and buildings, the city is limited to a tax only upon the land, its net revenue will not be increased. One of the important problems the city is facing is the manner of increasing its revenues.

"(7) The Herrick-Schaap bill and similar legislation will put a greatly increased burden upon the present landowners and force many to sell at a considerable sacrifice. The fact that present owners have purchased upon the basis of a long established policy in regard to taxation must receive consideration.

"We are of the opinion, therefore, that it is the purpose of far-seeing legislation to turn from the principle of halving the tax or removing the tax on buildings, to the principle approved by the Commission on New Sources of City Revenue, viz., the principle of tax on future unearned increment."

Real Estate Board's Action.

At a meeting of the Real Estate Board resolutions were adopted declaring that the board believed that the bill if enacted into law "will have most disastrous results on every class of citizens, inasmuch as it will deter mortgage lenders from making loans on New York City realty, will increase rents and increase congestion rather than reduce both as claimed; will decrease instead of increase the erection of new buildings and will reduce the assessed value of realty and will consequently further reduce the borrowing capacity of the city and may and probably will cause the existing bonded indebtedness of the city to exceed the constitutional limit."

The president was directed to appoint a committee of ten to make arrangements for a delegation, accompanied by the committee to go to Albany on March 3, or any subsequent date and oppose the bill at the hearing before the joint legislative committee.

At a meeting at the Queens County Chamber of Commerce, local real estate owners and builders voted to cooperate with other organizations with the purpose of defeating the bill. The Queens men will have a car of the special train which New Yorkers will charter in order to attend the hearing before the committee of the Legislature.

What the Single Tax Would Do.

The United Real Estate Owners' Associations at their regular meeting held in the Grand Union Hotel, adopted unanimously a resolution vigorously opposing the Herrick-Schaap bill, for the following reasons:

"The proposed bill is a thinly disguised single tax measure, calculated to be an entering wedge to the complete abolition of taxes on all forms of property except land; and it is intended to lead up to a constant increase on the rate of taxation on land exclusively, so as to take away all rent value from land, and that means all of the value of land.

"That it is a radical innovation in methods of taxation for which there is no general or public demand.

"That the enactment of this measure will so reduce real property values as to frighten away mortgage loans, thus causing innumerable foreclosures and widespread ruin to many owners of real estate, who invested the savings of a life time in their holdings.

"That in a great many instances the reduction in the values of property will be so great, that savings banks, trust companies and insurance companies owning first mortgages on real estate will suffer such losses as might cause them to verge on bankruptcy or go into bankruptcy.

"That as the funds of these savings banks, trust companies and insurance companies represent moneys of widows, orphans, laborers and professional men, they would be equal sufferers with the owners of real estate if this measure is enacted into law.

"That as the capital will shrink from investing in real estate, builders, bricklayers, painters, plumbers, carpenters, roofers and numerous other classes of laborers will be thrown out of employment.

"That the proposed law is dishonest inasmuch as it will confiscate ownership in property procured by sale and purchase in accordance with the law of the land.

"That the proposed bill is against the spirit of American institutions and contrary to the spirit and letter of the Constitution of the United States, inasmuch as it is calculated to deprive the owner of his property without process of law, and without any necessity therefor in the interest of the health and safety of the community.

"That the enactment of such a measure would be but the beginning of a course of confiscation of private property whose end no one can foresee."

These arguments in petition form were submitted to the Mayor by Henry Bloch, president of the association at yesterday's hearing.

At a meeting at the Exchange Salesroom in Vesey street on Tuesday, under the auspices of the Allied Real Estate Interests, President Allan Robinson outlined the bill to a large body of property owners, who decided to take active measures both here and in Albany to have it beaten. The meeting appointed a committee to make arrangements for a special train to take the members of the Allied Real Estate Interests to Albany on March 3 to make a formidable demonstration in opposition to the measure.

ZONE SYSTEM FOR THE GREATER CITY

Bill Introduced at Albany Authorizes the Municipality to Restrict Certain Classes of Buildings to Particular Districts.

IMPORTANT bills of interest to real estate and building professions continue to be introduced into the Legislature, although the session is now fairly well advanced. Among the latest measures that embody new principles of law or of administrative practice is Assemblyman Scheidemann's (Int. No. 570), amending the Tax Law by exempting all personal property and all buildings and yards upon real property from taxation, except that, in first class cities, buildings of more than ten stories are to pay a tax of $15 for each 1,000 square feet of floor space above the tenth floor.

Another notable measure, submitted by Assemblyman Sufrian (Int. No. 575), is apparently intended to carry out some of the recommendations contained in the report of the Heights of Buildings Commission. It confirms and enlarges the charter powers of the Board of Aldermen and the Board of Estimate with respect to regulating the heights of buildings and the proportions of lot area which may be covered under given conditions. In addition, these boards are authorized to enact ordinances dividing the city into zones or districts, each limited to a special class or classes of buildings.

Other bills of special interest to the real estate and building professions are:

In the Assembly.

Int. No. 516. McGarry. Declaring a public thoroughfare a new diagonal street running from Jackson avenue, opposite the bridge to the Blackwell's Island bridge, to the northwesterly boundary of the Sunnyside yard, and from the southeasterly boundary of the Sunnyside yard to Thomson avenue, VanDam street as widened, and the new diagonal street from VanDam street to Greenpoint avenue, and Greenpoint avenue as widened from Review avenue to Newtown creek, in the first ward of the Borough of Queens, New York City. All unpaid assessments upon such property are to be chargeable to all the taxable property of the city in the same manner as assessments for public improvements imposed upon the city at large are to be paid.

Int. No. 519. G. H. Smith. Amending the Civil Code (section 1679) by providing that where a deed has been recorded for less than thirty years, no action may be brought in respect to the real property described in such deed, by a person claiming that the property was heretofore sold under a judgment in an action where there were infant defendants for whom guardians ad litem had been appointed, and where the premises were sold at public auction and purchased by or on behalf of such guardians ad litem.

Old Age Pensions.

Int. No. 525. Wood. Appropriating $15,000 for a commission to inquire into the practicability of providing by statute for old age pensions for indigent and aged citizens. The commission is to consist of three Senators appointed by the temporary president of the Senate, 3 Assemblymen appointed by the speaker of the Assembly, and 5 other persons to be appointed by the Governor. The members are to serve without compensation, but are to be reimbursed for their expenses. The commission is given the usual powers of a legislative committee and its investigation may include an inquiry into the conditions in other states and countries.

Int. No. 528. Gillett. Amending the Tax Law (Section 261) by including Bronx County within the provisions at present applicable to the other counties in the City of New York, requiring mortgage taxes to be paid to the City Chamberlain of New York City. It also provides that the statement required to be filed by the recording officers of mortgages on which the recording tax has been paid, must show the tax district in which the mortgaged property is situated instead of the town, city or village in which it is assessed, as at present. The bill also makes other provisions relative to the apportionment of the mortgage recording tax to tax districts.

Improving Peconic River.

Int. No. 533. Talmage. Amending the Laws of 1913 (Chapter 430) by providing that the improvement of the Peconic River, for which $25,000 was appropriated, is to extend from Indian Island to the Road Bridge or Bridge Hole, in Suffolk County, instead of from Indian Island to Riverhead town dock.

Int. No. 550. Gillett. Amending the Tax Law (Sections 181, 182, 185; subdivision 1 of sections 192, 193 and 197) relative to the franchise tax of corporations. The bill substitutes a new schedule of rates and makes certain other provisions. Same as Senate bill introduced this session.

Int. No. 664. Flamman. Inserting in the Penal Law a new section (2040) making it a misdemeanor for the grantor or vendor of real property to fail to disclose in writing, in the contract or deed of sale, any mortgage or lien on the property of which he has knowledge. Failure to make such a disclosure is made presumptive evidence of the seller's knowledge of the existence of the mortgage or lien.

Int. No. 669. Schwarz. Amending the Tax Law (Section 45) by providing that the State Board of Tax Commissioners must give notice in writing of hearings on special franchise assessments, to each city, town or village in which the special franchises are assessable, provided the municipality files with the board a request for such notice, at least fifteen days before the time fixed for the hearing.

In the Senate.

Int. No. 402. Peckham. Amending the Lien Law (Sections 46, 50 and 53) by authorizing the filing of notice of pendency of actions to enforce mechanics' liens with the county clerk in the county in which the real property covered by the lien is located. One dollar is to be charged for each notice of lien so filed. To Judiciary Committee.

Int. No. 425. Heffernan. Authorizing the state comptroller to hear and determine the applications of owners of land in Kings county for cancellation of tax sales and assessments. The taxes and assessments in question are those levied under the provisions of Chapter 364 of the Laws of 1873, which authorized the laying out, opening and grading of 86th street in the towns of New Utrecht and Gravesend. To Judiciary Committee.

Int. No. 431. Healy. Amending the Civil Code (Section 1678) by providing that notices of sale at public auction of real property situated within an incorporated village of the first class in which there is a daily, semi-weekly or tri-weekly newspaper, must be published in such paper at least twice each week for three consecutive weeks, as at present applicable in the case of a city. To Codes Committee.

Lien Law Amendment.

Int. No. 436. Seeley. Inserting in the Lien Law a new section (186) providing that every person or corporation who performs work upon an article for another for hire shall have a lien upon the article for the amount of the work done. The lien is also to include the value or agreed price, if any, of all materials furnished by the bailee in connection with the work. If the amount remains unpaid for one year, the bailee may, after 30 days' notice in writing to the owner, sell the article. (Same as Assemblyman Brewster's bill of last year, A. Int. 583, Pr. 1521.) To Judiciary Committee.

Int. No. 468. Boylan. Amending the Lien Law (Section 235) by providing that in re-filing chattel mortgages the statement must show the premises in which the chattels mortgaged are contained when the premises are in a first class city. To Judiciary Committee.

Int. No. 457. Patten. Amending the Real Property Law (Section 450) by making cemetery lands in New York City subject to assessments for street openings and street improvements, including the construction of sewers, except cemeteries not more than three acres in extent used and occupied by religious associations. Same as assembly bill introduced this session. To Taxation and Retrenchment Committee.

Int. No. 402. Ramsperger. Amending the Tax Law (Section 176) in relation to appeals to the state Board of Tax Commissioners from equalization by boards of supervisors. (Same as Assembly bill.) To Taxation Committee.

Enlarged Powers for Board of Water Supply.

Int. No. 524. Pollock. Amending the New York City Board of Water Supply Act (Chap. 724, Laws of 1905; amendments to section 2, and new sections 46-a, 46-b and 46-c) by providing that the Board of Water Supply may make rules and regulations, subject to the approval of the State Health Department, for the protection from contamination of public supplies of potable waters which may be needed for the New York City water supply. The board is not to construct any sewer system required by plans for an additional water supply, or required to enforce regulations for the protection of the water supply sources from contamination, without the approval of the Conservation Commission. The board must also get permission from the State Commissioner of Health for the discharge of the sewerage into the public waters of the state where such permission is necessary. The board is granted rights to reasonable use of highways, roads, streets and other public property in any county, city, village or town through which the sewer may pass for the purpose of constructing and maintaining the sewer system. After the completion of such a system of sewerage, it is made unlawful for a person to discharge any refuse into the streams or water courses for whose protection against contamination the sewers were constructed. All refuse, including drainage from factories, industrial establishments and municipalities must be diverted into the sewer under regulations to be adopted by the board of water supply and approved by the State Commissioners of Health. There are provisions for the enforcements of these regulations. The Cities Committee.

McAneny Stimulates Aldermen.

The new spirit which President McAneny has infused into the Board of Aldermen is evident in the manner in which that body is going about its work. The board is not only giving more of its attention to purely legislative matters, but is also inviting co-operation of the right sort. The Committee on Public Thoroughfares, for example, with a view to improving and codifying the ordinances relating to street traffic, has announced its intention of appointing an advisory commission of eight citizens versed in traffic conditions. Those who have been asked to serve are James A. Blair, Jr., Robert Grier Cooke, president of the Fifth Avenue Association; John C. Eames, E. P. Goodrich, engineer of the Borough of Manhattan; J. K. Orr, of the Team Owners' Association; Alexander R. Piper, G. H. Pride, of the Motor Truck Club, and Samuel W. Taylor, chairman of the Uniform Motor Vehicle Legislation Commission. In addition, a Deputy Police Commissioner or the Inspector of Police in charge of traffic will also be invited to serve.

New Elevated Express Stations.

In addition to the express stations for the elevated lines of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company approved a short time ago, the Public Service Commission for the First District has given approval to the following express stations: Second avenue line—14th street station, 42d street station; Third avenue line—Grand street station, Houston street station; Ninth avenue line—Cortlandt street station, Warren street station, Desbrosses street station, Christopher street station, 14th street station.

Waiting for a Bridge.

Bronx taxpayers have renewed the agitation for a bridge over the Bronx river at 174th street, and the Borough President has promised to see what he can do to get an appropriation through the Board of Estimate. Property has been heavily assessed for the widening of the street as an approach, and everything is ready but the bridge. The Public Works Commissioner says the bridge is the most necessary improvement on his list.

Park Avenue Does not Sympathize.

Park avenue fears that if trucking should be barred from Fifth avenue much of it would come there, as it is the first longitudinal avenue east of Fifth without a car line. Park avenue has in recent years been rebuilt with fine residences and apartment houses and business trucking would do it no good, in the opinion of property owners.

MUTILATION OF PREMISES.

Would Be a Consequence of Enacting the Schneidemann Bill.

Pending in the Legislature is an act introduced by Mr. Schneidemann (Int. No. 243) amending the Tenement House law in important particulars. As the Tenement House act is a statute of the State of New York and not a city ordinance, the Mayor has no power of veto over the bill. Objections and protests, if any, must be made orally or in writing to the Judiciary Committee of the Assembly.

Fire Passages for Old Buildings.

This bill aims apparently, to increase the safety against fire in tenement houses by reducing and limiting height of non-fireproof tenements from six to four stories and further requiring, where fire escapes are placed on the rear of tenements, fireproof passages not less than three feet wide and seven feet high, level with the sidewalk at the front of the building, which shall be constructed to secure egress from such rear fire escapes; and by further providing tower fire-escapes under certain circumstances and permitting the enclosing of stair cases in fire towers by concrete walls, as well as brick.

The Superintendent of Buildings in Manhattan, Rudolph P. Miller, Esq., has come out squarely against the measure because of the hardships it would impose on property owners. In a letter which he has sent to the chairman of the Judiciary Committee, Mr. Miller says:

Supt. Miller Protests.

"While I am heartily in sympathy with any movement that tends to increase the safety of buildings against fire and will secure a larger measure of fireproof construction generally, I do not think that such requirements should be made retroactive. The provision in Section 16, as proposed to be amended, requiring the fire passage, would be an exceedingly heavy burden on the present tenement properties.

"I doubt whether the additional safety secured would justify the mutilation of property in the manner herein proposed. There is hardly an existing building coming under the provisions of the Tenement House law, unless it is a corner building, that has now a passageway such as here required level with the sidewalk, or which would not be seriously cut up and subjected to considerable alteration to secure the passageway proposed in this act. The construction of this passageway would impose a very serious and, to my mind, unnecessary burden on the owners of property affected by this bill."

The Diagonal Connecting Subway.

The Public Service Commission for the First District has called for a public hearing, to be held February 27, at 12:15 P. M., on the form of contract for the construction of the diagonal station under Forty-second Street on the line connecting the existing subway in Park avenue with the new Lexington avenue subway. This station will connect with the Grand Central Station of the New York Central Lines and the proposed extension of the Hudson and Manhattan tunnels, as well as with the Steinway Tunnel to Queens Borough.

Hudson River Navigation.

Although this has been the severest winter in many years, the Central Hudson Steamboat Company's iron steamers, the Newburgh, Homer Ramsdell and Benjamin B. Odell, maintain an open track to Newburgh and intermediate points, making daily trips, and giving shippers the benefit of water transportation all the year round. The Hudson is always navigable when it is worth while.

—Real improvement can be observed in the general business situation; funds are accumulating at all large centers.

—Excellent rentals are being obtained for new-law apartments on the middle East Side.

FIRE RESISTING MATERIALS.

No Regulations Yet From Industrial Board—A Fire Test Suggested.

The Committee on fire-hazards of the Industrial Board was not prepared at the last meeting of the board to make a final report on the question of what should be acceptable as "fire-resisting materials" under the new factory law requiring alterations in old buildings.

Real Estate Interests are Anxious to Know.

The chairman of the committee, Mr. Richard J. Cullen, has stated that a public hearing will be called before recommendations on this subject are adopted.

Alber Oliver, of 101 Park avenue (fireproofing materials), says there is no question in his mind but that if the requirements of the State Labor law as now understood are rigidly enforced that it will embarrass the owners and occupants of the buildings affected. It would be a rank injustice to owners to narrow the construction now allowable for safeguarding life, says Mr. Oliver, who in a letter to Chairman Cullen, this week, has offered to demonstrate by a fire test, free of charge to the State, the actual fire-resisting and structural excellence of two certain classes of partitions. In the course of his letter Mr. Oliver has written:

"What my own and allied interests, including the Metallic Furring and Lathers Union, propose to do is to conduct a fire, water and thrust test of at least two classes of partitions, to demonstrate to your commitee not only the fire-resisting qualities of the construction erected by us, but also to prove its actual fireproofing qualities, and that after it has been subjected to a fire and water test, a thrust test must be made to demonstrate the safe qualities of partitions classed as fireproof.

"In other words, if a fire and water test should weaken any class of partition called fireproof to a point where the partition could be easily collapsed, it constitutes a menace not only to property, but to the safety of workmen, firemen and others. A fire and water test suposes not only fire resisting quality, but immunity from damage to construction.

"Now what we propose to do is to make a test that has not yet been made. The American Society for the testing of materials calls for a two-hour test at an average temperature of 1,700 degrees F. This is the test we propose to make for your committee, and we propose to go further, as stated in this letter, and have conducted a thrust test to demonstrate as heretofore stated the strength of the partition, and to test the standingup qualities after having been subjected to a fire and water test.

Real Estate Owners Menaced.

"This whole matter is of the very greatest importance, because it is broadly stated that real estate owners are about to suffer seriously if the provisions of the Labor law in the State of New York are enforced. Therefore it should be to the interest of your committee to pay particular attention to two points:

"First: The erecting of work that possesses the greatest stability, the most economical in erection, and one that imposes the least dead load on the structure in which it is erected.

"Second: A construction that is the best insurance for the protection of human life.

"I desire your answer to this letter on the above points and I ask that you call a meeting of your committee to decide upon a time when you may view the test spoken of, and that you communicate to me the result of your meeting."

If the Industrial Board accepts the invitation, Prof. McGregor, of Columbia University, will have charge of the test.

—The demand for large estates in certain sections of Long Island is considerable, agents report, and the renting market for both large and small houses is brisk.

A persistent feature of the investment buying since the first of the year is a lively demand for bonds, particularly municipal bonds. Municipalities are consequently borrowing freely, both on short time and on long time obligations, and many public works, long deferred, will help materially to furnish the employment to labor that is needed to provide a basis for any general revival of industry.

In a newspaper dispatch concerning a report on the housing conditions of Dublin, just issued in London, it is stated that of 25,822 families living in tenements, 20,108 live in one-room apartments. Among 12,000 families the average number of occupants per room is six. Greater New York, according to a census taken by the Tenement House Department, had, a year ago, 919,269 apartments in tenements, of which 4,530 were one-room apartments. Without a copy of the report it is impossible to know whether the Dublin and New York figures are altogether comparable, but it may be said that the most serious evils of housing congestion are associated with one-room apartments.

An interesting and suggestive present day tendency is to be seen in the growing disposition of private associations to combine for the purpose of promoting or of defeating legislative measures. The necessity for such co-operation implies want of initiative and of efficiency on the part of elected officials; but the fact that this want is increasingly being made good by private effort is none the less an encouraging development of modern democracy. The immediate occasion of these reflections is the news given out during the week that a joint study of the Motor Vehicle Law is being made by the City Club, the Citizens' Union, the Merchants' Association, the National Highways Protective Society and the Automobile Club of America for the purpose of submitting sound amendments to the Legislature.

The Real Estate Situation.

If any tendency exists towards a general revival of business it is impossible to find any indication of such a tendency in the real estate and building market. Thus far during the current year the real estate transactions, as represented by the official records, have not even reached the meager total of the preceding year. The number of transfers recorded are smaller both for Manhattan and the Bronx, and they are about stationary in Brooklyn. The total cost of the new buildings projected is also smaller than even the similar figures for 1913. But the greatest decrease of all has occurred in the amount of money which has been loaned on real estate. This decrease is the result of in part the prevailing inactivity in building and in part the total want of speculative activity in real estate.

The corporations engaged in making building loans have practically shut down on the fiancing of new improvements during the current building year. The erection of a number of important edifices has recently been announced, such as that of the National Suit and Cloak Company, on Seventh avenue, the apartment house for Vincent Astor on Broadway and the business building at Fifth avenue and Thirty-seventh street for Robert Goelet, but none of these enterprises needed to be financed in the ordinary way. The speculative construction of apartment houses, mercantile buildings and tenements is almost completely at a standstill. A few new projects are being planned for Washington Heights, and one or two for the East and West Sides. Beyond these rare cases there is nothing doing. The practically complete cessation of speculative building was expected, and real estate brokers and operators understand fully its necessity. In no other way can the existing vacancies be filled and the net rental on recently erected buildings be increased to the level which will make them attractive inyestments. This completeness of the cessation of speculative building is unprecedented in the recent real estate history of New York. Hitherto waves of activity have passed from one part of the city to another. When the West Side was overbuilt early in the nineties the subsidence of the building movement in that section was succeeded by an increasing interest in the East Side tenement houses. So the decline in the amount of money involved in skyscrapers in the financial district was followed by an outburst of speculative activity in the new wholesale district north of Twenty-third street. There has never been a period since early in the eighties when real estate all over the city was so completely in the grasp of conditions making for stagnation.

As the Record and Guide has frequently pointed out, the cause which has had more to do than anything else could to the existence of this prevailing dullness has been the increase in taxation. The increase in taxation, covering, as it did, a period of ten years, and resulting, as it did, in a substantial increase of tax burdens on individuals, not only prevented the owners of real estate from obtaining the benefits which they expected from the expansion in population and business, but it induced them, whereever possible, to improve their properties or to arrange for their improvement. Over-building was the inevitable result; and this over-building was, of course, particularly manifest in speculative districts. In order to restore normal conditions a period was necessary both of diminished building and of some assurance that tax bills would not be increased. Yet at this very moment it is seriously proposed to introduce a change in the system of taxation which will produce uncertainty, prevent any restoration of confidence and stimulate economically unnecessary building.

The existing condition of stagnation is trying and costly, both to real estate brokers, operators and owners, but in spite of the strain to which it subjects the real estate market there has been comparatively little liquidation. Brokers are agreed that the bargains being hawked about real estate offices are no more numerous than usual. Property owners are sufficiently confident of the future prospects of the city to wait patiently for better times, and their confidence certainly will be rewarded. In only one respect has any change in general business conditions taken place which will deprive New York of certain anticipated sources of wealth. The check which has been given to the process of concentration and to the stock speculation in Wall Street which accompanied it has made and will continue to make a considerable difference in the amount of business to be transacted in the financial district. Railroad companies, trusts, corporations, lawyers and stock brokers will all require less space than they formerly required in the office buildings down town, and in all probability they will continue to require less space for a good many years. But in every other respect conditions are changing rather to the advantage than to the disadvantage of New York. The revision in the tariff vill result in the increase of foreign trade and in the necessary transaction of more financial business in New York. Even though the new currency system is organized and administered by officials hostile to New York, the inevitable result of the new financial organization of the country will be to strengthen this city as the financial centre of the country and the agent of its financial transactions with Europe. The opening of the Panama Canal and the completion of the improvements on the Erie Canal will both tend to increase the commercial importance of the city. The improvements, which have already been begun, or soon will be begun, in the equipment of the port of New York, will enable it to handle this increasing business more economically and so to attract more business. The completion of the new subway system will distribute the advantage of this increasing business and population throughout the whole city. Finally, New York is becoming more than ever the chief city to which Americans flock in order to have a good time, to spend money and to transact business. As the commercial, financial, industrial and social metropolis of the country, it is bound to prosper just so long as the United States prospers.

Districting Does Protect Neighborhoods.

Property owners would do well to consider carefully the judgment which Mr. Frank B. Williams passes upon the zone system in German cities, and which was published in the last issue of the Record and Guide. He declares that as a rule districting does preserve the character of neighborhoods, which is a great advantage. It gives steadiness to values. It raises land values without injury to anyone, for it increases the usefulness of the land at least as much as it does its price. The American preference for legislative over administrative methods has resulted in the attempt to accomplish the same result by means of voluntary restrictions, but the German method has considerable advantages over the one which is employed in New York and other American cities. It is more feasible. The lines of the district can be more readily changed as soon as the restrictions have become a drawback instead of a benefit to the neighborhood. It can be put into effect with less trouble and is less disturbed by the possibly hostile attitude of one or two property owners. It is evidently a necessary phase of the increasing desire to make the growth of cities conform to regulations established in the general public interest and unless it runs into the usual constitutional objections will undoubtedly be increasingly used hereafter in growing American cities.

Would It Lower Rents?

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

Will you permit a brief reply to Prof. Seligman's remarks on the gradual reduction of the tax rate on all buildings here to half that on all land, as reported in your last issue?

Prof. Seligman remarks that "the agitation has been ingeniously managed so as to identify it in the popular mind with the project of lowering rents." Prof. Seligman has ingeniously failed to disprove this claim. Perhaps, because he, as an economist, knows that the claim is correct, and has himself so admitted. It is only a few years ago that Prof. Seligman admitted that in New York City we have shifted a large part of our local taxes on those least able to pay. In the evidence he gave before the New York City Commission on Congestion of Population, Prof. Seligman was asked:

"Would not reducing the tax rate on buildings more than half the ordinary tax rate tend to reduce congestion?"

He replied:

"It would have that tendency. A tax upon anything produced tends to check the production of that thing. The remission of the taxes tends to encourage the production. The house is produced for what you can get out of it, and if you make it worth while for people to put money into houses, of course they will do so."

Now Prof. Seligman is in error in stating that the demand for houses is strictly limited by the population. It is limited by the incentive to build and the consuming capacity of the population. Today we have an extremely low standard of housing.

Were any sudden change to be made in the tax system, there might be a building boom, but there will not be any sudden change. There will be an incentive to construct more homes; and less encouragement to speculate in vacant land or to put up "taxpayers."

Prof. Seligman does not claim that vacant floor space makes congestion, because he knows it requires people and crowded rooms to do this.

The most pathetic part of Prof. Seligman's philippic against the reduction of the tax rate on buildings is his admission that the land speculators so control the State Legislature and the local legislative bodies that the city of New York cannot compel them to limit the size and arrangement of buildings.

Prof. Seligman fails to understand the facts when he claims that small home owners would suffer, and that the rich man who builds a mansion on Fifth avenue, or the rich corporation that inhabits the Woolworth Building, would be exempted under the halved tax rate on buildings.

In 1912, since which time the assessed valuations have changed but little, Mr. Andrew Carnegie's taxes on his residence property would have been $5,860 more than they were with the uniform tax rate; Mr. W. K. Vanderbilt's, $5,366.50 more than they were; Mr. August Belmont's, $1,381 more than they were.

There is no objection to a super or franchise tax upon huge buildings, and Prof. Seligman might have advocated that, as the writer has. I have suggested that such a bill be introduced to levy a tax of $15 per thousand square feet of floor space on all office buildings over ten stories in height.

The small home owner would be benefited. The savings and loan associations have endorsed this measure, and it is easily demonstrable that, since the small home owner would save at least $15 to $25 a year in taxes, this would amount in a few years to several times the amount which his land might possibly, though not probably, depreciate.

Does Prof. Seligman claim that the present generation has not the right to repeal unjust laws and to redefine the condition of property holding? Is he an apologist for the status quo with its incalculable injustice?

We surely do wish unbiased and impartial discussion, and that we should get at a referendum.

Prof. Seligman can hardly classify himself as a Progressive, since that party is committed to the initiative and the referendum, and also to home rule, in rates and objects of taxation—unless he favors such a referendum on a question which he admits is of fundamental importance.

Rents have been reduced where buildings have been untaxed, and land values heavily taxed. Land values have not been confiscated; they have even increased, though not so rapidly. Even in Vancouver, the per capita value of buildings for which plans were filed in 1903, was nearly three times as large as in 1902.

New Factory Laws Defended.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The February 7 issue of your paper contains a special article with extracts from a special report on the New Factory Laws. The object of this communication is to call to the attention of the real estate interests the inaccuracies of the statements relative to the cost of making factory buildings comply with the new laws, in the hope that they will take steps to obtain full and correct information on this subject.

Having been retained in an advisory capacity on fire problems by the New York State Factory Investigating Commission during the first year of its existence, we submitted the original report on the factory conditions in this city and State and made recommendations embodying the most practical and economical measures that could be taken to make the various types of buildings used for factory purposes reasonably safe. So far as we know, this was the first and the only complete solution of the fire problems presented by the various types of factory buildings that has so far been prepared and submitted.

Insteal of adopting our report as a whole, only certain portions of it were enacted into laws and a number of important features and questions were left to be decided by an "Industrial Board," which was created for that purpose. While in theory this was a very excellent plan, the practical result has been to overwhelm the Industrial Board with an infinitude of details requiring personal examination and separate action in each individual case, and indefinite delay in the accomplishment of safety as a consequence.

The new laws as enacted and now in effect, notwithstanding all that has been stated about them, are, as a matter of fact, quite reasonable when the actual conditions and real danger to life are understood and taken into consideration. To illustrate and prove this, let us consider the four and five story dwellings now so largely used as "sweatshops."

In our report we referred to these dwellings as a particularly dangerous type of building with a single wooden stairway, constituting the worst menace to life of all the buildings used and classified as factories. In this type of building more or less radical changes are ordinarily necessary in order to make them safe for an occupancy that they were never designed to have, and the cost of the required changes in these buildings is consequently greater in proportion to their value than is the case with the other types of factory buildings. Even in these dwellings, however, no such expense as could be styled "confiscatory" would be involved.

Depending upon the conditions in individual cases, and providing adjoining owners are willing to co-operate, the total cost of the necessary structural changes to make these buildings comply with the present laws would in the majority of cases vary from four hundred dollars as a minimum to one thousand dollars as a maximum for each building. The cost of providing the legal sanitary requirements, etc., will vary according to the conditions in each building.

The attitude of the real estate owners as reported by the various articles in your journal is entirely unjustified. Instead of being harshly treated by the authorities, they have been greatly favored by permitting them to use buildings of improper design as factories for many years in the past and without making any expensive repairs or alterations in them. Now when it is recognized that intolerable conditions of danger to life exist in these buildings the situation must be faced and the danger to life corrected. Common decency and respect for the rights of others require this. Any humane and self-respecting owner should feel his responsibility and be willing to co-operate with the authorities so as to make his building reasonably safe for whatever its occupancy may be.

Let us hope that the antagonistic and belligerent attitude of the real estate owners is due wholly to a misinterpretation of the new laws, and not to any unwillingness to comply with good, reasonable and proper legislation on so vital a subject as safety to life. It would be much more creditable and commendable on the part of these owners to ascertain exactly what the laws require and if found to be reasonable and inexpensive, as the requirements actually are, all things considered, make the necessary changes as soon as practicable, and at least do their share as good and progressive citizens in bringing about safe conditons.

Other types of factory buildings can be made to comply with the law at even less proportionate expense than the old-style residences referred to. Cases in which the changes involve large or prohibitive expense will be found to be very few in number.

The Effects of Taxation.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

It is immensely important to us real estate owners to get right on the effects of taxation. In an editorial you say that the proposed reduction of the tax on buildings might benefit the property owner whose land values are rising, but that "in those parts of Manhattan in which land values have been declining, and which are improved with comparatively expensive but faulty superannuated building, the land owner would be subjected to still further losses and would be obliged frequently to surrender his real estate to the owner of the mortgage."

Would not the reverse be true? The total land values of the city are about two-thirds of the entire real estate assessment; therefore a 10 per cent reduction on the building tax rate would mean only 5 per cent addition on the land rate. The estate owner whose building was of the same value as the land would benefit two to one by the reduction, and the owner with expensive buildings where land values are declining would benefit still more.

On the other hand, the owners whose land values were increasing would find that the reduction in a tax of their buildings would be offset just in proportion as the land value advanced; but, of course, this would not be at all unfair, as their values would go up considerably faster than taxes.

Those Jamaica Dwellings.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

I think the committee of the Architectural League must have had the employes of the Ford Automobile Works and their increased wages in mind when designating the brick houses which I am building for the Everett Realty and Construction Company at Jamaica as "workingmen's homes." Either that or the committee was speaking under the poetic license which would permit the styling of you and me and the rest of us workingmen. The time has not yet arrived when the class which are generally known as workingmen can afford the purchase of eight or nine room houses with tiled bath rooms, steam heat, electric lights, absolutely up-to-date in every respect; for such are the houses being built in this development at Jamaica. They are easy housekeeping homes for refined people. They sell from $7,000 to $8,500 and have been designed on the theory that there is a discriminating public which would appreciate the opportunity of purchasing at a reasonable price houses designed with all the regard to convenience and taste as is usual in the specially designed city or suburban residence costing many times the sum asked for these houses.

THE WEEK'S REAL ESTATE NEWS

Brokerage Sales, Auctions, Foreclosure Suits, Building Loans, etc., Together With Brief Personal Items.

Buyers were scarce.

Those who from last week's increased activity expected the arrival of relief from real estate depression were disappointed this week. When forty-five sales were reported closed in Manhattan a week ago and a high mark was established for the year, the outlook was made encouraging by the fact that most of the business concerned small investors. This week, however, such buyers were not so prominent; no particular kind of purchaser predominated, and no particular class of property figured conspicuously.

The filing of deeds in the Register's office disclosed two interesting developments in the Bronx. The Bronx Parkway Commission took title to a number of parcels bordering on the Bronx River, which will be used in the proposed boulevard improvement. Title was also taken to a number of lots along the line of the White Plains avenue subway by a buyer who is reported to represent a big syndicate.

Important transactions in Manhattan involved a valuable Fifth avenue plot in "Millionaires' Row," which is to be improved with a costly residence; the resale of two high-class West Side apartment houses and the sale of a row of flats on East 79th street which forecasts a large building operation.

The removal of a large chinaware firm from Murray street to the old McCutcheon store on 23d street was of interest, because it brought to a practically abandoned business block a prospect of renewed activity. Several other firms in kindred lines have already established themselves in the vicinity, and this removal will undoubtedly strengthen the situation there.

The total number of sales in Manhattan this week was 23, against 45 for last week and 47 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 7, compared with 7 last week and 14 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 16, compared with 38 last week and 33 a year ago.

From the Bronx 16 sales at private contract were reported, against 16 last week and 19 a year ago.

The amount involved in the Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $547,169, compared with $295,079 last week, making a total since Jan. 1 of $6,785,763. The figure for the corresponding week last year was $584,783, making a total since Jan. 1, 1913, of $6,974,303.

OBITUARY

ALFRED LIVINGSTON WHITE, a prominent real estate broker and a member of the firm of William A. White & Sons, 62 Cedar st, died on Monday at his residence, 53 East 54th st, of pneumonia. Mr. White was born in Boston in 1853 and came to New York 35 years ago. He was vice-president of the New York Plate Glass Insurance Co. and a trustee of the Grenwich Savings Bank and the Henry Astor estate. He was also interested in the Garden City Co., owner of the Garden City Hotel. Mr. White was one of the original trustees of the Association for the Protection of the Adirondacks and vice-president of the Society for Christian Work of the Collegiate Church of St. Nicholas. He belonged to the Mayflower Society, New England Society, the Union League and the Lawyers Club. His widow, three brothers and two sisters survive him.

STEPHEN B. HALSEY, son of Stephen A. Halsey, founder of Astoria, L. I., died last week at his home, Boulevard and Franklin st, Astoria. He was 74 years old, and as a real estate man continued and promoted his father's ideas of developing Long Island. His father was an associate of the first John Jacob Astor in the fur business, and named Astoria after his friend.

WALTER OGDEN, a real estate broker, having offices at 59 William st, Manhattan, died yesterday in the Memorial Hospital in Morristown, N. J. He had resided for many years at 74 South st in that city. Mr. Ogden was forty-two years old.

Chester Taxpayers' Alliance Dinner.

The second annual dinner of the Chester Taxpayers' Alliance was held on Wednesday evening, at Ohmeis' Hotel, Tremont avenue and Boston road. In spite of the inclement weather, a large attendance listened to Toastmaster J. Vincent Ganley, president of the Alliance and County Clerk of the Bronx, and other speakers. The most important utterance of the evening was made by Assemblyman Grimler, after Surrogate Schulz had closed a severe arraingment of the Herrick-Schaap bill. He expressed the opinion that the bill would never come out of the Cities Committee, in spite of the prevailing apprehension that it stood a good chance of being passed.

He said: "I know of but one Assemblyman in this city who is sure to vote for it, the representative from the Twenty-ninth District, and he represents a territory which has but one vacant lot in it."

Other speakers were Borough President Mathewson, who spoke on the advantages of taxpayers' associations; Judge Shiel, of the Municipal Court; Alderman Moran, President Rosenquest, of the Bronx Gas and Electric Co., and Commissioner Miller, of the Board of Education. At the guests' table, besides the speakers, were Judges Tierney and Gibbs, Register Polak and Senator Davidson.

The Chester Taxpayers' Alliance comprises a number of taxpayers' associations in the East Bronx.

The officers are J. Vincent Ganley, president; George Hefter, vice president; Leon G. Losere, vice president; Charles Maier, recording secretary; Thomas Murray, corresponding secretary, and Harry Cokeley, financial secretary. The chairman of the dinner committee was Gustave Killenberg and the secretary and treasurer, Harry A. Cokeley.

Opposed to Stoddard Bill.

Action was taken by the Board protesting against the passage of a bill pending in the Assembly, introduced by Francis R. Stoddard, Jr., entitled, "An act to amend the Greater New York Charter, in relation to inspection of tenement houses." The Board objected to the bill on the following grounds:

1.—The bill proposes to place in the hands of an official a greater power than should be intrusted to any one man or to any department or agency of government.

2.—It opens the door to unheard of opportunities for extortion, great though they have been in the past.

3.—It proposes to give an excessive power greater than ever bestowed upon any official or department.

For instance: Should a single room in a large apartment house, capable of complete isolation, but occupied by a child with a contagious disease, be certified by an inspector or officer of the department to be so occupied, then the power would exist, if legal, to vacate the entire building.

4.—The bill proposes that the judgment of the inspector or official shall be exercised without any hearing on the part of the owner or other person interested, and in some cases with not less than twenty-four hours' notice to order the vacating of the entire building.

5.—It is most improbable that the powers conferred would be sustained by the courts either as an exercise of police power or as not within the prohibition against taking porperty by due process of law, and yet the individual owner in the large majority of cases would suffer all the damage that might be inflicted upon him under such a law because of his pecuniary inability to enter into the necessary legal contest.

Real Estate Board Luncheon.

The regular monthly luncheon of the Real Estate Board of New York will be held next Thursday, at 115 Broadway, in room 415. The speakers will be Hon. George McAneny, president of the Board of Aldermen, whose subject will be "Civic Centers," and Hon. Marcus M. Marks, president of the Borough of Manhattan. The selection of these men is in line with the policies of the Board to keep its members in touch with matters of current importance through direct association with the highest authorities on each particular question. Previous speakers have been Walter Lindner, who explained the Income Tax, and Professor Joseph French Johnson of New York University, who spoke last month against the Single-Tax and the Herrick-Schaap bill. The luncheon will commence at 12:15, and the addresses at 1 p. m. The price is $1, payable at the door.

United Owners Gain Point.

A special committee of the United Real Estate Owners' Association, which journeyed to Albany this week to protest against a proposed amendment to the Tenement House Law, was successful in gaining a postponement of the hearing until March 3, when the hearing for the Herrick-Schaap Bill is also scheduled. One of the objectionable amendments seeks to secure the vacating of any building upon the certificate of an inspector that it is unfit for habitation by reason of inadequate light. This would affect thousands of owners throughout the city, principally those holding "railroad" flats. The association will also protest against the Schaap bill to increase teachers' wages.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS.

Chester District.

The following resolutions for local improvement were adopted at meetings of local boards at Borough Hall, February 17: For constructing a sewer and appurtenances in Poplar street, between Lurting avenue and Roselle street; for closing and discontinuing Sagamore street, from Hunt avenue to Bear Swamp road; for constructing sewers and appurtenances in Unionport road, between Van Nest avenue and Morris Park avenue, and in White Plains road, between the end of the existing sewer north of Baker avenue and the property of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company; for reducing the width from 80 to 60 feet of Rhinelander avenue, from White Plains avenue to Cruger avenue; for laying out on city map at a width of 50 feet, Poplar street, between Lurting avenue and Williamsbridge road; for laying out on city map, Mead street, between Garfield street and White Plains avenue, at a width of 50 feet; for constructing sewers and appurtenances in Westchester avenue, north side, between Metcalf avenue and Taylor avenue; and in Westchester avenue, south side, between Metcalf avenue and St. Lawrence avenue; and in Westchester avenue, both sides, between Taylor avenue and Theriot avenue.

Morrisania District.

The following resolutions for local improvements were adopted at the meeting held February 17: For paving with granite blocks on a sand foundation the roadway of Leggett avenue, from the bridge over the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad to east side of Barry street and setting curb where necessary, at a total estimated cost of $21,800, or $188 for each 25-foot lot.

The following resolutions for local improvements were adopted at the meeting held February 17: For discontinuing and closing Waldo avenue, from West 252d street to Fieldston road; for constructing receiving basins and appurtenances at the northeast corner of Andrews avenue and Fordham road; at the east side of intersection of 188th street and Sedgwick avenue; at the southeast corner of 188th street and Andrews avenue; for constructing receiving basins and appurtenances on the northeast corner of Broadway and West 236th street; and for regulating, grading, setting curbstones, flagging the sidewalks, laying crosswalks, building approaches and erecting fences where necessary in Fieldston road, from Riverdale avenue to Spuyten Duyvil Parkway.

Van Courtlandt District.

The following resolution for local improvements was denied: For regulating, grading, setting curbstones, flagging the sidewalks, laying crosswalks, building approaches and erecting fences where necessary in Spuyten Duyvil Parkway, from Fieldston road to Broadway, and the Post road, from Spuyten Duyvil Parkway to West 246th street, together with all work incidental thereto, at a total estimated cost of $101,600. This resolution was opposed by owners of neighboring property at the meeting held December 30, 1913. It was suggested that the matter be laid over pending the completion of studies now being made for a change of the street lines.

The following resolution is awaiting action by the president: For laying out on the map of the city of New York, Corlear avenue, from West 242d street to Broadway at a width of 100 feet; West 242d street, from Corlear avenue to Broadway at a width of 60 feet; and Post road, from Corlear avenue to West 246th street at a width of 60 feet, and to discontinue the public place at Broadway, 242d street and Corlear avenue.

TENEMENT INSPECTIONS.

Structural Orders For Old Buildings All Issued—Departmental Methods.

By WILLIAM A. ABBOTT,
Deputy Tenement House Commissioner.

I am sure it will be interesting to every taxpayer to know that the department has a regular method of visting annually every tenement in the city, which is as follows:

First Cycle to consist of a thorough sanitary inspection of all tenements and a reinspection of pending violations, including complaints.

Second Cycle to consist of an ordinary reinspection of all pending violations, including complaints.

Third Cycle to consist of a current sanitary inspection on tenements of a $25.00 or less monthly rental, reinspection on all pending violations, including complaints.

Fourth Cycle to consist of an ordinary reinspection of all pending violations, including complaints.

This will give you a very far idea of the current work of the inspector, and below are a few of the conditions requiring his attention:

The inspector must report on the adequacy and cleanliness of the water supply; flushing apparatus; defects in plumbing pipes and fixtures; the cleanliness of the floors, walls, ceilings and stairs of all floors; the lighting of public halls; whether the unoccupied space, such as yards, courts, etc., etc., are clean and free from rubbish; whether there are sufficient ash and garbage receptacles, and the material they are made of; if the house drain is free from all obstructions; the condition of the lowest floor, and if used for living purposes, whether it is habitable; special note made as to whether any part or the whole of the building needs to be disinfected; whether there is any saturated woodwork around plumbing fixtures, etc., etc.

In connection with the old building inspection work, I am sure you will be interested to know that all structural orders have been issued, and, according to an agreement with the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, some thirty-two inspectors were laid off on December 31, last.

Only Sanitary Orders Hereafter.

With very few exceptions, and this being governed mainly by changes in local conditions, only sanitary orders will be issued against your property in the future. On the other hand, do not feel that the work already done will always remain as it is. Wear and tear, the elements, and other influences all tend to undo what has been done, and only your continual vigilance and constant repairing will keep the property in the way conducive to proper financial returns and satisfied tenants.

Let me here say a word or two about fire-escapes. This means of egress in case of fire, and very often the only avenue of escape left open, is too often neglected. Look them over yourself from time to time; employ a regular iron worker or fire-escape manufacturer to examine them for you once a year, or, in other words, pay him a yearly fee to keep them in order, and free you from the anxiety of a fatal accident. Paint them regularly. Do not think that because they are made of iron they are everlasting; a greater mistake never existed, and then when the crucial time arrives, and those articles which you have previously condemned and disapproved as seriously reducing the rental of an apartment, will be the safe bridge to carry you and your family to a place of safety. See that your drop ladders are always hung in their proper places, and are kept ready for immediate use.

Tenement house owners very often get orders from the department because their janitors are careless. They do not insist on the janitors doing their share of the work, so that when tenants carelessly leave bundles of paper for the rubbish man in the wrong place, or the tradesman fastens back the spring of the dumbwater doors so as to more easily convey his goods to their destination, the janitor is too careless or lazy to remedy the evil. Is your janitor looking after your interests, or is he allowing the inspector to call your attention to the little trivial needs that your representative should attend to? It costs the city money every time a violation is reported, and incidentally you help to pay it.

SEVENTH AVENUE ASSESSMENT

Should the City Pay the Whole Cost?

Briefs have been submitted in the case of Wilber C. Goodale against the city to have nullified the assessment which has been laid against adjacent property in the case of the Seventh avenue improvement. Mr. Goodale contends that the city at large should bear the whole cost of the improvement and charge it against subway construction.

The Board of Estimate has laid an assessment of 12 per cent. of the cost of the improvement on property in District A, 33 per cent. on property in District B, irrespective of any special benefits to be derived by reason of the improvement, 40 per cent. on the Borough of Manhattan, 11 per cent. on the Borough of Brooklyn and 4 per cent. on the Borough of the Bronx.

Mr. Goodale alleges that the action of the Board of Estimate in so distributing the assessment is a violation of the Fourteenth Amendment of the U. S. Constitution and also a violation of Article 1 of Section 6 of the Constitution of the State of New York, providing that private property shall not be taken for public use without just compensation, in that the assessment is arbitrarily laid at certain percentages without regard to any special benefits derived by the property from the said improvement. Further, that the proceeding, while purporting to be for the extension and widening of certain streets, is really for the acquisition of property, for the benefit of a private corporation, to enable it to build an underground railway without acquiring an easement therefor, which is a violation, as alleged, of Article 8, Section 10 of the State Constitution.

Mr. Goodale alleges further that the Board of Estimate did not, before levying the assessment, ascertain how various sections would be benefited by the improvement and apportion the expense accordingly. This, he says, is contrary to the State Constitution, which requires that any assessment made, except when levied by the Legislature itself, must be made only after a hearing at which expert testimony has been introduced.

A claim is also made that the interest now running on the awards for land taken in this proceeding could be computed and charged by the city of New York to the Interborough Rapid Transit Company.

Bases of Brooklyn Values.

According to the assessors' figures, Manhattan has 8 per cent. of parcels assessed as being vacant. Brooklyn has 23.8 per cent. All the other three boroughs have over 50 per cent. vacant. Values run high in Manhattan and have been running higher and higher as the proportion of the land that is vacant diminishes. Brooklyn has been slowly spreading out and because of the fact that there was until recently a comparatively large amount of vacant land in the southern and southeastern parts of the borough land values have, therefore, remained dormant.

What, then, is going to be the effect of increasing Brooklyn's transit facilities by an amount greater than the increase in the other three boroughs combined, particularly as Brooklyn has three-quarters reached the point which Manhattan has already practically reached—where to build a new building means to tear down an old one.

"Quite apart from many other consideration this means that practically the average value of the buildings is added to the economic value of the land," says Wood, Harmon & Co. "Take, for example, two streets in Flatbush where the lots are worth $2,000 apiece. On one street buildings have been erected on every lot at an average cost of $4,000 each. That means that on one street you cannot buy a lot unless under extraordinary circumstances for less than $6,000—the value of the land plus the value of the building on it. On the other street you can buy lots for $2,000. Now, it is obvious that when all the blocks, except one, in that neighborhood are improved with $4,000 houses that the value of the lots on that one block (for the purpose of re-improvement) will go to practically $6,000.

"That is the state that Brooklyn is fast reaching—where practically all of it is improved and where the price of the unimproved land is determined, not by its own value alone, but by the added value of the improvements on similar lots nearby. Now if no more people want to move into Brooklyn or no more transit facilities were being supplied for Brooklyn, it might take a long while for the natural growth of the city to use up the 23.8 per cent. of vacant parcels, but with the growth of the city increasing, as it does, in geometrical ratio—with the transit facilities of the city supplying more new accommodations Brooklynward than for all the other parts of the city combined—is it to be wondered at that the wiser heads among Brooklyn real estate men are predicting that—with the opening of these new lines—Brooklyn will be the scene of one of the greatest real estate movements that the country has ever seen?"

LONG ISLAND'S TWO SHORES.

The Reason Why the South Shore Towns Grow More Rapidly.

It does not require the spirit of optimism to predict rapidly increased growth of population now on the North Shore division of the Long Island R. R. since it has been electrified; but the growth must necessarily be close to the line of the railroad because of the geographical contour of the north shore of Long Island. Most of the waterfront beng remote from the railroad will continue to be country estates, and the rolling topography of the country invites such. A glance at the map will show that the north shore is composed of large necks of land divided by bays or harbors. Beginning at College Point and thence eastward the entire north shore of the island is a series of necks of land. The railroad does not begin to penetrate Great Neck proper, only passing across it where it is joined to the mainland. The same is true of Manhasset Neck, on which Port Washington is situated and which is the railroad's terminus. Willett's Point is another neck of land similarly unsusceptible to direct railroad service. The same geographical condition exists on the north shore even of Suffolk County. If the railroad traffic served the area of these numerous necks, it would be required to make an extensive detour on each one in order to do it. To use a homely phrase, "the game would not be worth the candle." For example, Great Neck is more than three miles in length, and Manhasset Neck is still longer. The circumstance must necessarily circumscribe their usefulness to landed estate purposes. If there were not so many necks of land on the north shore, the Long Island Railroad, with its splendid new electric division, could cause the populating of much land that must necessarily remain acreage.

On the other hand, the central and southern parts of the suburban area of Long Island lack the geographical features of the north shore. They possess no hills, but they contain well established communities along easy lines of transportation and they are easily accessible to the bays and the ocean. A distinct real estate feature of the south shore is the diversified ownership of waterfront property. Land developing companies and builders, as well as small investors, have caused the upbuilding of the territory; and it is a truism of the Long Island Railroad that its greatest source of income is from its Long Beach and Montauk divisions and the electrified portion of the Main Line. On one or the other of these divisions of the road are such growing places as Floral Park, Hempstead, Lynbrook, Rockville Centre, East Rockaway, Oceanside, Long Beach, St. Albans and Rosedale,

AUCTION SALES OF WEEK.

Except where otherwise stated, the properties offered were in foreclosure. Adjournments of legal sales to next week are noted under Advertised Legal Sales.

* Indicates that the property described was bid in for the plaintiff's account.

The Auction Market.

There were twenty-seven offerings at the Manhattan and Bronx salesrooms this week and fifteen were bought by parties in interest, six were withdrawn or adjourned and six went to outside bidders. Among these were Frank P. Nolan, who paid $35,000 for the dwelling at 123 East 38th street, and Joseph P. Lynch, who secured a large plot on Valentine avenue for $18,700. The M. Morgenthau, Jr., Company held its initial sale in the Vesey street salesroom early in the week. Lewis Phillips made a few remarks, introducing the new auctioneers, and congratulated the Real Estate Auctioneers' Association on Mr. Morgenthau's joining their ranks. A number of prominent real estate men were present to extend their good wishes.

For the coming week a number of inconspicuous properties will be sold by the various auctioneers in different parts of the city. The most important offering will be the seven-story loft building at 158 Greene street, by Joseph P. Day, as a result of an action in which Henry Corn is the defendant.

THE LIMITATION OF ELEVATOR TRAFFIC.

By REGINALD PELHAM BOLTON, C. E.

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for the American Real Estate Co.

THE limit of efficiency in the operation of elevators does not seem to be thoroughly understood, and in a recent article on traffic congestion, some criticism is applied to my suggestion, in the issue of January 10, to the effect that elevator operators would do well to remember that after the car is filled to one-half its capacity, the more passengers that are taken on per trip, the less are carried per hour. This statement is not based upon any guesswork or assumptions, but upon facts derived from actual tests made in buildings of representative character throughout the country and upon thousands of personal observations of the movement of passengers in and out of elevator cars.

The bearing which this matter has upon the important subject of the carriage of passengers in buildings is of special interest to the owners of such properties, because it sets a limit to the convenient operation of the elevators, and defines the amount of elevator service which should be provided. The limitation does not depend upon such elements as are advanced by Mr. Gumpel in his article in the issue of February 14.

Controlling Forces.

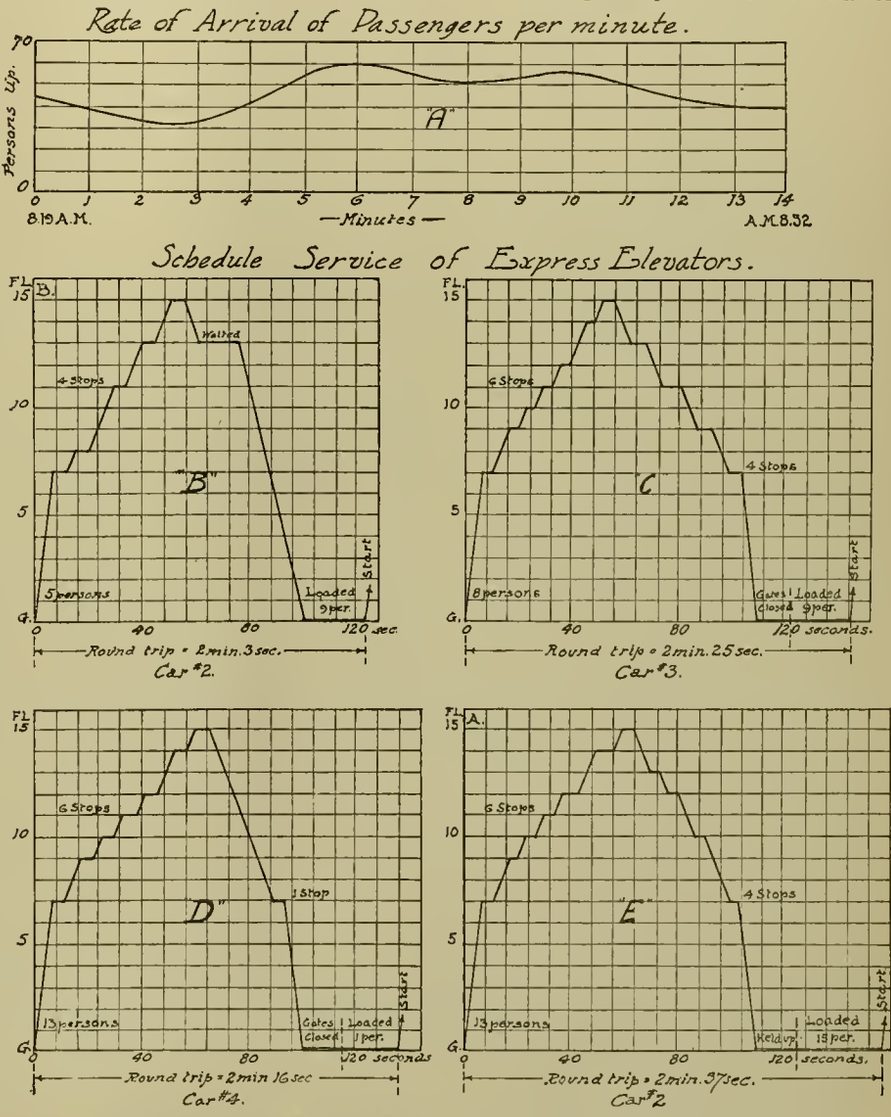
The essential elements covering the principle of limitation are, first, that an elevator machine falls off in average speed in proportion to the distance between stops, and second, that the average time occupied by passengers in moving in and out of the car, both at the loading and unloading floors, and on all landings, must not aggregate more than one-half of the total time of operation.

The passenger time is not that of the most alert and active persons, but is the average of the movements of all classes of persons using elevators. This time is complicated by the movement of persons inside the car, and delay is contributed to by the shape of the car. A car that is too large for the work contributes to delay almost as much as a too narrow and restricted size of car. There is room for a vast amount of investigation of this subject which would benefit individual buildings. All such tests which have been made have resulted in some improvement of service conditions by accelerating the movement of the cars and reducing the number of passengers carried per trip. But these observations cannot be satisfactorily made by counting the total number of passengers or by generalizations, and the only safe method is to make observations which will give the number of passengers carried up and the number of passengers carried down on each individual trip of each elevator car, taking the time of operation on the same occasion.

Average Passenger Time.

The period of inaction of an elevator, or what I have described as "passenger time," has a close relation to the number of passengers carried, and as all persons have their individual characteristics, the only safe basis for determining passenger time is to take the average of all the people that are carried. The observations that have been made on an immense number of persons show that for each passenger making a landing, a loss of five seconds of machine operation results. At the lower landing, the loading of persons into the car requires 1¼ seconds per person and the exit of those descending ¾ of a second.

There is also a further loss in schedule service in making the upper landing, against the operation of automatic limiting appliances, frequently, without either landing or receiving a passenger at that floor.



To all of these losses are added the loss in general speed of the elevator between landings, the average distance between which is less than the distance in which the machine can accelerate to full speed and can then be brought to a standstill by the action of gravity. This mean distance varies, of course, with different types of machines, and with the loads which they carry. The effect of increased load in an elevator is, therefore, to increase the distance required to be traveled by the car in order that it shall attain its maxijmum speed at some point. If this load of passengers is such as to require stops say at every floor, then it would necessitate a loss in the speed of the machine, unless the machine is such that it can accelerate to full speed and then be retarded to a stop in the distance, of say, from 11 to 12 feet. This cannot be done with fast running machines of the hydraulic type, and even with the electric traction elevator can only be accomplished by expert elevator operators, and usually results in overrunning and loss of time in returning to landings.

It therefore comes about that the best work of any elevator results when the distance between the stops or landings is not less than twenty-four feet or two floors, and therefore 50 per cent. of the number of floors served represents the proportion of passengers carried, under which the elevator machine does its best work.

Assertions are sometimes made that the best traffic conditions in a certain building are attained when more than this proportion of passengers is carried; but such a result can only be brought about by a loss of convenient service. The traffic is carried as it is in the subway, but it is carried at the cost of some delay to everybody, and the additional inconvenience of crowding.

For schedule service, the best and most convenient handling of the traffic is afforded when the round trip time of the elevators is that due to carrying no more than four persons to ten floors served, in each direction, or when the rush hour traffic is on in either direction, then the carriage of not more than seven persons to ten floors served in the one direction, allowing for a single stop on the return run. The demonstration of these facts has been made by elaborate observations over considerable periods of time, and particular attention was given to conditions in Chicago, where the inter-changeable traffic during the lunch hour of business days, affords the best opportunity of ascertaining the effects of up and down traffic of maximum extent.

The diagrams presented herewith form an excellent illustration of the effect of over-crowding cars and the consequent falling off in round trip time and loss of convenience of the service. They are plotted from observations taken with a stop-watch in the Railway Exchange Building, Chicago. This is a large business structure of fifteen stories above the ground, provided with two sets of elevators; five local machines operating to the seventh floor and five express machines operating to the seventh floor without stop and making landings to the fifteenth floor.

Effect of Overcrowding.

At the maximum period of the entry of tenants in the morning, which, by the way, in Chicago, is half an hour earlier than in New York, passengers were observed to be arriving at the express elevators at the rate of one per second, as shown in diagram A. The effect upon the elevators was to demonstrate promptly their lack of capacity to handle the traffic with convenience and celerity, and also to afford a demonstration of the falling off in round-trip time, due to the carriage of an undue number of passengers per trip.

Diagrams B, C, D and E show on a horizontal scale the time in seconds and on the vertical scale, the floors of the building. Diagram B shows car No. 2 operating under the condition of a loading of five persons, and re-loading with nine persons, the round-trip time being 2 minutes and 3 seconds. Prior to the peak of the load, the elevators had been running smoothly on a round-trip time of a minute and 45 seconds, which lengthened out to over 2 minutes under the condition as shown in diagram B.

As the rush proceeded, the starter loaded more persons into the cars, and the schedule promptly became disarranged, as shown by the result in diagram C. When eight persons were loaded into the car, with four stops on the down run, the elevator occupied nearly 2 minutes to return to the ground floor, and the round-trip time lengthened out to 2 minutes and 25 seconds.

The effect of this disarrangement became very marked, as shown in diagram D, when thirteen persons being loaded in the car, the gates were kept closed on the rearrival at the landing because the car was out of its schedule, and when it was restarted, there was temporarily no passenger waiting, so that it started its next trip with only one passenger.

In diagram E is shown the full effect of overloading when thirteen persons were taken in on one trip and fifteen on the next trip, the round-trip time lengthening out to 2 minutes and 37 seconds.

Observations in Chicago Buildings.

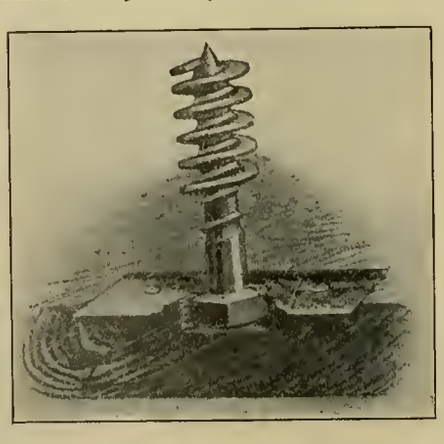
A very interesting series of observations was made in the Old Colony Building in Chicago upon an entire day's run of six hydraulic elevators. This is a seventeen-story office building in the heart of the business district, having a very busy tenantry. The individual work of each car was observed for the entire day's business. The average for the entire day was 4.95 each way, and the heaviest work done was an average for an hour of 8 persons each way. The elevators were run as regularly as possible on a three-minute round trip time, and this offered a reasonably convenient service. But it was observed that the same number of passengers could be handled by less persons per trip on a round trip time of 2.5 minutes, so that by carrying less per trip, the same traffic was handled and the service accelerated by the difference between 20 trips and 24 trips per hour, the lighter service thus being 20 per cent. better in point of time.

Extremely interesting tests were also made in the same building to determine the actual loss of time per passenger per landing by noting the speed of two of the cars with a given number of stops and passengers. It was found that the passenger time was 5 seconds per landing, which is the amount previously stated as representing the average condition. Many such observations have been made, all confirmatory of the main points herein described.

USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration.

Non-Slipping Ladder Foot.



THE combination of a smooth, frictionless concrete floor and a man on a ladder may result in ultimate payment of damages. With the idea of eliminating this sort of risk the Eastman Kodak Company, of Rochester, has designed the ladder foot shown in the illustration.

At the base of the ladder is placed a cast iron shoe, one end of which has a point and the other a rubber pad. The point will hold on wood or composition flooring while the pad will take a firm grip on tile, concrete or glass vault lights. The point is not made sharp enough to mar the flooring. Threaded horseshoe calks are used for the spike and the pads are large sized crutch tips. The suggestion may be of value to building managers who have trouble with slipping ladders.

New Application of Screw Anchors.

THIS device is designed to do away with a great amount of expensive drilling when concrete work in a new or altered building is completed. It is in the form of a screw anchor insert that can be used in the forms. Some architects stud factory ceilings and side walls with inserts at the corner of a square two or three feet on a side over the entire area so that shafting and other fixtures may readily be attached at any time. The province of these inserts, which are made by the Richmond Screw Anchor Company, of the Pulitzer building, this city, is to simplify this procedure.

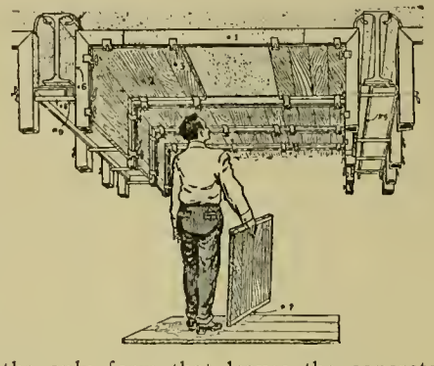
While the spiral insert has been on the market for some time the metal clamps for nailing the bolts to the forms are a new feature. By means of this improvement the spiral anchorage may be located at any depth from the concrete surface, thereby giving any holding power up to the tensile strength of the bolt. The head of the bolt may be counter-sunk or it may be made flush as shown in the illustration. The latter method requires a shallow auger hole in the form; never more than nine-sixteenths of an inch for a one-inch bolt, so that no injury is done to the forms. The entire fixture may be counter sunk by using a clamp as large as the base of the fixture. Several bolts may also be accurately set as a unit, the clamp acting as a template. The clamps are of thin metal and can easily be punched to order. The small size of this insert makes it particularly applicable in complex reinforcement, as it will readily fit between reinforcing rods.

Facing Concrete With Carborundum.

THIS idea, that should appeal to contractors and others having occasion to resurface stone work, relevel stone stair risers, take spots out of concrete floors, refurbish brick work, roughen shoe-worn sidewalks, chip curbs, or in other ways to treat stone, concrete or composition structural work, comes down from Niagara Falls where the Carborundum Company has its mills.



The picture shows one of its new concrete tooling machines equipped with carborundum wheels. The advantage said to be possessed by these wheels is that they cut free and clean, do not clog up on the grinding surface, hold their shape, cut fast and leave a uniform tooling. The cut shows one of the stationary wheels, but for work about a building a portable machine is made that may be applied for almost any kind of work. If the machine is not desired ordinary carborundum rubbing bricks are produced that are successfully used in rubbing off concrete form marks, resurfacing steps and for cleaning molds.

How to Cut Stud Bolts.

A CORRESPONDENT, evidently a machinist in an elevator repair company, writes: "Realizing the importance of properly cutting stud bolts to those dealing with mechanical building equipment, I am taking the liberty of submitting for the benefit of any of your readers who may be interested a method which I have found to be very handy in cutting stud bolts. Thread one end first, then cut off the length required and take a nut the same size as the bolt, which has one side sawed out with a hack saw; screw in the threaded end of the bolt and set in a vise. This will hold the other end firmly to the thread.

A Concrete Form for Beams.

WE illustrate herewith a new idea applicable to concrete construction. It is made by the American Concrete Form Company, Marbridge building, manufacturers of the McKay concrete form described below. The cut shows a form being put into place. The workman has removed the first plate after the concrete has set. The arch and the beam have been molded at one time in a continuous bond, and with the additional advantage of having used only a fraction of the material usually required for form work of this character. It is said to be the only form that leaves the concrete surface prime so that boxes and pipe risers can be set without chipping the concrete so as to give the plaster a hold on its surface. The forms are locked in position and removed.

POWER PLANTS IN STATE INSTITUTIONS

The State Architect Has Plans For Unique Engineering Features — Big Hot-Water System For Letchworth Village — Real Smokeless Combustion.

Albany, Feb. 17.—For the last nine months the State Architect, Lewis F. Pilcher, realizing the importance of power requirements in the State institutions, has been devoting considerable of his time to establishing an engineering department so as to place it on the same plane with the architectural features he is now incorporating throughout other departments.

During this period a number of smaller installations have been prepared and are under contract, but during the coming summer there will be a number of larger installations, plans for which have been under preparation for a considerable time. Plans have been prepared for new heating and lighting plants for the following institutions: Craig Colony for Epileptics at Sonyea, State Custodial Asylum at Newark, Binghamton State Hospital, Letchworth Village at Thiells, Reformatory for Women at Bedford Hills, Long Island State Hospital.

Some of these plans are unique in their features and represent the highest type of engineering, and will be watched by the profession with much interest, all points having been carefully considered and the highest type of material and equipment used. One of these plans, namely for Letchworth Village, is for a central heating and lighting plant and has been studied for a long time. Two different layouts have been developed so as to heat the entire building by vacuum steam and by a hot water system. From the latest information it appears that a hot-water system may be installed.

If such is the case it will probably be the largest central hot water system installed in this section of the country, as this institution proposes to house 3,000 people and is scattered over two miles of area, including 86 buildings. The new plant contains several features of unusual interest. The older buildings of this institution are heated by low pressure steam, while some of the newer buildings are of such a character and so situated that it was decided to heat them by forced hot water.

The power plant at Bedford Hills, contains the equipment required in order to supply one group of underground heating mains with low pressure steam and a second group of underground heating mains with hot water. In other words, the pump room contains both a steam and also a forced hot water heating equipment.

The power plant has been so designed that comparative results from the two systems of heating may be secured.

In the case of the forced hot water heating, the volume of water pumped and the difference in temperature between the water leaving and returning to the power house will be automatically recorded.

Steam meters are installed about the plant to measure the steam, while the water of condensation as well as the cold water make-up will be measured by the use of water recorders of the V-notch type and standard cold-water meters.

The plant is designed to burn soft coal with underfeed stokers and boilers of the water tube type, the boilers being arranged with a large combustion chamber so that in connection with the stokers installed, a smokeless combustion should be secured.

Smokeless Combustion.

It may be interesting in this connection to say that the word "smokeless" here means "without smoke," and not as many technical experts define smokeless in connection with the burning of coal, when to them smokeless combustion means only that the time of smoking is limited to certain fixed periods. This use of such words as smokeless to mean merely a small amount of the nuisance where the words imply the total removal of the nuisance, is one of the commercial technical abuses of the English language, which deserves condemnation and censure, for it is essentially a deception.

In addition to the requirements for heating and electric light and power generators, there are pumps for sewage and pumps for water service and fire protection.

In many cases these pumps which are in duplicate are arranged with one electric driven and one steam driven, the purpose being to secure the maximum economy of operation by keeping the exhaust steam at all times within the limit so that it can be entirely used in summer in the feed water heater and domestic hot water heating service, while in the winter time it will be utilized also in connection with the heating both in the steam and also in the hot water heating equipment.

Long Island State Hospital.

Plans and specifications have been prepared for a new central heating and lighting plant for the Long Island State Hospital, which will probably be installed this coming summer, together with a central refrigeration plant all housed under the same roof.

All of these plans have been carefully studied out and in each case it has been borne in mind that the plant under consideration must be so designed that it can be extended in any direction so as to take care of the present needs of the institution and any unforeseen growth that may occur, due to change of standard placed on insane patients, which if at any time was lowered would cause a great increase over the present requirements.

Emory Roth, Architect.

AN INTERESTING TRANSFORMATION.

An Italian palace on Lexington avenue, that was formerly a group of old buildings.

It is hoped that a standard central heating and lighting plant can be established that will be standard for all State institutions, with each part carefully thought out and actual tests made in reference to same, so that the State will obtain the best form of construction, and that the maintenance cost per year, which is now running very high, can be reduced.

Considerable study is also being given to how to improve the present installations, as a large number of the central heating and power plants throughout the State were installed about fifteen years ago and are now commencing to give out and will have to be replaced within a few years. This of course is a much harder problem than an entirely new installation.

The plant at Sonyea will consist of two alternating three-phase lighting units, together with boilers, and as proposed will eventually provide heat and light for the entire institution, and eliminate a number of small boilers located throughout the institution. In general, most of these plants are averaging from 1,000 to 3,000 h. p. capacity, the boilers being of the water-tube type in units from 300 to 500 h. p. each. The generators are in general alternating current, three-phase, 60-cycle, and turbines and generators are being installed.

Turbines to Be Installed.

One of the proposed schemes for Letchworth Village contemplates the installation of turbines throughout the plant, both for circulating hot water for heating, and boiler feed pumps, together with generator unit. In this plant all of the units will be in one large room, and be directly under the oversight of the engineer. One other feature of all of these plants is that each plant is being equipped with measuring instruments so that definite records can be kept of the coal consumption, water evaporation and power output, and it is proposed that continuous records be kept in all State institutions regarding their cost so that in designing any future plants absolute records will be available so as to determine the proper size of each unit installed. With these systems of records it will be possible to raise the standard of the engineering work in connection with these features so as to make it a standard throughout the State for engineering work. It can therefore be seen that a decided policy is aimed at, which, if carried out, will bring results which have not been obtained before.

An Italian Palace in Place of Old Brick Dwellings.

These buildings on the corner of Lexington avenue and 25th street, were originally a group of three and four-story and basement dwellings, of the same type as the adjoining buildings, also shown in the picture. The corner building had a mansard roof, forming an attic.

In altering the building, the slanting roof was straightened out by removing the cornice and putting an angle iron construction over it, which enclosed the mansard roof and made a foundation for a perpendicular wall. Above this was erected a tile roof, so that the building was made 15 feet higher without conflicting with any of the requirements of the Building Code, and twenty feet higher at the corner where the tower was constructed. As the building now stands, it is apparently seven stories high, whereas formerly it was a four story, basement and attic building.

The exterior of the building was stuccoed; the first story (formerly the basement) and the second story were paneled with marble, and an ornamental roof of Spanish tile, with large projecting eaves and cornice, completed the design, which makes a modern Italian front out of old nondescript brick buildings.

All the work was done without interfering with the tenants. The building was designed by and was altered under the supervision of Emery Roth, architect.

New Uptown Club House.

A noteworthy addition to the group of fine club houses in this city will in a few weeks be completed and ready for use by its members. The building is being erected for the Freundschaft Society at 105-107 West 57th street, near Sixth avenue, from plans by George & Edward Blum, architects, of 505 Fifth avenue. The building is six stories in height and covers a plot 43x100.

The treatment of the facade is simple. A granite base course is succeeded by limestone to the sill of the second story, from where light colored brick, set off by terra cotta, extends to the roof, the whole surrounded by a pergola and roof garden. A balcony runs the width of the building on the second floor, and there are three balconies on the third floor. The building has a cellar and basement, the former given over to machinery, laundry, etc., and the basement containing the bowling-alleys with necessary locker-rooms, showers, etc., a barber shop and circulating library.

George & Edward Blum, Architects.
THE FREUNDSCHAFT SOCIETY'S CLUB HOUSE.

On the ground floor are the main lobby, office and cloak-rooms, in rear of which is the grillroom and bar. The rear part of the entire building is used for service, the service stairs, elevator, pantry, kitchens, etc., being there. A lounging-room flanks either side of the entrance in front.

On the second floor is the ballroom with a lounging-room and on the mezzanine floor, above the ballroom, is the music gallery and ladies' dressing rooms. The main ballroom will be twenty-four feet in height and have a portable stage.

On the third floor are the cardrooms and lounging-room. The fourth floor contains the billiard-rooms, board room and private cardrooms and the fifth floor a library.

In the pergolas on the roof is a roof garden, with kitchen in the rear. The mechanical features of the building comprise a modern heating and ventilating plant, refrigerator plant, electric call outfits, house telephones, vacuum cleaning facilities, etc.

The architects have embodied in this building everything to make it a model of comfort and luxury.

The structure is strictly fireproof and is being erected under the supervision of the architects by Jacob A. Zimmerman, general contractor, 505 Fifth avenue, New York City.

The other contract taken by this firm is for the erection of a twelve story apartment house on the east side of Broadway, 89th to 90th streets, for Vincent Astor. The plans for this building which will cost $1,500,000 are being prepared by Chas. A. Platt, architect, 11 East 24th street.

A MASS MEETING.

Material Men and Subcontractors at Cooper Union—For Fair Play.

Everybody who went to the mass meeting at Cooper Union on Thursday night was presented with a good cigar to smoke. Admission was by invitation only, and there was a large gathering of materialmen and subcontractors. The meeting was under the auspices of the Credit Association of the Building Trades and was a very successful affair. The object was to get co-operation in legislative matters. Every year a number of amendments to the Lien Law are introduced, and none of them ever gets through because they are in conflict. The law has practically stood as it is since 1885.

Milton Schnaier, contracting plumber, and president of the association, gave a bird's-eye view of the situation in his introductory remarks, and he frankly stated that the hope of the Credit Association was that every unattached materialman and subcontractor would co-operate with it.

Frank M. Avery, of the law firm of Phillips & Avery, spoke of the difficulties which the trade is experiencing with the Lien Law, and he outlined remedies suggested in a proposed amendment to the law recently drafted by his office and about to be introduced in the Legislature. An important feature in his measure is a provision compelling the recording within ten days after their making of all assignments on the part of general contractors to banks and others from whom money is borrowed. The measure also proposes to abolish all liens in a given case, where the job is in difficulties and a certain majority of the creditors vote for it. Mr. Avery emphasized the absolute necessity of subcontractors and materialmen being affiliated in well regulated organizations in order to bring about remedies of evils under which they are laboring; and he eulogized the Credit Association of the Building Trades of New York as one having a representation as it has from every single subcontracting and material trade in Greater New York. There was no expression of official approval or disapproval either by the meeting or the association.

C. G. Norman, of the Manhattan Fireproof Door Company, a former president of the association, spoke forcibly regarding the need for additional protection in municipal and State work in the form of bonds from general contractors similar to a provision in connection with work done on Federal buildings.

George G. Bradley, vice-president, dwelt upon the difficulties mentioned by preceding speakers and laid stress on the proven worth of the Credit Association of the Building Trades and the signal opportunity which would be afforded by all those present who are not yet members joining the same. That association he contended was the logical clearing house for the grievances of all subcontractors and materialmen throughout the entire trades, for there they could be deliberately considered and remedial legislation projected. Moreover, an association representing the trades so universally is the best vehicle of expression to the Legislature of the united will of the trades.

Franz Neilson is secretary and counsel of the organization, with offices at 80 Wall street.

—The completion of the Fourth avenue subway to Fort Hamilton has been looked forward to and to some extent anticipated in Bay Ridge and South Brooklyn for ten years, but the first apartment house operation close to a subway station on the line has just been planned for the southeast corner of 10th street, where two 4-story houses will be erected on a frontage of one hundred feet. Inasmuch as Bay Ridge had formidable building movements when the subway was merely a promise for the future, real estate investors are curious to note the effect of actual construction.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

SNOWFALL HALTS EXTERIOR CONSTRUCTION—GREAT DEMAND FOR TEAMS AND TRUCKS HAMPERS MATERIAL DELIVERY.

Street Cleaning Department's Reply to Critics—Coal Supply Not Cut Off.

NOT only did the heavy snowfall early in the week stop practically all exterior building construction up to Wednesday, but the city's demand for teams, automobiles, and trucks, from snow removal contractors was such as to make it more profitable for trucking companies to hire their rigs to the city than to try to ride materials to jobs. In consequence, there was little material moved and those jobs that could be cleaned of snow and ice sufficiently to permit of construction soon ran out of material with no prospect of getting more before the streets were made passable.

This resulted in complaint being made by contractors, with others to the Department of Street Cleaning for speedier work. It was claimed by some complaining citizens that many office buildings and apartment houses were facing a coal famine because the streets had not been cleaned off quickly enough.

When B. E. Martin, president of the New York Building Managers' Association, was asked if any members had reported famine conditions as a result of the quantities of snow in the streets, he said that he knew of no trouble, as most buildings carried a coal reserve supply for a day. Burns Brothers said that Monday was the only day that they were unable to make all their deliveries, and even under the adverse conditions then obtaining they succeeded in delivering sixty-three per cent. of the day's tonnage.

Commissioner Fetherston of the Street Cleaning Department, compiled for the Record and Guide some interesting statistics showing that, despite the criticism that was being leveled at his department by impatient citizens, he actually was making a better record than the department made under a different administration in the storm of December, 1912. His figures follow:

Number of contractors' laborers	6,796	12,713
No. Dept. S. C. laborers employed (emergency)..	7,186	8,024
Total number laborers employed	13,982	20,739
Number trucks employed.	4,272	5,817
Number truck loads hauled	32,631	45,394
Total number truck loads hauled	32,631	48,000
Approximate No. cu. yds. hauled	146,835.5	261,405
Av. No. loads hauled per truck per day	7.64	7.83
Av. temperature	33°	20°

Quantity of snow hauled from streets up to Wednesday, 3 P. M., 47 per cent. more than in Dec., 1912.

One reason ascribed this week for the slowness of the building material demand to get under way was the uncertainties regarding the action on the part of the Interstate Commerce Commission with reference to the proposed increase of five per cent. in the freight rates. The concensus of opinion among building material interests seems to be that the increased rate ought to be allowed even though it may mean continued hesitation on the part of specifiers who, through fear that it will cause prices to advance in many departments of the building material market, will prefer to wait until a closer figure on the probable cost of the operation can be obtained.

The Record and Guide has the assurance from the freight traffic department of the Central Railroad of New Jersey that as far as the cost of building materials is concerned the increase in freight rates will hardly affect the cost of construction, at any rate, not sufficiently to warrant a postponement of building plans for fear that the cost will upset financial calculations.

NO SAND ARRIVING.

Harbor Conditions Shut Off Receipts This Week.

OWING to the condition of the harbor no sand or gravel came into this market this week. What little construction work that could go ahead drew upon the reserve supply already in the city and even that was moved under great difficulty. Announcement was made by the Goodwin-Gallagher Sand & Gravel Company, however, that more sand would be available by the first of next week and that prices remain where they have been at fifty cents a cubic yard for sand, and ninety cents and $1 for gravel, despite an increasing demand.

CEMENT HIGHER IN WEST.

But No Change Is Expected In East for the Present.

PORTLAND cement prices have sharply advanced in the west due to an early building movement and increased specifying of this product for spring road building, but according to the leaders in the trade here there will be no immediate change in quotations, at least until the building movement gets under way. The inquiry for spring deliveries of Portland cement has been such as to lead agents here to anticipate a good demand, but just at present there is little cement moving in this market.

THE PLASTER MARKET.

Little Coming in, but Inquiry for Spring Deliveries Is Good.

PLASTER is improving in demand, but there has been little of this material coming into the market of late. It is being firmly held, however, by dealers whose quotations run about $10.50 a ton for masons finishing in 100-lb. bags. Some time before the first of the year it was stated that an advance probably would be made in this commodity as a result of the higher cost of retarder and the possibility of an increase in freight rates. The state of the market has been such that nothing along this line has been done and it is now considered improbable that a change in price will be announced before the close of winter at the earliest.

AFTER THE SHOESTRINGERS.

Sub-Contractors Crowd Cooper Union to Discuss Remedial Measures.

PERHAPS the greatest demonstration ever made in this city against the Dead Beat, or, as he is known in the building trade, the Shoestringer, was in the form of a mass meeting on Thursday evening under the auspices of the Credit Association of the Building Trades of New York. At that time ways and means were discussed for remedying the conditions now existing in certain branches of the building trade that are resulting in tremendous losses each year to sub-contractors.

Milton Schnaier, the inventor of several systems for testing plumbing, is the President of the Credit Association and he is authority for the statement that over a thousand general contractors from whom payment may be obtained under difficulty and more than 500 who have not a rating even as good as that have been listed. If the members of the association live up to the temper of Thursday night's meeting the activity of sub-contractors in seeking business with general contractors thus classified will be curtailed, unless the payment is properly insured in the beginning.

DECLINE IN COMMODITY PRICES.

Building Materials Show Firmness Despite Slow Demand.

COMMODITIES entering this market to February 1 show a further decline in prices, according to Bradstreet's index number, just compiled. This number marks a decrease of .2 of one per cent from January 1 and it is the lowest index number reported since October, 1911. It is 6.2 per cent. under the index returned on February 1, 1913, and shows a loss of 1 per cent from that date in 1912; a loss of 2.3 per cent. from the corresponding time in 1910 and a 1 per cent from February 1, 1907.

The following table gives the important swings on various dates from 1904. In the groups making up the index number building materials are figured. On December 1, 1912, the index number for this department was .0823; on February 1, 1913, .0842; on January 1, 1914, .0830, and February 1, 1914, .0831. It will be seen, therefore, that while other departments have been weaker, building material has gained slightly. This gain is based upon the following quotations covering these dates:

THE BRICK MARKET.

Condition of Building Movement Shown by Basic Commodity.

IF the condition of the basic building material in the metropolitan district is any kind of a barometer at all of building construction activity during the last week, exterior work, at least, was at an almost complete standstill. It reflects the paralyzed condition of the city as a result of the unusually heavy snow storm as perhaps no other agency could. Newark, Jersey City, Hoboken, White Plains and Westchester dealers reported proportionate stagnation, but an inquiry that presaged an immediate recovery just as soon as riding could be resumed on anything like a normal basis. The only transaction in the wholesale market was the sale of one covered barge and the amount of brick unloaded was merely nominal.

SHADING WINDOW GLASS.

Smaller Dealers Cutting Prices to Stimulate Local Trade.

QUOTATIONS on window glass in this market have dropped from stiff to nominal. Trade in this department is still quiet which has encouraged small dealers to cut prices to move their stocks. This policy is not so general as it was a fortnight ago. At a recent meeting in this city of window glass jobbers three leading representatives of manufacturing interests were invited to express their views on the existing situation, and the outcome of the discussion was that there was no intention of reducing prices at manufacturing points as they preferred to shut down, if necessary, rather than accumulate a large stock only to have it sacrificed. Stocks at present are normal and specifiers will gain nothing by deferring action until later.

LUMBER INQUIRY STRONGER.

Suburban Dealers Seek Concessions—Good Terms for Large Orders.

ACCORDING to wholesale lumber reports, suburban dealers who have been carrying low stocks all winter are coming into the market for terms, in the belief that owing to slow collections everywhere more elastic credit will be allowed in the form of concessions. In most cases legitimate dealers find accommodation of this kind freely given, providing their orders are large enough to warrant it.

REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS GUIDE.

NEW IDEAS FOR IMPROVING REAL ESTATE

A Model Ordinance Drafted By Ernest Flagg Would Transfer Work of Tenement, Fire Prevention and Factory Inspectors to Building Department.

IT is a comparatively brief period of years since the first building code was made for this city. Like the present one, it consisted of a miscellaneous collection of ordinances which had been enacted in the past as cures for some of the most flagrant abuses in building operations. From time to time the code was revised in the effort to make it fit every possible contingency, but not with success. A building law made up of specifications is necessarily unelastic and soon becomes out of date. It is always in need of revision.

Ernest Flagg, believing that it is high time to abandon this old plan, offered some weeks ago to draft for the benefit of the city a more reasonable ordinance. He said a good model could be found in the building regulations of almost any European city of the first class and that it would be a comparatively easy matter to adapt it to the needs of this city. It would be a law, when once made, which would stand in little need of revising in the future because it would be broad enough to cover new conditions as they arose.

Heretofore our building codes have attempted to tell builders what they shall do and what they shall not do; to specify not only the kind of materials to be used for particular purposes but also how they shall be used; they have even gone so far as to embody engineering formulas and technical methods.

Mr. Flagg has frequently declared that if the matter were approached from the other way around—if the builder were required to tell the city what he proposed to use and how he proposed to use it, and if the city were to pass upon the merits of his proposition, all these difficulties would disappear. This is the European method. With such a law here the builder would be able to use any materials and any methods which were safe.

Objects to Be Accomplished.

Mr. Flagg has in the short interval prepared the draft of such a code. It is unlike anything the city has seen before, and is more than a mere collection of building regulations, as it covers the whole field of operative real estate. It contains regulations for safety against fire, as well as against collapse, for light and air, and for safety in the use and installation of mechanical appliances and engines. It contains principles for controlling the height and area of buildings and also their occupancy. It provides for sanitary plumbing and drainage, and for justice between neighboring land owners. A fundamental principle of the new code is the least possible interference with private interests.

It is recommended in the code that changes shall be made in the charter and State laws so as to provide for but one Superintendent of Buildings with a deputy in each borough, that the Tenement Department be consolidated with the Building Department, and all other matters relating to the construction of buildings now in charge of the Fire Commissioner and other public officials be placed in the jurisdiction of the Superintendent of Buildings.

Plan of the Code.

The plan used for the arrangement of the new code is to separate the different matters dealt with into chapters so as to make it easy for use, to throw out everything unnecessary and present what is necessary in as simple and direct a manner as possible. To help in this plan, many words and phrases have been defined, and wherever they are used in that sense they are underscored in the text, so that in reading one may be warned of the special meaning attached to them.

Chapter One is all definitions, and they are definitions which really define. Thus, the word "approved" means approved by the Superintendent. (Mr. Flagg pins his faith on the Superintendent.) "Cement mortar" means approved mortar made of natural or Portland cement. "Fireproof," a construction which will withstand an approved fire test, as applied to constructions; or a building in which only fireproof or incombustible materials have been used. "Fire-resisting" means materials which will not warp, twist or disintegrate.

Discretionary Power

While the office of Superintendent of Buildings is in the hands of the type of the present incumbent, there is little danger to be apprehended from giving him much discretionary power; but, even if it were certain the power would never be abused, it is unwise to grant it, Mr. Flagg says in a note. Over many of the provisions of the law discretion should be left to no one, in his opinion; while, on the other hand, there are many matters specifically dealt with in the present code which should be left entirely to the discretion of the Superintendent of Buildings. "About one-half of the text of the proposed revision of the code recently presented for consideration was made up of matter of this kind, but there should be a sharp line of demarcation between what is discretionary with the Superintendent of Buildings and what is not. Unfortunately, the City Charter gives him power to change the law, and he can do so until that provision is repealed. But if this code or a similar ordinance is adopted, the necessity for placing such dangerous discretionary power in the hands of anyone would disappear, and in time the Charter would be amended in this particular."

Powers of the Superintendent.

The new code in Chapter Two gives the Superintendent ample power to carry out the provisions of the law in every respect, for it provides that no building shall be occupied except in accordance with a certificate of occupancy issued by him, and it also gives him power to revoke certificates of occupancy for any violation of the terms, and requires him to make regular periodical inspections of all buildings to see that they conform to the requirements of the law. When he makes rules he is required to record and publish them. A Board of Survey is provided.

Classification of Buildings.

Chapter Three divides all buildings into three general classes: Public, Warehouse and Domestic, and these are subdivided according to their characteristics, much after the manner of the London building law. Like the preceding tentative codes, this one also tells what shall go to make up a fireproof building, but only in general terms; it does not tell in detail how that building shall be constructed and with what kind of materials. It simply fixes the degree of strength and the degree of safety from fire to which the buildings shall conform, and leaves it to the builder to choose his own methods and materials in fulfilling the conditions, provided he accords with the rules of good engineering practice and sound workmanship.

Nothing is to enter into the construction of a fireproof building that can burn. Floors are to be strong enough to stand a specified test, metallic structural members are to be protected against fire and rust, and the means of exit are to be protected by enclosures of assured sufficiency. That is all. But the builder must remember that the terms "fireproof," "incombustible" and "fire-resisting" have distinct and definite meanings, and that he will be judged thereby.

Building Heights.

Chapter Four limits the heights of buildings; no frame building to be higher than three stories; no non-fireproof building to have more than four stories; no semi-fireproof building to be more than one hundred feet high; fireproof buildings may be carried to any height (a) on thirty per cent. of the area of any inside lot, but not nearer to the street than one-third the width of that street; (b) on forty per cent. of the area of any corner lot, on fifty per cent. of the area of any lot facing a public park, square or open place; in other places than the areas mentioned the height of no building shall exceed once the width of the street on which it faces, or one hundred feet.

Chapter Five, paragraph two, permits increased loads on soils, but not beyond what is considered safe and customary.

Walls.

Chapter Six relates to walls, piers and partitions. The requirements for walls are more stringent than at present, but Mr. Flagg says the main underlying policy of the ordinance is to discourage dangerous construction; and he holds that flimsy walls is one of the worst characteristics of American construction. A handicap is placed on the use of wood by requiring heavier walls for buildings in which wood beams are used than are required in buildings in which the floor system is incombustible.

Foundation walls of hollow blocks are permitted for buildings not exceeding four stories, provided the upper walls are built of hollow blocks or frame construction of the required thickness.

Improperly built chimneys and flues have been responsible for a very large percentage of the fires which occur in this country, and too much care cannot be taken in their construction. Our regulations have been particularly lax in respect to flues in party walls; the course of the flues not being marked on the wall, beams are often inserted in dangerous proximity to flues. In Paris no beams are allowed in party walls. In this ordinance several safeguards found in European building laws have been added to those we have, and several unnecessary requirements have been omitted.

When a building rises above the level of the roof of an adjoining building, the owner of the new building must carry up at his own expense the flues of his neighbor's house. No hot-air pipe shall be placed between floor and ceiling or enter a stud partition unless it is eight feet away from the furnace. No wood lath shall be used for the support of plaster within the fire limits.

Chapter Eight calls for the fireproof protection of all structural steel used as members in a building by coatings of cement.

Incombustible Floors.

Chapter Nine, relating to floors and roofs, provides for incombustible floors in domestic buildings of moderate height. These floors shall be amply strong, but not so strong as to make them impracticable for use in competition with wood. Such floors must be designed for a live load of thirty pounds to the foot and shall be able to withstand a test of one hundred pounds live load to the square foot, which is just about ten times the load that is ever likely to be placed on them. Floors strong enough to support a load of that amount will weigh not more than fifty pounds to the foot, which, added to the live load, one hundred pounds, makes a required strength of one hundred and fifty pounds, against the five hundred and twenty now required. A floor of this kind of incombustible material can be built almost as cheaply as a floor of wood.

The object of Chapter Ten is to cut off all shafts absolutely from the rest of the building by enclosing them in fireproof material throughout. Chapter Eleven requires that fences, billboards and signs shall be constructed of metal, except the supports, braces and ornamental mouldings.

Elevator Shafts.

The chapter on Exits is a long one, and no part of the code has received more attention from its author. The number of exits is prescribed, their width for every part of the building fixed, their arrangement and construction settled, and rules are given for determining the number of people to be accommodated. Every building more than thirty-six feet high shall have, in addition to the ordinary exit, at least one emergency exit for every fire division of a floor. In no building, old or new, shall there be employed or lodged above the second floor at any one time more than one hundred and fifty people, unless each floor or fire division of a floor shall have at least two separate approved means of exit.

There are provisions for safety in places of public assemblages, and also in a separate chapter provisions for safety in factories and workrooms, regulations for protection of the public during building operations, concerning the use of the street in front of building operations; and the code concludes with some general regulations for sanitation, plumbing and ventilation, but leaves it to the Superintendent to formulate particular rules to meet conditions that may arise in future building practice.

RESTRICTIVE COVENANT INVALIDATED

Court of Appeals Will Not Uphold Old Restrictions Where the Character of the Neighborhood Has Undergone a Change—The Batchelor-Hinkle Case.

ONE of the most important and far-reaching decisions affecting set-back restrictions in this city has just been handed down by the Court of Appeals, in the case of Rosanna Batchelor against Eugene E. Hinkle and Terry Hinkle (proprietors of the Hinkle Iron Works). Incidentally it practically ends a litigation begun in 1908, in which three trials were had in the Supreme Court in this city, in two of which the verdicts were upset by the Appellate Division. On the last trial the Supreme Court had no alternative but to find as directed by the Appellate Division. The practical effect of the present decision is to uphold the decisions in the Supreme Court, which were in favor of the defendants, and to reverse the judgments of the Appellate Division in all three instances in which the case was reviewed by it.

The case was one brought by Mrs. Batchelor, owner of No. 26, against the Hinkle Brothers for an injunction to restrain them from building out to the line at 36, 38 and 40 West 26th street, on a 60-foot plot they had purchased from Mrs. Mary E. Strong, widow of the former Mayor, and to enforce a set-back covenant, of five feet, for courtyards, and which affected both sides of the two blocks between 24th and 26th streets, between Broadway and Sixth avenue. Messrs. Merrill & Rogers appeared for the plaintiff, while the defendants were represented throughout the litigation by James W. McElhinney, Esq.

On the first trial, before Justice Bruce, in October, 1908, the injunction asked for was refused, and the plaintiff appealed. The Appellate Division reversed Judge Bruce's decision, on both the law and the facts, and a new trial was ordered. The second trial was before Justice, now U. S. Senator, O'Gorman, who under the ruling of the Appellate Division, awarded damages in the sum of $1 to the plaintiff and directed an injunction to issue, which would have required the Hinkle brothers to tear down the front five feet of their twelve-story building (which they had erected after the refusal of the injunction originally asked for) unless they paid the award of $1 and costs.

Had Mrs. Batchelor rested there the court records would have found the restrictive covenant sustained, and future builders on these two blocks would have conformed to it, or could have been enjoined. But Mrs. Batchelor was not satisfied with the nominal damages awarded, and again appealed. And again the Appellate Division decided in her favor, in October, 1910, and directed the lower court to find substantial damages or to enforce the injunction.

The third trial was before Justice Erlanger, in March, 1911, and since he could not find substantial damages he was bound by the ruling of the Appellate Division to issue the injunction requiring the removal of the front five feet of the building from the presumed courtyard. From this decision the defendants appealed, first to the Appellate Division which consistently with its former rulings decided against them, and then to the Court of Appeals, the court of last resort.

Change of Character.

The opinion of this court is written by Justice Cuddeback, the full bench concurring. After reviewing the facts as substantially above set forth, and observing that the intention of the covenanters was to establish a location desirable for first-class residences, which was effected, and that this first-class residential neighborhood had declined in time to the boarding-house and furnished-room class, and that business had encroached upon it, and the land had become too valuable to be used longer for residence purposes, the Court of Appeals found that the "set-back" covenant was "a detriment to the property on which tall buildings are to be erected, because it curtails the floor space in the buildings by which the rental value is fixed"; that the courtyards designed for ornament were out of place before business buildings; that the plaintiff had suffered no damage from the erection of defendants' building on the street line, but, on the contrary, the market and rental value of her property and of all the other property on the street had been increased thereby, and that the plaintiff had suffered no damage, while to enforce the covenant would greatly damage the defendants.

Restriction Not Absolute.

Mrs. Batchelor may still, under the decision, perhaps, sue for damages. But with the finding of the Court of Appeals against her on that point she will probably forbear. The decision seems to establish more firmly the former holdings of this great court, that where profound neighborhood changes have taken place, and the property has become more valuable for other uses, unless the plaintiff can show substantial damages it will not uphold neighborhood covenants against the full use of the land.

There are about twenty modern fireproof loft buildings now in these two blocks, all of which, except the Hinkle building, have been built five feet back from the line. In 26th street there are two that were erected by a builder who was a witness for the defendants on each of the three trials in the Supreme Court. Yet he conformed to the ruling by the Appellate Division, which has now been upset by this decision of the Court of Appeals. To the Hinkles it is a matter of some importance, since it relieves them of an impending charge of $60,000 which would have been the cost of taking down and reconstructing five feet back the front of their recently erected building.

WHY THE INCREMENT TAX IS UNAMERICAN

It Would Mean Double Taxation in This Country, Where We Have a Capital Tax on Real Estate Which Includes a Tax on the Increment.

By CYRUS C. MILLER.

RECENTLY we have heard much about the "half tax," the "single tax" and the "increment tax." It has been proposed to change our system of taxation, which is a straight tax on land and improvements, by substituting the half-tax, or the single-tax, and adding the increment tax. The last-named is a tax or surtax over and above the straight tax on the increased value of land which it is claimed is produced by the community, because of the growing demand of an increasing population, and not by the owner. The single-tax proposes to take away the economic rent of land for the uses of the community so that the owner will gain no profit from it. For example, if the land will bring five per cent. on its capital value (its economic rent) the tax will be five per cent., and the selling value of the land will be destroyed. This will prevent the owner from gaining any advantage from the increased value of the land. The buildings and improvements on the land under this system are free from tax. The half-tax, as its name suggests, taxes buildings at half the rate of land and adds the amount of tax taken off buildings and improvements on the land.

Imported Systems Rarely Suitable Here.

While we should be progressive in our attitude and willing to adopt any methods which prove upon examination to be better than what we have, we should not jump to the conclusion that because a method is in use in foreign countries it will work well here.

These proposed systems are imported from other countries, and it might be well to stop and inquire into the conditions in the localities where they are in vogue to see whether they would be of benefit to us where conditions are different.

A Police Measure.

The single-tax primarily is a police measure designed to prevent large holdings of land which pay no taxes, thus making a heavier burden on other land or on the community. If all the taxes necessary for the community are laid on the land which pays no taxes, the effect is to break up large holdings into small parcels which can be improved and bring in an income or furnish homes, which is the same thing.

The following quotation from a pamphlet issued by the single-taxers make this clear:

> "The concentration of land ownership in England is unparalleled in the United States. The irritating spectacle of enormous entailed estates with large areas held for game preserves, and the practical exemption of land from all local taxation, has fermented a state of public opinion favorable to single tax ideas."

In this country, and especially in the cities, there is no necessity for such a measure, as all land pays the same rate, whether it is held in large holdings or small. A block of land in the city pays the same amount of taxes whether it is held by one owner or twenty.

We Tax Capital Value.

The increment tax, which is a special tax used in England and Germany, taxes the increase in value, as the system of taxation there is not a capital tax, i. e., a tax on the value of the land—but a rental tax or a leasehold tax, or occupation tax, or a poll tax, or an income tax, or whatever it may be, so that an increment tax is necessary to tax the increase in value. In this country we tax the capital value, so that where there is an increase in the value of the property whether by additions through assessments or by improvements or by unearned increment, so-called, the increase in the value is taxed. We pay an increment tax now. Why pay it twice? It is to be seen, therefore, that systems of taxation which suit conditions in other countries may not fit conditions here.

Who Will Refund the Decrement?

It is claimed that the increment tax is just because it is caused by the increase in population and the resulting increase in demand, and is not earned by the owner. If the population moves away, what redress is there for the owner who has expended his money on buildings and improvements, relying on the permanent stay of the population? If there is a tax on the unearned increment where there is an increase in value, should there not be a return for the undeserved detriment where there is a decrease?

It does not seem to impress those who favor the increment tax that the more property is taxed, the less capital will be invested in it, thereby retarding the development of real estate. The fact seems to be forgotten also that the increment tax will bear more heavily upon property in the suburbs than in the center of the city, because in the suburbs the percentage of increase, when there is an increase, is higher than in the center. The injustice of taxing the increment in the suburbs lies in the fact that capital has been invested in the suburbs sometimes many years before there is an increment. In the meantime taxes, assessments and interest have accumulated. These are to be repaid only when the increment begins to grow, but at this point the State steps in and takes what the investor should have had to repay him for his foresight and frugality. The inevitable tendency of the tax will be to retard the development of the suburbs and to increase congestion in the center.

Not Compelled to Invest.

Capital is not compelled to invest in real estate. It will go there only when it is assured of a profit. The ultimate benefit to the community requires that all obstacles to the free flow of capital be removed. Increment is the profit coming to the prudent investor in real estate and should belong to him. This is the only way to encourage enterprise. If an increment tax is to be imposed because the population makes the value, why not tax the increment in goods manufactured in New Jersey, where there are not enough people to buy them, and transported to New York where there are people enough to buy them? How does real estate differ from any other commodity?

Deterioration of Buildings.

The increase in land values makes up for the decrease in values of buildings which become worn out or out of date. The hope of an increase in the value of the land induces capital to invest in real estate. The building, of course, must decrease in value. If this loss is not made up by increase in land values it must be paid by tenants in the form of higher rents. Any increment tax on land values must lessen the compensation for the loss of buildings.

The Commission on New Sources of City Revenue, in its report to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment on January 11, 1913, says: "The proposed tax should not be levied upon any increment which results from the labor or expenditures of the owner. If land appreciates because of improvements paid for by the owner, such as grading and clearing, or connections for water, light and sewage, or street openings, paving, etc., such an increment, to the extent that it represents capital invested by the owner, would not be subject to the tax. We propose, in short, that the tax shall be levied only upon the unearned 'increment' which results from the growth of the city and from improvements made by the city or by others than the owner himself. If, therefore, the value of a piece of land should rise from $100,000 in 1912 to $110,000 in 1913, and the owner can show that he has expended $4,000 in permanent improvements, either upon his own initiative or in payment of special assessments levied by the municipality, he would be subject to an increment tax on only $6,000; and thereafter the base valuation of land from which future increments would be calculated would be $104,000 instead of $100,000."

Owners Entitled to Interest.

Two very important omissions here should be noted. First, the report does not propose to allow the owner interest on the cost of his improvements. In every other investment of capital interest on the money is computed before a profit is declared. Sometimes the interest exceeds the increment. Second, the report does not subtract from the increment to be taxed, the manufacturer's profit belonging to the owner from having invested his capital and labor in improvements on an unproductive property and converted it into a productive one. This is not an unearned increment. I think also that the base valuation of land from which future increments would be calculated would be $106,000, and not $104,000.

Lastly, if the justice of the principle of an increment tax be conceded, what guarantee is there that it will be limited to 1% of the value of the increment? There seems to be nothing to prevent the whole of the increment from being taken, except the whim of the lawmakers.

To recapitulate: An increment tax is a foreign idea not fitted to our system of taxation, as we pay an increment tax now; it will diminish the amount of capital invested in real estate, thereby retarding real estate development; it will discourage enterprise by taking away the profit from investment in real estate; it does not allow a deduction of interest on investments and the development profit to be taken out before it is imposed; it will bear most heavily on suburban development, where the increment is deferred for a long time while the investment is increasing; while the community may be able by it to collect an extra tax, it will lose as much or more in other ways through the discouragement of capital.

—The single-tax colonies will miss the support of Joseph Fels, unless he has remembered them generously in his will, for he scattered among them a great deal of the "accursed money" he was trying to get rid of. Mr. Fels contributed to the support of colonies instituted in advocacy of Henry George principles in the British Isles, Sweden, Denmark, France, Australia and Canada, and made the mistake of thinking that economic systems and methods devised for the needs of monarchical governments are invariably, instead of rarely, applicable in free America.

STATE CONTROL OF INVESTMENT SECURITIES

New Bill at Albany Would Place Corporations Selling Stocks and Bonds Under the Supervision of the Banking Department.

A NUMBER of important bills were introduced into the Legislature during the week. Among them was a measure giving the State Banking Department supervision over corporations which sell bonds and stocks. A bill of this nature has been advocated by the Superintendent of Banks and has consequently been expected by the real estate and building interests of this city, who, however, have been in some doubt whether or not the proposed legislation would cover all classes of corporations. The present bill, introduced by Assemblyman Karutz (Int. No. 837), is general in its application.

It proposes to insert in the Banking Law a new article (10-a; 13 new sections, 315 to 337, inclusive) providing for the regulation of investment companies by the Superintendent of Banks.

An investment company is defined as any corporation, association, firm or person other than a State or national bank, trust company, building and loan association and a corporation not organized for profit, engaged in selling stocks, bonds or other securities, except United States bonds. The companies are required to file detailed statements with the Superintendent of Banks showing their financial condition, property, and proposed plan of business. If the Superintendent of Banks finds that they are solvent and that their proposed plan and contracts provide for a fair method and reasonably insure a fair return on the securities to be offered for sale, he is to issue to them a statement reciting that they have complied with the purpose of the article, but his statement must recite in large black-faced type that he does not recommend the securities.

The books of the companies must at all times be open to inspection by stockholders and investors in the companies' securities. The making of a false entry in the companies' books or exhibiting false papers with intention to deceive those examining the companies' affairs or the publishing of a false statement regarding the financial condition of such a company is made a felony. There are also other provisions.

Other bills of special interest to the real estate and building profession were:

In the Senate.

Int. No. 554. Patten (by request). Amending the Penal Law (Section 1271) by making it optional with the municipal authorities to declare forfeited a contract with a contractor violating the hours of labor provisions of the labor law. At present, the municipal officials must declare a contract forfeited under such circumstances. To Codes Committee.

Int. No. 555. Patten (by request). Amending the Labor Law (Section 3) by providing that where public work is delayed by the elements, or the breaking of machinery, employees may make up for lost time, as long as their working hours do not average over 8 hours per day during a month. To Labor and Industries Committee.

Fire Drills.

Int. No. 583. Simpson. Amending the Greater New York Charter (Sections 774, 775 and new Section 775-a) by empowering the fire commissioner in his discretion to require periodical fire drills in all buildings, structures and premises where numbers of persons work, live or congregate in New York City, except tenement houses and factories. The drill may include instruction and practice in the use of means of exit, fire prevention or fire extinguishing methods and equipment and fire alarm systems. It strikes out the provision of subdivision 6 in Section 775, empowering the commissioner to take proceedings to enforce his orders. It includes laws and ordinances and regulations of the industrial board relative to danger to life, and loss of life and property from fires, as well as the prevention of fires, as at present, among those ordinances and regulations which the commission is to enforce, and makes certain other changes to make the commissioner's jurisdiction more inclusive. To Cities Committee.

Special Tax on Title Companies.

Int. No. 558. Blauvelt (by request). Amending the Tax Law (Section 188) by making the franchise tax on trust companies engaged in examining and insuring titles to real property 10 per cent. of the net earnings of the company unless this would exceed 1 per cent. of its capital, surplus and undivided profits, in which case, the tax is to be 1 per cent. of the capital, surplus and undivided profits, as at present. To Taxation Committee.

Repealing Secured Debts Tax.

Int. No. 584. Boylan. Repealing the Secured Debts Tax Law. It repeals article 15 of the Tax Law added by Chapter 802 of the Laws of 1911. Same as Senator Boylan's bill of last year. (S. Int. 1737, Pr. 2254, of 1913). To Taxation Committee.

Int. No. 629. Herrick. Inserting in the Transportation Corporations Law a new section (107) requiring telephone companies to install automatic slot machines in telephones in private residences, upon request, upon terms to be regulated by the public service commission. To Miscellaneous Corporations Committee.

In The Assembly.

Int. No. 735. Phelan. Amending the Public Service Commission Law (subdivision 8 of Section 49) by providing that in first-class cities the public service commission may compel the interchange of transfers between surface, elevated and subway lines, at intersecting points, in cases where arrangements exist for the interchange of transfers at other intersecting points between such lines and systems.

College of Commerce.

Int. No. 739. VanName. Authorizing the board of estimate and apportionment of New York City, in its discretion, to acquire on behalf of the city a site for a college of commerce and administration and museum for commerce and civics. The Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York has offered to erect a building for the college and museum at not exceeding $500,000, at its own expense, and the site is to be approved by that organization or one of its committees. The board of estimate may acquire a site by gift or purchase, or it may, with the consent of the sinking fund commissioners, set aside for the site lands already owned by the city. If such lands have been heretofore designated for any other purpose, the designation is revoked by the bill. The board is authorized to enter into contracts with the Chamber of Commerce for the construction of the building and it may acquire property by condemnation if necessary. The comptroller is authorized to issue corporate stock of the city to raise the necessary funds pending tax levy, with the approval of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment.

Lien Law Amendments.

Int. No. 764. Simpson. Amending the Lien Law generally. The term "improvement" is to include any work done or materials furnished in equipping houses or structures with chandeliers, brackets or other fixtures for supplying gas or electric light. The term "contractor" is to include those contracting with the state or with a municipal corporation for a public improvement. Notice of lien may be filed within 4 months, instead of within 90 days, after the completion of the work. Assignments of contracts for the performance of labor or the furnishing of material must be filed in the office of the county clerk within 10 days of the date of the execution of the assignment. Liens for labor and material, reduced to judgments, are to be paid before any payment is made to the person for whom the labor has been performed or the material furnished. There are other provisions providing for the subordination of liens after agreements with owners or contractors, the subordination of liens to subsequent mortgages, the subordination of notices of lis pendens, and the discharge of liens on sale of real property.

Reserve Funds of Mutual Liability Corporations.

Int. No. 775. Gillett. Amending the Insurance Law (Section 191 and new Section 195; and repealing present Section 194 and inserting new Section 194) relative to reserve funds of mutual employers' liability and workmen's compensation corporations, so as to require such corporations to maintain the same reserves for the protection of policy holders on all insurance business, other than liability for compensation resulting from injuries suffered by employees, as is required of stock companies engaged in the same class of insurance business. They must also maintain the same reserve for liability for insurance of compensation under the workmen's compensation commission for the state insurance fund. It also authorizes certain foreign mutual companies engaged in the same kind of business to do business in the state upon complying with various requirements specified in the bill. It also makes certain other provisions.

A Department of Architecture.

Int. No. 797. Macdonald. Amending the Public Buildings Law (Sections 6, 7, 8 and new Sections 13 to 19-d inclusive) by providing that the state architecture now in office shall continue to serve for six years from January 1, 1914, and that thereafter the state architect's office shall be known as the Department of Architecture. The state architect is to be the head of the new department, and is to be paid an annual salary of $10,000. The trustees of public buildings must provide accommodations in the state capitol for the new department, and a branch office may be established in New York City, in the discretion of the state architect, who may appoint 3 deputies, to be known respectively as Executive Deputy State Architect, Assistant State Architect and Chief Engineer. The state architect may also appoint, and at pleasure, remove, a secretary, an assistant secretary, 2 confidential assistants, experts, draftsmen, clerks, stenographers and such other employees as may be necessary. He is to fix the salaries of such employees, and may remove them at pleasure. There are other provisions for the inspection of work by departments interested, prescribing the form of contracts to be entered into, the manner of making payments on such contracts and the manner of doing work or acquiring material. The bill re-appropriates an unexpended balance of $110,441.56.

REAL ESTATE BOARD HEARS CITY OFFICIALS

Presidents McAneny and Marks Discuss Municipal Affairs—Efficiency, Economy and Cooperation Promised—$10,000,000 Limit For Court House.

PRESIDENT McAneny of the Board of Aldermen and President Marcus M. Marks of Manhattan were the guests of the members of the Real Estate Board of New York at their monthly luncheon on Thursday. Both discussed their work and plans and both pleaded for a closer union between the city officials and the citizens for the ultimate benefit of the city. Mr. McAneny spoke at length on the functions and responsibilities of the Board of Estimate, outlining the gradual growth of that body as the business directorate of the city. In discussing the budget and the corporate stock bonds, he pointed to the savings effected by an efficient and economical business administration, as evidenced by the record of the last Board of Estimate. In explaining the increase in the tax rate, he quoted figures to prove that it was due to matters beyond its control, namely, mandatory direct State taxes.

The New Civic Centre.

Mr. McAneny thereafter talked on various other matters, principally the civic centre plan, the enlarged scope of the Board of Estimate committees and the new lease of life of the Board of Aldermen. With regard to the civic centre and proposed court house site he said that it had been purchased cheaply after due deliberation, under a model condemnation proceeding, and, despite criticisms as to excessive final costs, the bill for the new courts building would not exceed the original estimate of $10,000,000. Some revisions of the original plans have been found necessary, but when the plans are completed and done it will be found that the cost will be within the cost originally allotted.

At the present time no plans have been definitely completed or ratified, but Mr. McAneny gave assurances that under no circumstances would the expenditure be permitted to go above that figure.

Marcus M. Marks caused laughter and applause when he addressed the real estate men as "Fellow Sufferers." Mr. Marks has extensive real estate holdings in this city and is undoubtedly cognizant of all the burdens that such properties carry with them nowadays. He spoke as follows:

The Borough President's Address.

"Buildings do not make a city. They are but the shell of the city. The kernel, the soul, of the city is the citizen—the man, the woman, the child. In our absorption in the construction of the buildings of the city we are apt to overlook some of the vital interests of these citizens, for, if we spend too much of our money on our city buildings, we are bound to neglect our more intimate needs. A comparatively small sum spent by our city departments, particularly in the bacteriological research laboratory, and the practical application of the results in preventive measures directed against the spread of disease have in twenty years reduced our local death rate 50 per cent. Each year we have saved thousands of babies. By a liberal encouragement of such scientific preventive work we can save thousands more. Having saved the children, it next becomes our duty to see to it that they have full opportunity for air, sunshine and play and for sound education. All this means real economy in terms of human life and happiness. How can we afford to develop this important policy and keep within a safe budget? Only by a municipal government which is soundly efficient.

"We must develop a sense of proportion between externals and real social needs. While every good citizen is proud of our handsome public buildings, we must jealously guard against any extravagance in their construction or in their use.

The New Court House.

"A great real estate expert calculates that the proposed new court house, if built on the present plans, will cost not $10,000,000, but nearly $25,000,000. This statement is enough to caution our Board of Estimate so that we may be able to call a halt before it is too late. I will do my share to prevent any such extravagant expenditure. We are living in a democratic community and wish dignified simple edifices. In these times we must be content without palaces out of proportion to our city treasury. He who spends all his money for a purse and keeps no coin to put in it is plainly a fool.

Co-operation.

"One condition in our present municipal government is particularly encouraging and full of promise for the efficiency which is so needful, and that is the spirit of co-operation existing between the members of the Board of Estimate and also between them and the heads of our city departments. There is hardly a day passing without friendly conferences between the several Borough Presidents, the Mayor, Comptroller and President of the Board of Aldermen and the various city commissioners. If this continues, we shall develop a model city government of which every citizen will have cause to be proud.

"Have you noted that since January first, although a thousand questions have been passed upon by the Board of Estimate, there has been no single instance of a division? Every vote of the Board has been absolutely unanimous. This gives us heart to approach the great problems of the city with full confidence.

The Half Tax on Buildings.

"One of these problems is that of reduction in the cost of living. There is need of serious thought on this subject. The expedient of halving the tax on buildings and placing the larger burden on land is not practical. It assumes that a general building boom and a surplus of rooms with lower rent will follow such a provision. There are two practical economic forces that will almost entirely nullify these expectations.

"First, the demand for buildings and not the tax regulates the supply of buildings. No owner of land is foolish enough to build when there is no tenant in sight.

"Second, it takes money to build houses, and the lenders of money will not encourage buildings for which there is no demand.

"So there is no expectation of a reduction in rents by the application of the single or half-tax theory. This theory would depend for its success upon the ruin of these poor men whose small unimproved holdings of land would be forced to auction by the extra tax on land. On this matter our Board of Estimate cast a decisive and unanimous vote last Friday.

Markets.

"To reduce the cost of living we need among other things better market facilities. We now have primitive and inadequate machinery for distribution. When drivers and teams, for example, must wait hours in line before they can get their produce from congested terminals every workingman in buying provisions is taxed on account of this extra cost. We must put the best brains of our city to work on the development of our market problem.

Building Inspection.

"We must simplify our system of building inspection. We now have at least seven departments inspecting our buildings, with practically confiscatory power: the Building Department, the State Labor Department, the Fire Prevention Bureau, the Health Department, the Tenement House Department, the License Bureau, and the Encumbrance Bureau. The citizen is overwhelmed with inspection.

"Sometimes these departments issue conflicting orders. I have suggested to the Charter Revision Committee that the various corps of inspectors be welded into not more than two divisions. Two competent men can do all the work of inspection that is required in any single building. To get competent men, a proper salary must be offered. True economy dictates the employment at good wages of high-grade men—men of character and judgment.

"Thus the government will no longer be stultified, and citizens will be relieved of much annoyance and often unnecessary orders. In a measure also rents can be reduced by this economy. In recent years it has been no pleasure to be a real estate owner in New York; and yet there is no safer spot on earth for investment than Manhattan Island and its outlying territory.

"With a co-operative and efficient business administration of our city, stable conditions for owners will go hand in hand—will lower rents for the tenant. Let us be on guard for simplicity in externals and deep sympathy for all that will give the greatest opportunity for a noble and happy citizenship."

About 300 attended the luncheon and were most enthusiastic in their appreciation of what both President McAneny and President Marks stated. There was no doubt left in the minds of those present that the Board of Estimate can rely upon the real estate interests for support and co-operation.

After the luncheon President McGuire stated that if the other members of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment would meet the real estate interests in the same frank spirit as Messrs. McAneny and Marks there could be no doubt but that it would mean the general improvement of the present real estate situation. Personally it pleased him very much to observe the earnest, frank and convincing way in which these members of the Board assured the real estate interests of their help, protection and support.

—The bonded indebtedness of the city has increased two hundred and fifty per cent in ten years, though the population has grown only forty per cent in the same time. The estimated cost of current public improvement projects mount up to $200,000,000, and the salary roll of city employes grows steadily. Fortunately, the governments at City Hall and Albany appear to see that it is time to restrain the spenders.

—Some of the new civic societies have adopted names of such great length that they scarcely expect people to take the time to remember and repeat them in full. The Society for Lowering Rents and Reducing Taxes would be more easily recognized and comprehended by the short name of "Single-Taxers."

The Assembly has concurred in the Senate resolution previously adopted to adjourn the Legislature on March 27. The rest of the session, from next Monday on, will be taken up largely with committee work, including hearings on important bills. Hearings are of necessity frequently held at short notice and are rarely given sufficient publicity. People in this city who wish to be heard on any particular measure should write to the committee in charge, asking to be notified of the date of the hearing.

Real estate brokers, as well as sundry other professional men in the downtown brokerage section, have had plenty of leisure recently to admire the occasional exhibitions of fine driving that may be witnessed in the vicinity of the new Equitable Building. The other day a giant girder, mounted on a truck drawn by twenty great Percherons, was swung from Broadway into Pine street, stopping traffic in three busy thoroughfares. As the rear wheels of the truck left Broadway, the foremost pair of horses emerged into Nassau street.

Announcement was made at Washington this week that all of the 479 national banks in the State of New York have filed applications for membership in the Federal reserve banking system. During the week also bills were introduced at Albany placing all private banks and security-issuing corporations under the State Banking Law, while still another bill provides for a State land bank, designed to furnish a comprehensive system of agricultural credits. If the State bills are enacted, as they seem likely to be, the interests of depositors and investors will be thoroughly safeguarded by State and Federal statutes, and commerce and industry will stand upon a new footing with respect to capital.

The Danger of a Single Tax Not Yet Over.

The announcement by Mayor Mitchel of his intention to appoint a committee of experts to consider and issue a report on the advisability of the Herrick-Schaap bill is a welcome piece of news. The matter is one which particularly needs exhaustive and impartial investigation. The advocates of increasing land taxes frequently claim that the weight of expert economic opinion is favorable to the increase of the land tax. As a matter of fact, while there is considerable difference of opinion among economists, the weight of economic authority is decisively opposed to the increase of the land tax. At the recent hearing before Mayor Mitchel not a single economic expert appeared on behalf of the bill. On the other hand, Professors Seligmann, Johnson and Clark have registered their emphatic opposition to the principle of the bill. This division of opinion on the fundamental issue of an increased land tax is not, however, the difference of opinion which makes an investigation desirable. Such differences of opinion exist in respect to many fundamental questions in economics and finance; and, if a difference of theory only were involved, it would be useless to appoint a committee whose report would merely register two contradictory policies in respect to the principle underlying local taxation. What such a committee should, above all, do is to collect all the accessible facts which bear upon the effect of the increased land tax elsewhere and which may help to throw light upon its effect in this city. If the investigation is approached by this method and in a candid spirit, it may succeed in making a real contribution to the better understanding of a vexed and difficult matter.

No one can read the current discussions of the probable effect of the increased land tax without noticing a considerable difference of opinion among both the advocates of the bill and among its opponents as to its probable effect. Some of its friends expect it to accomplish more by way of the reduction of rents than do others. Some claim that it will enable the public to appropriate some share of the existing land values, while others claim that its chief effect will be to turn into the coffers of the city future increases in land value. On the other hand, the opponents of the bill are no less divided in their opinions as to its probable results and as to the expediency of attempting to accomplish by other means some of the purposes which the advocates of the bill seek to accomplish. Many economists who are opposed to the increased land tax regard the increment tax with favor. It is controversies of this kind which the committee ought to be able at least partly to clear up. A considerable amount of experimentation has already been undertaken, particularly in Australia and New Zealand, in this class of legislation. It should be possible to ascertain the effect of this legislation on rents, land values and the social well-being of the communities. It should also be possible to ascertain the probable effect of the change on the different classes of real estate in a city such as New York. Manifestly, its result upon land improved with a twenty-five-story building, upon land improved with a six-story tenement, upon land improved in Manhattan with an old three-story building, upon a residence in the suburbs, upon vacant property in Manhattan, and upon vacant property on the outskirts of the city, will differ radically; and a careful analysis of the way in which the increased tax will affect the value of different classes of property will help the formation of a more intelligent public opinion on the issues of the bill.

On the whole, it is undoubtedly true that the bill has lost ground during the past few weeks. The hearing before Mayor Mitchel was beneficial to the opposition. The Mayor will approve the referendum, in case it ever reaches him, because he has promised to do so; but he has declared against the increased land tax on its merits. So has the Board of Estimate by a unanimous vote. If the Legislature forces a referendum on the city in respect to this matter, it will do so in spite of the opposition of its responsible political and business leaders. It now seems wholly improbable that any such referendum will be forced; but the opponents of the bill should not for that reason relax their efforts. The danger will not be over until the bill is definitely killed in either branch of the Legislature. Moreover, the advocates of the bill are tenacious and will undoubtedly continue to urge its adoption. Hence the necessity of the collection and publication of all the facts which will assist New Yorkers in making up their minds as to the merits of the proposal, and hence the necessity of an efficient, resourceful and thoroughly representative organization of the property owners of Greater New York.

Lord & Taylor's New Store.

The opening of the new Lord & Taylor store on Fifth avenue marks another stage in the business development of that avenue. It is now almost thirteen years since the announcement of the removal of Tiffany & Co. to Fifth avenue and 37th street started the movement, which has converted Fifth avenue from a residence thoroughfare sprinkled with a little business into a business thoroughfare with a few residential relics left upon it. The ensuing development is one of the most remarkable which has ever taken place in New York or any other city. It has resulted in the creation of a peculiarly high range of real estate values over a peculiarly large area. As these values increased, predictions were freely made that they were becoming excessive and that a reaction would follow. But no reaction came. The development continued during good times and bad. It was checked only for a few months during the panic of 1907-8. During the last two years there has been less activity on Fifth avenue north of 34th street than was formerly the case, and the increase in values has been started; but even at the present time, when real estate is so stagnant throughout the rest of Manhattan, announcements have recently been made of the removal of two important retail firms to the best part of the Fifth avenue shopping district. There can be no doubt that as soon as business revives and confidence returns some of the sites north of 34th street which remain unimproved with new buildings will soon be purchased. Only a few of these sites are left, and they will be indispensable to one or other of the fashionable retail stores which have neglected as yet to provide themselves with locations on the desirable part of the avenue. There can be no doubt also that during the next ten years practically the whole of the avenue between 34th and 59th streets will be occupied by trade. The number of new business buildings north of 50th street are not numerous as yet, and they have not increased very rapidly during the past few years; but they are well established. As soon as business revives their example will be followed. The owners of residences on the avenue have abandoned the opposition with which they greeted the first business intruders into their neighborhood; and the further occupation of these blocks by business will merely depend upon the number of property owners who are willing to sell. They will not be as numerous as they were further south, but they will be numerous enough to afford room for the gradual encroachment of business and to result in the increasing undesirability of the neighborhood for residential purposes.

A Constitutional Duty of the Mayor.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

In a report of the hearing before the Board of Estimate on the bill which would reduce the tax on buildings to one-half of that on land Mayor Mitchel is reported in the newspapers of February 21 as declaring at the close of the hearing:

"I deprecate the bill, but I want to say that, should it be passed, I would sign it, as I am resolved never to take it upon myself to oppose any popular measure if enacted by the Legislature."

The New York Sun in an editorial on February 22, commented on the attitude thus taken by Mayor Mitchel, and its issue of the 25th inst. contains a letter from the undersigned in which is discussed at length the power and duty imposed upon the Mayor by article 12, section 2, of the State Constitution, requiring the submission of any bill for a special city law passed by the Legislature to be submitted to the Mayor for acceptance or rejection on behalf of the city before the final action by the Legislature or by the Governor.

The power so conferred imposes upon the Mayor in every instance the duty of exercising his own judgment in investigating and determining the fitness and propriety of contemplated local legislation. It is a duty which the Constitution requires him personally to perform and which he cannot lawfully delegate to any other.

The obligation to exercise his judgment and skill in the service, not only of the people but of the city, is one from which he cannot relieve himself or be relieved by any action of the Legislature, of other city authorities or of the inhabitants and taxpayers of the city, in whatever form manifested. The power to accept a proposed legislative act contemplates not only the exercise of personal judgment and discretion on the part of the Mayor as to whether the act should be accepted, but also responsibility for acceptance or rejection; and to secure this the acceptance must be his independent, untrammelled act in the exercise of official responsibility. Clothed with such powers and charged with such duties and such responsibilities by the Constitution he is not permitted to evade or nullify the provisions of the Constitution by shifting the responsibility upon the Legislature, and thus deprive the people of the city of the right to his best judgment, after free and full examination of the merits of any law proposed by the Legislature.

And, above all, he cannot delegate to others the trust which has been expressly confided to him by reason of his supposed knowledge and sound judgment. "Delegata potestas non potest delegari" is a settled maxim of the law, in full force at the present day, and never more applicable than to the case of a Mayor in the exercise of a power conferred by the fundamental law of the State.

If, therefore, Mayor Mitchel is correctly quoted as saying, in connection with the tax bill in question, "I am resolved never to take upon myself to oppose any popular measure if enacted by the Legislature," he announced that he would during his term of office violate the Constitution which, upon assuming office and taking the oath of office prescribed by the Constitution he solemnly swore to support, and an oath which, no matter how abused, has in every age been considered to settle the strongest hold on the conscience of public officers as a pledge of future conduct and as a guaranty for the performance, without evasion of every duty imposed upon them by the law of the land.

Why Should We Vote in the Dark?

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

In your issue of the 7th instant, in an editorial entitled, "The Folly of a Referendum on the Half-Tax Issue" you state: "It would be absurd to arrange both an investigation and a referendum, and have the referendum before the report, based on the investigation, can be published." We understand, of course, that the beneficiaries of the privilege of land speculation are now clamoring for any sort of a measure or way to postpone action on this question.

The Mayor distinctly stated at a recent lunch meeting at the City Club that he favored the initiative and referendum on local matters. There is no objection to the Mayor's appointing a committee to make an investigation and to report within six months or three months. Any such investigation, however, as a substitute for action is unfair and contrary to the principles of democracy.

Mayor Mitchel has stated that he would accept, on behalf of the city, a referendum on this measure. There was no stipulation as to any committee to investigate further. While certain highly technical members of the administration may not have studied the taxation question, it is presumption on their part to assume that the people of the city do not know about the incidence of taxation and are not qualified to vote on the question.

The beneficiaries of any form of privilege always prefer long investigations as to whether their operations may be legally continued or not, with immunity from prosecution in the meantime. The victims, however, have their own point of view, in the matter.

Let us have all the information that is obtainable, but sufficient information can be obtained and made public between now and November when the referendum vote would be taken on this question.

Very truly yours,
E. VAIL STEBBINS,
Vice President Business Men's Association to Untax Industry.

The Cost of Required Alterations in Factory Buildings.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

After the chilly blasts that, during the fall and winter, have been blowing upon the miserable creatures who own real estate in the City of New York, a bright ray of light and sunshine seemed to flash upon them when reading the cheering words of those engineers, Messrs. H. J. Porter and A. L. A. Himmelwright, published last week in the Real Estate Record and Guide regarding the new factory laws.

The "real estate interests"—though it is hard to find any interest in real estate—had their attention called to the inaccuracies of the published statements relative to the cost of making factory buildings comply with the new laws, and the hope was expressed they would take steps to obtain full and correct information on the subject.

Reading further they were told how the new laws, as a matter of fact, were quite reasonable and that no such expense as could be called "confiscatory" could be involved.

These gentlemen then went into most cheering figures and apparently gave the cost of complying with the new laws at from $400 minimum to $1,000 maximum a building!

Alas! how soon the sunlight fades and the joyous brightness disappears this weather! The writer, after a slight reflection, remembered various sets of figures that had been shown to him of the cost of complying with some of the various trifles of this most "reasonable" and "good and proper legislation."

Taking a six-story building as an instance, he commenced with an item of putting fire-resisting partitions around staircases, and on computing the cost of wood partitions covered with metal found that $1,500 had disappeared. Having protected the staircases, he went to the hoistways or dumbwaiter, and $1,000 more went. Next he thought of protecting the fire-escapes with fireproof windows and sash, and, with four windows to a floor, $1,000 was added. The doors of the lofts were changed to open out, and $50 went. Even this would not be all, for the toilets did not have windows opening to the outer air (they were only "ventilated"), and so to clear his mind somewhat, he added $600, feeling that this amount might do something reasonable in that line.

But, the fire-escape erected two years ago did not have the lower flight on an angle of 45 degrees and properly counterbalanced, and down goes $125. And the staircase does not go to the roof, there is only an iron ladder, so it must be continued another flight and a nice little bulkhead built over it, and $250 more is contributed to the trades unions. And, last of all, the fire-alarm system was included at an added cost of $500.

Now this is "only reasonable" where one or more persons are engaged at labor; it cost "only" from $400 to $1,000, plus three to four thousand dollars—and anyone interested in real estate should jump at the pleasure of so "improving" his building.

But this is no joke, this is the serious problem that is confronting hundreds, yes, thousands, of owners in the city who own good, well-built, well-kept and well-occupied, four, five and six-story buildings. Take as an example a building worth to-day $25,000 to $30,000, with a mortgage of $20,000; is not an expense of $5,000, at least, practical confiscation? These figures are quite easy to verify, they are not prepared by eminent engineers, but by hard-fisted mechanics who figure "to get the job."

Every non-fireproof building of four, five and six stories is not a sweatshop, every building of the kind does not conflict with "common decency and respect for the rights of others," very few of them do, but because some do, any and all that have people at work are ordered to "comply with the law."

The Industrial Board has the power to look into such propositions as quoted above. It has the intelligence and will to do so and the real bright spark of hope for the future of real estate rests on it, I firmly believe. No intelligence will allow the old staple investment—the main source of revenue, not only of the City, but the State—real estate to be annihilated, for, if it does, then comes the deluge.

ALFRED R. KIRKUS.
Of Industrial and Building Codes Committee, Real Estate Board of New York.
309 Broadway, Feb. 26.

[Mr. Kirkus is secretary of the Manhattan, New York, Central and Colonial Real Estate Associations, owners of many five and six-story buildings. He has been actively interested in the management and operation of low buildings for twenty-five years and is an expert in such matters.—Editor.]

That Playground Resolution.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The Brooklyn board of real estate brokers respectfully request that you publish the following correction.

In a resolution passed by this board on February 7, in reference to playground sites, the name of the Assemblyman, August C. Flamman, appeared as being sponsor for a certain bill now before the Assembly in reference to the acquisition of certain Brooklyn property for a playground.

We have been informed by Assemblyman Flamman that he is not the author of said bill, nor is he in any way connected therewith.

BROOKLYN BOARD OF REAL ESTATE BROKERS.
Feb. 20.

—When a piece of real estate is sold from the auction stand subject to a certain statement of "facts," those facts should be clearly set forth. Not only is it an auctioneer's professional duty to be frank in any statement of that nature, but he should require from the owner that when the statement is "annexed," or is in the form of a survey, that it shall be either self-explanatory or else fully explained in writing. On a certain occasion the "annexed statement" was merely a faint blueprint almost undecipherable, through no fault of the auctioneer's. As the fullest confidence on the part of the public in real estate should be encouraged in every reasonable way, the auctioneers' association could help by passing a rule that when a property is sold subject to a certain statement of facts the facts be set forth by the owner in a perfectly clear and intelligible manner.

THE WEEK'S REAL ESTATE NEWS

Brokerage Sales, Auctions, Foreclosure Suits, Building Loans, etc., Together With Brief Personal Items.

The Market Was at a Standstill.

City Tax Rate Down This Year.

Comptroller Prendergast announced at yesterday's meeting of the Board of Estimate that the tax rate for 1914 will show a reduction in every county in Greater New York. Mr. Prendergast promised a reduction of 5 points in the tax rate for Queens, 4 points for the Bronx, 3 points for New York, 2 points for Richmond and 1 point for Kings.

Comparison of the 1914 tax rate with that for 1913 was furnished by Mr. Prendergast as follows:

New York	1.81	1.78
Bronx	1.81	1.77
Richmond	1.92	1.90

These figures are not official, as the tax rolls have not been approved and the tax rates fixed by the Board of Aldermen, but the Finance Department accountants have figured out already what the rate will be.

The tax rolls will be forwarded to the Aldermen on Monday, when they will hold a special session to fix the tax rate as based on the budget made up and adopted last October.

City at Work on Port Plan.

The city administration is taking up energetically the long delayed problem of adequate port improvement. It regards this work as one of the most important that the city will be called upon to undertake during the next four years.

The plan for the appointment of a "Port of New York Commission," proposed by The Merchants' Association in President Marble to Mayor Mitchel has been endorsed by the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York in a strong resolution urging the city to appoint such a commission. Mayor Mitchel has also received other discussions and reports upon the subject which he is considering with care.

The Mayor, the Comptroller, the President of the Board of Aldermen, and most of the other members of the Board of Estimate, have already given much attention to the question of port improvement, and the board is therefore in a position to act promptly in the matter as soon as the details can be worked out.

The port commission idea has met with favor and it has the backing of the chief commercial interests of the city. It is generally agreed that a careful study of the conditions must be made in an authoritative manner before the city would be warranted in going ahead, and the experience of other ports commends the commission plan.

Narrowing Rhinelander Avenue.

The resolution of the Local Board of Chester District, in the Bronx, as adopted at the meeting of Feb. 17, authorizing for a reduction of the width of Rhinelander avenue, provides that the width shall be reduced from 80 to 75 feet from Cruger avenue to Bear Swamp road. This corrects a misstatement in the report of the proceedings of last week's paper.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

There was little business transacted this week, although there were numerous rumors of big deals during the last few days. The holiday brought with it a weakness in all branches of the market. The only important development of the week was the announcement that a large realty company was buying extensively along the line of the White Plains avenue extension. No other section of the city showed any activity whatsoever.

The total number of sales in Manhattan this week was 17, against 23 for last week and 46 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 3, compared with 7 last week and 17 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 14, compared with 16 last week and 29 a year ago.

From the Bronx 15 sales at private contract were reported, against 16 last week and 17 a year ago.

The amount involved in the Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $568,349, compared with $547,169 last week, making a total since Jan. 1 of $6,785,763. The figure for the corresponding week last year was $2,053,250, making a total since Jan. 1, 1913, of $7,848,942.

American R. E. Co. Buying.

The American Real Estate Company is the purchaser of the many properties recently sold in the White Plains avenue section of the Bronx, as reported during the last few weeks. All of the sales have been in the district which will be benefited by the opening of the extension of the subway system. The company has just bought through Williamson & Bryan additional properties at the southwest corner of White Plains and Allerton avenues, 150x150; the northeast corner of Burke and White Plains avenues, 75x100; the southeast corner of 219th street and White Plains avenue, 89x80; the northeast corner of 226th street and White Plains avenue, 60x100; the northeast corner of 233d street and White Plains avenue, 114x100; an interior plot adjacent to the northwest corner of Nereid and White Plains avenues, 41x138; the corner of Westchester avenue and Castle Hill avenue, 21x165, and through J. The reported purchase price of all the properties recently acquired is $300,000.

J. B. ENGLISH has been appointed agent for the 5-sty loft building 101-103 Broad st, recently leased to the Aspell Co. for a term of years.

THERE IS NO FOUNDATION to the report that the Times Square Improvement Co. is negotiating for a lease of the block bounded by Broadway, 6th av, 36th and 37th sts.

THE BRONX PARKWAY COMMISSION has bought through W. E. & W. I. Brown, Inc., from Frederick Ashton dePeyster et al a plot of about 22 lots on the east side of the Bronx River between 238th and 239th sts.

D. A. TROTTA negotiated the recently recorded sale of the plot, 50x87.6, on the east side of Arthur av, 125 ft. south of William st, to the Union Street Realty Co. The buyers have no definite plans for improving the plot.

THE CENTRAL CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH, the Rev. S. Parkes Cadman, pastor, has sold the property of the Bethesda Congregational Church, Ralph av and Chauncey st, Brooklyn, to a builder for $12,500. Flats probably will be erected on the site.

NEGOTIATIONS ARE PENDING for the sale of the Hotel Avon, at the northeast corner of Lexington av and 30th st by Stephen H. Jackson, who acquired it recently at foreclosure. It is reported that a syndicate expects to turn it into a hotel exclusively for women.

CARSTEIN & LINNEKIN have been appointed agents for the 9-sty building to be erected at 105 and 107 East 16th st by Hyman & Oppenheim. The structure will occupy a plot, 50x100, adjoining the new Borgfeldt Building. The four upper floors will be occupied by Hyman & Oppenheim, dealers in human hair goods.

THE SUPREME COURT has granted permission to the Roman Catholic Church of St. Gregory to sell the 5-sty brick and stone apartment house at 114 West 90th st for $30,750, subject to a mortgage of $22,000. The property was purchased as a site for a church, but the congregation found a more suitable site elsewhere.

THE NO. 284 PEARL STREET CO. has been incorporated with a capital of $10,000. The directors are Louis Solomon, Samuel J. Rawak and James C. Hogan. The company will take over the 7-sty building at the southeast corner of Pearl and Beekman sts, having frontages of 40.2 and 58.10 ft., respectively. Title to the property is held by George T. Van Valkenburgh, who acquired it in 1905.

MESSIMER & CARREAU, INC., a newly organized real estate firm, has opened offices at 101 Park av. O. W. Messimer, formerly secretary and director of Ewing, Bacon & Henry, is president; John M. Toncey, vice-president; Cyrille Carreau, Jr., secretary and treasurer. On the board of directors are Edward Wylde, president of the Elevator Supply & Repair Company, and Grant Campbell, formerly renting manager of the Bush Terminal.

SPEAR & CO., with the permission of the Record and Guide, are distributing as a supplement to the February issue of their Bulletin copies of a pamphlet containing Peter J. McKeon's searching analysis of the Confiscatory Fire Prevention Laws and a resume of the enlarged activities of the Real Estate Board. Complimentary copies of this pamphlet were first distributed at the recent dinner of the Real Estate Board and met with universal approval.

GEORGE R. READ & CO. have sold for Jackson & Stern and the Surety Realty Co. (Samuel H. Stone) to the estate of Charles F. Mattlage the northwest corner of Warren and Greenwich sts, a 6-sty building, on plot 75.9x91.10. The structure is known as the Wells-Fargo building, the express company being the occupant under a lease that runs till 1926. Bronx property was given in part payment.

THE HARTHILL REALTY & MORTGAGE CO. has purchased the block bounded by Westchester, Forest and Jackson avs, upon which there are now small buildings, consisting of 15 stores and an incomplete theatre building. It is the buyers' intention to complete the building and theatre with 2,400 seats, which will be one of the largest in the Bronx. The transaction involves approximately $150,000, without the proposed improvements. The property was sold by Max Verschleiser.

JUSTICE BIJUR has appointed M. Morgenthau, Jr., receiver of the Monatan Realty & Investment Co., recently declared to be operating in violation of the Banking laws of the State of New York. The company has operated extensively in Manhattan and Brooklyn properties. Mr. Morgenthau stated that he would make a thorough investigation of the company's affairs and its assets and liabilities, and protect the interests of the bondholders and other creditors. Mr. Morgenthau has appointed Lachman & Goldsmith his counsel.

GOV. CHARLES R. MILLER, of Delaware; Gov. Martin H. Glynn, Mayor John Purroy Mitchel, and Douglas Mathewson, Borough President of the Bronx, will be the guests of honor and speakers at the annual banquet of the North Side Board of Trade, to be held Thursday evening, March 5, in Ebling's Casino, 156th st and St. Ann's av. Among other guests will be Congressman Peter Ten Eyck, of Albany; Lewis Nixon, and the new Bronx County officers President William W. Niles will be the toastmaster.

A SYNDICATE in which several Pittsburgh men are said to be interested are after the 166-foot plot on the north side of 45th st, adjoining the Astor Theatre at the northwest corner of Broadway. The property is owned by the Astors, who a couple of years ago leased it to Edward Margolies for a period of 80 years. There have geen several enterprises planned for the site, but none materialized. If the present deal is consummated it is said that the plot will be improved with a bachelor apartment house containing two and three room suites.

WILLIAM PETERS & CO. have sold to M. Arndtstein a vacant parcel, situated at the southwest corner of Morris Park av and Van Buren st, containing about 3½ lots. This parcel is opposite the N. Y., Westchester & Boston R. R. main station, which will also be used by the Interborough upon completion, contract for which has been given out. Purchaser expects to erect two 5-sty buildings on premises. The seller took in part payment three 3-sty houses, containing stores and apartments, situated on the corner of McLean and Martha avs, running through to 242d st.

THE SOCIETIES BUILDING REALTY CO. has obtained an option to purchase the property at 108 to 120 West 49th st, having a frontage of 157 ft. and a depth of 100 ft. The property will be improved with a 12-sty building and the entire operation will mean an expenditure of upward of $1,200,000 if the option is exercised. One of the principal features of the new structure will be an auditorium or lecture hall that will have a seating capacity of 1,500. Offices for various societies and publishers of political and economic works will also be provided. The present owners of the property are Samuel K. Jacobs and Lee & Fleischmann.

Mc-VICKAR-GAILLARD REALTY CO., whose failure has been anticipated in real estate circles for some time owing to the firm's connection with the defunct New York Real Estate Security Co., was forced into involuntary bankruptcy last Saturday. The firm was established by Van Rensselaer Cruger in 1796 and had its main office at 42 Broadway, with branches at 489 5th av, 2598 Broadway and 242 East Houston st. According to Walter M. Goldsmith, attorney for the petitioning creditors, who has also been retained by a number of the other creditors, the firm's liabilities will exceed $100,000. The McVickar-Gaillard Co. bought and sold as well as managed all the properties of the New York Real Estate Security Co., which at the time of the latter concern's failure, included 88 parcels of real estate in Manhattan, The Bronx and Westchester. Sixty-five of these parcels were improved with office buildings and high-class apartment houses. All the repair work done on the improved properties was ordered by the McVickar-Gaillard Co., so that when the larger concern failed the contractors turned to the McVickar-Gaillard Co. for payment. Many mechanics' liens filed against the New York Real Estate Security Co. mentioned the McVickar-Gaillard Co. as having contracted for the work done.

Make Fuel of Garbage

Garbage can be used for fuel. One ton of it, when dried, contains, on an average, as much heat as 400 pounds of good coal. Therefore owners of buildings who have garbage to dispose of actually cannot afford to have it hauled away.

A Kewanee Water Heating Garbage Burner will burn garbage and rubbish, without odor. That keeps the premises clean and sanitary solving the garbage problem forever. And the garbage and rubbish is used as fuel for heating water—cutting hot water costs to a minimum.

KEWANEE
Water Heating Garbage Burners

A small coal fire is started on the lower grates. The by pass at the back (a patented feature of the Kewanee) prevents the wet and damp garbage from smothering the fire. The garbage is quickly dried and burns without odor. The garbage grates contain water and the entire chamber is surrounded by water which heats water hot in abundance.

for apartments, hotels, hospitals, restaurants, etc., are the sanitary and economical way of disposing of the garbage and refuse before it has a chance to decay and breed rats and flies and other disease carrying insects and vermin.

Many of New York City's best buildings are installing these burners. We will be pleased to refer you to the various installations.

AUCTION SALES OF WEEK.

Except where otherwise stated, the properties offered were in foreclosure. Adjournments of legal sales to next week are noted under Advertised Legal Sales.

* Indicates that the property described was bid in for the plaintiff's account.

The Auction Market.

The weakness of the real estate market was reflected in the auction rooms, where, out of 31 offerings, only 3 went to outside bidders. There were 3 adjourned or withdrawn, and 25 went to parties in interest. The sales were well attended this week and as a result there was considerable interest manifested, but plaintiffs comprised most of the buyers.

The coming week marks the passing of the old Burns restaurant property on Sixth avenue, as it will be sold at the stand of Joseph P. Day on Tuesday. It will be remembered as the first "oyster house" in the city and for many years the only one of its kind north of 42d street. Herbert A. Sherman will offer loft structures on Water street and Goerck street, and other auctioneers the usual assortment of miscellaneous properties.

Manhattan.

The following is the complete list of property sold, withdrawn or adjourned during the week ending Feb. 27, 1914, at New York Real Estate Salesroom, 14 and 16 Vesey st.

Light
Your Halls

Twenty inspectors have recently been detailed by the Tenement House Department to see that hallways of apartment and tenement houses are lighted at night in accordance with the law.

The law reads that there shall be a light at night in the lower hall and one in the hall on the second floor. Many owners and occupants of tenement buildings unconsciously violate these provisions because of an inadequate method of controlling the light.

If you feel that the hallways of the buildings you own or occupy are inadequately lighted or the lighting improperly controlled we shall be pleased to render you any assistance in our power.

Write us and one of our lighting experts will show you how electric light will not only protect you against law-violation, but he will prove to you that it's the most economical form of lighting for hallways.

THE FIRE INSURANCE OF AN OFFICE BUILDING.

By EDW. R. HARDY, Assistant Manager New York Fire Insurance Exchange.

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for the American Real Estate Co.

WHEN one considers the payment which the insured may receive for his fire premium, the cost of fire insurance in the modern fireproof office building is the least of the overhead charges.

What is, from the insurance standpoint, an office building. We mean the modern steel structure and not the non-fireproof building. This is now the established type for office purposes, not merely in the local territory but all over the United States. There are very few buildings, even in New York City, scarcely one north of Chambers street, that can be filled with tenants whose occupancy may be classed as that for office purposes. In a great majority of these structures there is a certain proportion of sample stock tenants, and a business occupancy of stores, at least on the first floor and usually the basement and first. In the development of any live business it becomes necessary, from time to time, to revise the definitions and readjust the classes which the definitions cover.

Definition of an Office Building.

For many years a building of this type was considered an office building if it conformed to the following definition: "Office building includes partial occupancy by sample stocks or small restaurants or grade floor stocks whose first column charge is less than 15 per cent. (that is, .15 or less)." This definition is general, and permitted more or less leeway on the part of the one whose duty it was to decide whether a building fell within the office class or not. After an experience of about ten years a somewhat more elastic, and yet at the same time more clearly defined rule was adopted, and the one in force at the present time reads as follows:

(A) Any building of fireproof construction occupied on the grade floor or below grade by a tenant or tenants whose first column charges do not exceed .15 will be entitled to full allowance for office occupancy if the occupancy aboev grade conforms to the conditions set forth in Item C.

(B) Any building of fireproof construction occupied on the grade floor or below grade by a tenant or tenants whose first column charge exceeds .15 will be entitled to allowance for office occupancy above grade if the occupancy above grade conforms to the conditions set forth in Item C.

(C) In order that a building may be entitled to full office occupancy allowance or office occupancy allowance above grade as set forth in A and B, the occupancy above grade other than strictly office occupancy must be limited as follows:

There may be a partial occupancy by tenants with sample stocks, or a small restaurant, or a club, or other tenants whose first column charge does not exceed .10, but no such tenant other than restaurant or club shall occupy more than 2,500 square feet of undivided floor area; nor shall such tenants other than restaurant or club collectively occupy more than 5 per cent. of the floor space above grade.

A tenant with a stock of jewelry shall be considered the same as an office tenant.

(D) The Rate Committee shall have the power to provide for special conditions which may arise where it is proposed to segregate and protect a particular hazard higher than that provided for in "C," such segregation and protection to be approved by the Committee.

While the above rule is the one in force in local territory, it probably is not far from covering the general conditions in the United States. To most of the readers familiar with such properties the definition will be clear with the exception possibly, to many, of the reference to the first column charges. A word of explanation may be advisable. The hazard which a tenant may bring to a building by his business is covered in the modern schedule by two charges. The first of these, usually much smaller than the second, is known as the "hazard charge," and that is the charge made against the building by the tenant in question. The second column charge, as it is commonly called, is intended to measure the susceptibility to damage of the tenant's own stock, and may bear no relation whatever to the rate of insurance on the building or to the rate of the contents of any other tenant. It is intended to measure susceptibility and not hazard. It will be noted that a building may remain in the office class provided that below the first floor there is no tenant with a hazard charge greater than 15 per cent., while above grade there may be the usual club or restaurant, and a certain proportion of the space occupied by sample stocks. Should the property exceed these limitations, it passes into the class of mercantile properties and is so rated.

Insurances on Contents.

The insurance on the contents of an office building of the type we are considering, so far as the strictly office tenants or even sample tenants are concerned, is usually a matter of minor consideration. If any insurance at all is carried in such cases it is usually so small an amount that the premium involved is not a matter of serious consideration to the tenant. Large lines may be involved below the second floor where stock conditions prevail.

The rate of insurance on the building appears usually to be of more consideration to the parties in interest than the rate on the contents, but it should be emphasized that as the basis for the tenant's rate is the structural conditions of the building, it follows that the nearer the building approaches standard conditions so much lower will the rate be for the tenant.

As an instance of the wide range in the rate of insurance on these properties, the rate today on one of the earliest buildings erected of this type is 316 per cent. for each $100, while on a building of the same height and class the minimum rate of 5 per cent. is secured. In the latter case the parties have built according to schedules, so to speak, having done everything they could to secure the minimum rate.

Effects of Good or Bad Construction.

The rates covering office furniture and fixtures in these two properties make an interesting comparison and show the effect of good or bad construction.

In the first or higher rated building the rate for offices runs from the 5th to the 11th floor as follows:—

In the lower rated building the rates are:—

The first building is only eleven stories high, and the second building is fifteen stories high, with a rate for office furniture and fixtures on the fifteenth floor of .644, which is less than the rate on the fifth floor in the first-named building, although height is an important factor in problems of fire insurance. While the statement has been made that values in office furniture and fixtures are usually small, in many cases they run to a goodly sum, and some of the sharpest arguments concerning the insurance rate have been carried on over the rate on furniture and fixtures in buildings of fireproof construction.

The principle factors taken into consideration in determining the insurance rate, fall under the following items: The key or basic rate of the city; the walls; unprotected metal members height; floor; type of arch; floor openings; skylights; width of street; unprotected stone piers, columns, etc. All of these items may, under proper guidance, be so taken care of with the exception of the height basis and width of street, as to make no change in the rate of insurance. We have learned how to protect the metal members in our fireproof buildings, but a large advance is still to be made in the floor openings.

In addition to the above items the building is affected by a hazard charge which some tenant may make. This has been discussed above. Also the exposure on the property is a serious factor, or it may be if the surrounding conditions are principally of the old high-rated type of properties.

Reductions.

The reductions which apply in the computation of the rate, cover such items as fireproof floor surfaces; metal trim; standpipes; the office occupancy conditions; watchman service; auxiliary private fire plant, and fire pails. There are many properties which are receiving the maximum allowance under all of these items, and as they amount in the aggregate to more than 60 per cent. of the charges made at the points where the reductions are allowed, they should be carefully considered by the parties in interest.

The exposure charge on buildings of this type is becoming of less moment, due to the fact that they tend to mass themselves in that portion of the city where the older types of buildings are passing away. In other words, they are exposed largely by fireproof structures and the exposure is based on the generally low rates prevailing on this type of risk. As an actual instance the new Equitable Building will be surrounded by fireproof buildings in the office occupancy class.

The fireproof building in its earlier erection was over-estimated, and many inferior types were deemed unassailable by fire. Experience proved the contrary, though until the Baltimore fire, 1904, the office structures were not severely tested. The same lesson was two years later in San Francisco fire of 1906 driven home once more.

While these structures come through conflagration and even severe fires with the steel members and the walls usually in fair condition, the destruction otherwise is quite complete, and as the equipment and finish form a large part of the cost, the insurance loss on such properties is found to be very heavy.

Wired-Glass Windows.

Many attempts have been made to secure wired glass in properties of the type of construction which we are discussing. Where the exposure is somewhat severe, it is now usually possible to secure this type of glass which makes an excellent fire retardent, but there exists a very strong feeling in insurance circles that if these buildings could have not merely where the exposure seems to make it advisable but throughout their entire exterior walls, wired glass in place of the usual kind, that the advantage would be of mutual benefit to the owners of the property and the insuring interest.

It must be understood that the more nearly a fireproof building attains to a high standard as to cut-offs and interior construction, so much more does it make of each floor a condition equivalent to a furnace; but if the walls of this furnace are in good part of ordinary glass, they will yield very readily to a fire in any floor; and the flames, on reaching the floor above will spread the fire in that manner. We have, in other words, a condition of floor openings, so to speak, on the outside of a building, although the greatest care may have been exercised in guarding the floor openings on the inside.

Objections are raised, usually by the real estate interests and frequently, we understand, by the tenants to having wired glass in the windows because, as it was expressed by one tenant, it "made him feel like looking through a chicken coop." In all probability this is more a state of mind than a state of fact. In due course we rather expect to see this view of the matter pass away and the wired-glass window come into its own. In an effort to introduce this feature in these buildings special concessions have been made in the rate of insurance, but the only building which is qualified in this city, and perhaps the only one in the world, is a building just completed, known as the Walker-Lispenard telephone property

Two points in closing:—

First, the insurance interests at all times are willing to co-operate with any prospective builder in an effort to secure the lowest rate of insurance on a given piece of property. This advice or assistance is available without money or obligation. It should be availed of more freely than it is. Many an error would be avoided if this were done.

Second, the rate of insurance cannot be made frequently to pay the carrying charges on the additional cost of some device or type of construction which the parties may wish to adopt. It is all too frequently overlooked that in the use of one material for another in buildings of this class, the difference in investment cost cannot be in the very nature of things made up by the difference in the cost of insurance. Concretely expressed, assume that there is a building with insurable value of $1,000,000, with a rate (as the building is first planned) of .10. Such properties carry the full rate for the first year, and if written for a longer period than three years they take two and one-half times the annual rate. Therefore, on this property the cost of $1,000,000 insurance for three years would be $2,500. This rate for the privilege, it will be noted, is slightly less than one-tenth of one per cent. on each $100 of insurance. The minimum rate would be one-half of that sum, or $1,250, for the period. The remaining $1,250 then might be considered as the return from an investment standpoint of some form of construction or device which might be used in the property. $1,250 is a 4 per cent. return on approximately $30,000.

It can readily be seen, therefore, that if the substitution of metal trim for wooden trim, for instance, would cost $60,000 more, then the parties must not expect to find in the reduced rate of insurance the full return on their investment. It can contribute a part toward it, but only a part. It all too frequently is the case that the parties overlook the fact that they have in the building a better investment where the higher type of construction is used than where the lower type is used. This must be given equal consideration, with the reduction in the rate of insurance in estimating the investment value of the superior type of construction or device.

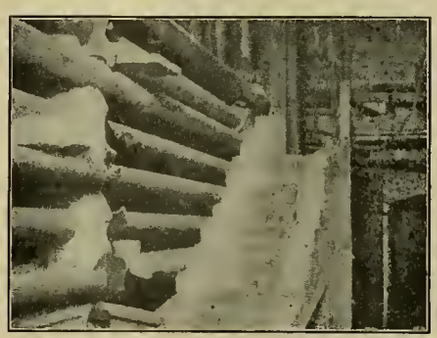
USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration.



Heat Insulating Brick.

SOMETHING novel in heat insulation is being introduced by the Armstrong Cork Company, of Pittsburgh, which is turning out a combination of clay and cork brick for especial use in boiler setting and for preventing heat escaping from boilers to floors above.

The brick is composed of a mixture of infusorial earth, a small quantity of clay and finely ground cork, the latter ingredient being burned out in the firing. The brick are 2¼ by 4 by 9 inches and weigh about one and a half pounds, and are sufficiently strong to be laid up with fire brick or common red brick. Their conductivity is remarkably low, being approximately 12 British Thermal units per square foot, per degree of difference in temperature for one inch thickness, in 24 hours; or about 1-10 the conductivity of ordinary common hard brick.

The illustration shows the brick laid about boiler tubes as backing to fire brick and bonded to both the fire brick and the common brick skin.

How to Bend Brass Pipe.

WHEN brass pipe is hot it becomes very brittle, and for this reason special care must be taken to guard against breaking the pipe. A method which has been found very successful is the following:

First fill the pipe with sand, well tamped, and plug the two ends. Lay the pipe on the end of the bench, with the end to be bent overhanging the edge. Place a plumber's furnace under the point where the bend is to be made, and cover the pipe at that point with a piece of sheet iron, or a shovel, or anything else that will confine the heat. As the pipe heats, the weight of the overhanging part will cause it to bend. Care should be taken that the pipe does not become overheated.

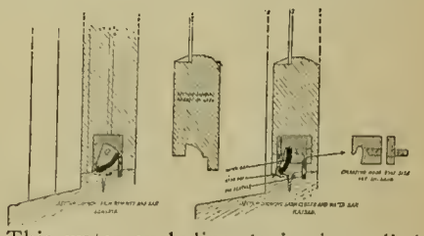
In this way a bend of any angle can be made, even sharp, right angle bends. When the bending is complete, allow the pipe to cool before removing it.

If the overhanging end is too short to have sufficient weight to bend, a weight may be attached.

Crack-Proof Cement.

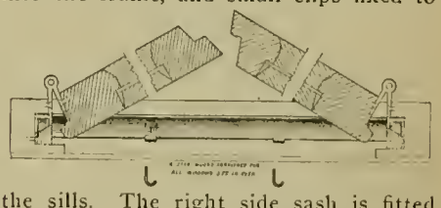
MIXING into cement about 10 per cent. petroleum residuum will make it resist water, and this means that the cement will be crack-proof because water cannot find its way inside of the cement compounds. It is stated that Director Page of the office of Public Roads of Massachusetts made the discovery while trying to compound a mixture for roads which would not break up. He found that 10 per cent of crude oil did not injure cement and sand compounds for building purposes, but on the other hand made it waterproof. As the cracking of the cement blocks and mass work has been of grave objections to some kinds of cement work, it may be that this discovery may be of vast interest to the building world in general.

A Useful Template for Architects.



ANYTHING that simplies the monotonous mechanical duplication often incidental to laying out working plans on buildings in architects' offices should receive a cordial welcome. For that reason the innovation of a template, composed of the same kind of transparent amberoid material as architect's triangles are made of, through which have been punched the forms of plumbing fixtures that go into sketches through which an architect merely may insert the point of his pencil and trace out the form to scale, is sure to meet a long-felt want by draughtsmen. It gives the proper dimensions of plumbing fixtures and roughing distances from wall lines.

The different fixtures that can be drawn in a second by the use of this template are wall urinals, stall urinals, lavatory, lavatory and sink, bath tubs 5′ 6″x2′ 8″ and 5′x2′ 8″, corner baths of the same dimensions as already given, lavatory bowl, water closet, corner and oval lavatory. Pipe holes are also set into the template which, in addition, is equipped with a quarter-inch scale. This template is being distributed gratuitously by the W. G. Cornell Company, the plumbing, heating and lighting house, which has demonstrated its resources and efficiency on the Woolworth and other great architectural masterpieces of the day in this city. The company's offices are in the Everett building, 17th street and Fourth avenue.



A Water Excluding Bar.

A WATER excluding bar that is adaptable to doors as well as to casement windows is being introduced by the Grant Pulley and Hardware Company of 3 West 29th street. The details of the device are shown in the two accompanying cuts.

In the first drawing the left hand sketch shows the sash removed and bar lowered. The center sketch shows the babbit of sash, the third shows the sash closed and the water-bar raised and the small drawing illustrates the operating hook. In the second figure the full sash and sill are shown with the two stop hooks that are furnished with all windows three feet and over in width.

This water excluding device is applied to inward opening casement windows. It consists of the ordinary sill bar or feather to cut sash joint, together with a special crescent shape metal bar, which moves up or down, automatically with the opening or closing of the sash. It is held in place by two sockets, set into the frame, and small clips fixed to the sills. The right side sash is fitted with a special hook, which catches and moves the water excluding bar into position. When the sash is closed, the bar rises a full three-eighths of an inch underneath and into the sash, and absolutely excludes all water. The bar is simple in construction and it is claimed that it cannot get out of order. It can be applied by any carpenter and will last indefinitely as all the fittings are made of heavily galvanized iron and steel copper dipped.

A PECULIAR SITUATION IN TENEMENT WORK

The Difficulties Which the Builders of Open-Stair Tenements Have Had—New Law Hindering Development of A Type.

By WILL WALTER JACKSON, Secretary Tenement Economies Society.

NEVER have we had such a flood of appeals from charitable societies as we have had this winter and never has the cry for better and more abundant housing been so far reaching.

Charitable societies who are in close touch with the needy are responsible for our housing laws at present. They have unusual opportunity for studying just about what degree of refinement of the housing art can be afforded by the average wage-earner in any particular locality. They doubtless try to make our laws fit the purse of the rent payer on the one hand and the return upon the investment of the builder and the owner on the other. They try to avoid allowing the law to be so lax as to injure the health of the occupant; they do not knowingly make the law so stringent and interefering as to prevent money from flowing into this channel of building activity.

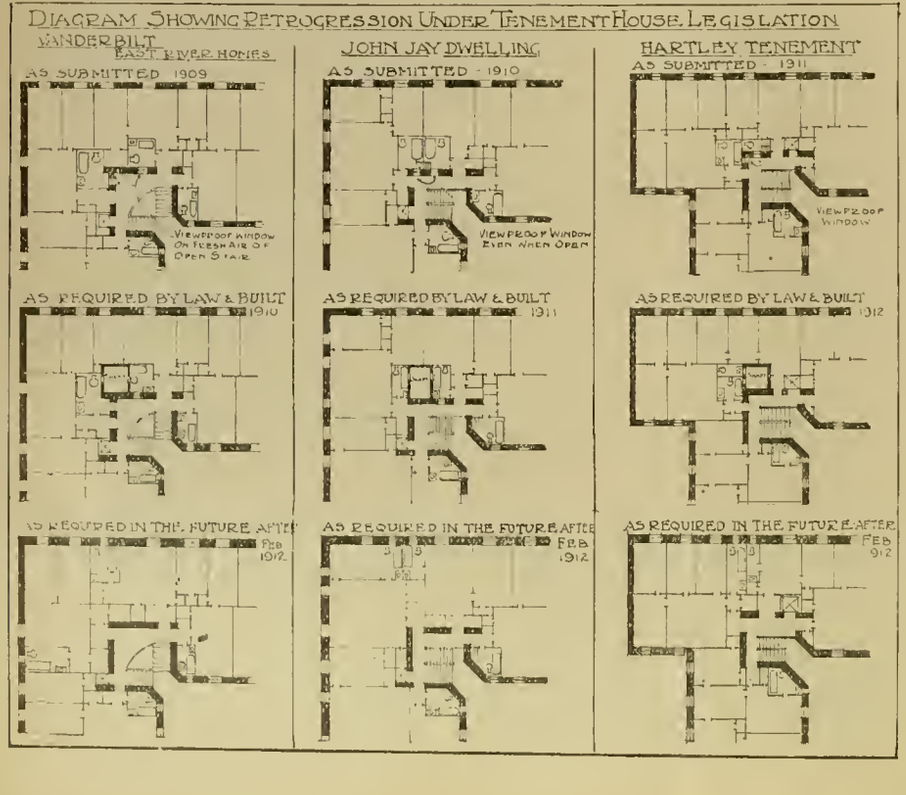
Yet from time to time errors are made even with the best intentions. The tenement law that prevails in New York City is a State law; it applies to all cities of the first class; our city is vast and it would be strange if a law that is mandatory and which is not readily adapted to keeping up to date should be universally applicable to all sorts of property and all types of buildings. One would suppose, however, that it would be in accord with or at least not a hindrance to such prominent enterprises as the ones hereafter discussed.

The accompanying diagrams of Economic open-stair tenements are notable examples of a peculiar situation. These diagrams relate to three groups of buildings that have been much in the public eye. Few people realize what these diagrams bring out; these buildings were not built as well as they could have been and as their owners desired. They were built as shown in the second line as the only means of preserving an unbroken outside wall space and at the same time complying with the law as it then existed.

Changed The Law.

Later, contrary to the advice of the Tenement Economies Societies and the New York Academy of Medicine (resolution of May 4, 1911), the law was so amended as to demand in open-stair tenements the placing of a toilet upon the far too valuble outside wall space. In the lower classes of tenements, where only a w. c. is provided, this accommodation becomes an inclosed box in the corner of a kitchen opening publicly right off the kitchen instead of privately off the entrance vestibule. There was a sentimental reason for demanding that this law should apply also to Economic open-stair tenements. Those who favored this legislation and balked the attitude of the New York Academy of Medicine and the bills (June, 1911, and March, 1913), which the Tenement Economies Society presented at Albany, felt that the window upon the stairs was indecent. They did not weigh how indecent it is to have the whole family entering a w. c. 2 feet 4 inches by 4 feet, built out into the kitchen in comparison to a similar accommodation entered from the private vestibule of the suite. They did not avail themselves of an opportunity of testing how objectionable, if at all, would be the viewproof window as installed at present in No. 520 East 77th street, the last unit of the John Jay dwellings. They hindered progress along this line without adequate study of the facts.

The relative advantages and disadvantages of the window of the character installed is readily determined by trying it. The advantage of the window so placed is obviously one of privacy from the tenant's standpoint; and an advantage to both the tenant and owner because of the economic and efficient use of space, light and ventilation.



A Backward Step.

It has seemed to the Tenement Economies Society, of which Prof. Charles F. Chandler is the president and Prof. George F. Canfield, a prominent member, that the recently enacted law, which hinders the development and perfection of the economic and efficient advantages of this type of open-stair tenement, is a backward step, however well this law may apply to other types of tenements.

Strange to say, the whole open-stair tenement scheme was illegal from 1900 until 1912, whatever may have been the law previously. The erection of all these open-stair tenements in New York City, being a city of the first class, was only allowed through the discretion of a Tenement House Commissioner, who is supposed to have no discretion under a law which is mandatory. The law read between those dates thus: "all stair halls shall be inclosed on all sides with brick walls," and it was not until Feb., 1912, through the attention brought to the situation by the Tenement Economies Society, that these words were added: "except that one or more sides may be left open to the street, yard or court," thus legalizing the discretionary decision that had been made by a commissioner two or three years previously.

In this connection it may be interesting to note that our recently (May 31, 1913) enacted law for cities of the second class commits the same error, being taken verbatim from the otherwise excellent book by Mr. Veiller, entitled: "A Model Tenement Law" (published by Russell Sage Foundation, 1910). This law reads under Section 56: "all stair halls shall be enclosed on all sides with walls of brick or other approved fireproof material not less than 8 inches thick." The law does not yet contain the exception allowing open stairs, nor does it contain the other necessary provisions advocated by the Tenement Economies Society. Thus the erection of Open-Stair dwellings is prohibited by law where multiple dwellings of the interior stair type are acceptable.

While the pressing appeals from charitable societies are ringing in our ears, we should carefully survey our laws and particularly our tenement laws and see whether we are making progress or whether we may not be adding to the affliction of the needy by unscientific restrictions and demands.

New Catholic Church.

The French Catholic population of the city will have, upon the completion of the church soon to be started at Morningside avenue and 114th street, one of the most beautiful houses of worship in the city, as well as one unique in many respects. The church will be dedicated to Notre Dame de Lourdes, and be known as the Church of Notre Dame. Plans have been completed by Cross & Cross, architects, 10 East 47th street, and the building will be erected under their supervision.

The building will be constructed of limestone with cornice, pediments and column caps, richly ornamented, the whole in the style of Louis VI. The dome is modeled on the lines of the Invalides in Paris, better known as the Tomb of Napoleon. This dome, which is the most prominent architectural feature of the building has an inside diameter of 57 feet, and from curb line to the top of the statue which surmounts it, rises to a height of 215 feet.

The building when entirely completed, will have a seating capacity of about seven hundred, exclusive of choir and chancel accommodations. The interior of the building will be finished largely with a newly discovered tile, which possesses peculiar acoustic qualities. The grotto is copied from the one in the cathedral at Lourdes, France. It is proposed to accommodate pilgrimages, which will be held at certain stated times, and for this reason has been designed with specially wide aisles and cloisters around the apse.

The building when completed will be a beautiful and noteworthy addition to the number of really magnificent ecclesiastical buildings already erected in this city.

Astor Building to be Larger.

William Vincent Astor has decided to add an area of more than 5,000 square feet to the building proposed for the Astor estate land at 2 to 18 West 33d street. The Astor operation, which will be made by a syndicate headed by Leslie R. Palmer, incorporated as the Thirty-second and Thirty-third Street Company, will be extended to cover the property at 5 and 7 West 32d street, which has just been obtained under a long-term lease by the syndicate. Through the acquisition of this property, the original building, planned to have an outlet at 9 West 32d street. Herman Lee Maeder and Charles A. Platt, associate, are the architects. The enlarged plan will afford a rentable area in the proposed structure of approximately 30,000 square feet to each of its twelve stories, which face the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. Charles T. Wills, 286 Fifth avenue has the general contract.

Office Building for Worcester, Mass.

Cross & Cross, architects, 10 East 47th street, are preparing plans for an office building soon to be erected in Worcester, Mass. It will be built of brick, Indiana limestone and granite, on a frame of steel and reinforced concrete, and in equipment will include every possible convenience for its tenants. The building will be eleven stories in height and cover a plot 80x120 feet. In all probability a private plant for power and lighting purposes will be installed and the exhaust steam will be used to heat the building. Four electric elevators will be installed. The building will cost about $500,000. The plans are not in condition at the present time for the architects to make public further details or to state definitely when bids will be asked.

Theatre and Loft Building in 42d Street.

The Finance Company of Pennsylvania, George H. Earle, president; William Funk, secretary and treasurer, 1430 South Pennsylvania Square, Philadelphia, will soon start the erection of a sixteen-story theatre and loft building at 251-257 West 42d street, near 8th avenue, on a plot 80x160 feet. The Hoffman Company, architects, Empire Building, Philadelphia, has prepared plans. The cost is estimated at about $400,000. This project was announced more than a year ago, but the construction was held in abeyance.

Cross & Cross, Architects.

Contract for Albany Courthouse.

The Board of Supervisors at Albany awarded the general contract this week to the William L. Crow Construction Co., 103 Park avenue, Manhattan, for the new county courthouse to be erected at Eagle, Columbia, Steuben and Lodge streets, Albany, at a cost of about $1,106,000. Plans, which were prepared by Hoppin & Koen, of 244 Fifth avenue, call for a building of white marble or granite exterior, four and six stories in height, 112x225 feet in size.

$300,000 Hotel for Brightwaters.

Frank M. Rogers, of Bayshore, Long Island, is having plans prepared by Charles M. Hart, Main street, Bayshore, for a five-story frame hotel, 40x120 feet, with three wings, to be erected at Brightwaters. The cost is estimated at about $300,000. Further details will be announced later.

George S. Brewster to Build.

Trowbridge & Livingston, 527 Fifth avenue, Manhattan, have been commissioned to prepare plans for a country residence for George S. Brewster, the banker, 49 Wall street, to be erected at Brookville, Long Island, on a tract of 190 acres. Further details cannot be given at this time.

Contract for Vanderbilt Residence.

To Alter Fifth Av. Office Building.

C. P. H. Gilbert, 1123 Broadway, will soon receive estimates for remodelling the office building at 881 Fifth avenue, to cost more than $100,000. Plans are now in course of preparation. The name of the owner is for the present withheld.

THE TILEINE COMPANY has recently taken a large suite at 101 Park av, and has decorated and furnished it in an elaborate manner for use as general offices, using the company's own product in this work as far as possible. In the directors' room and private offices the color of flooring is old ivory, which harmonizes with the furnishings. The floors in the offices, draughting rooms and salesrooms are of a deep red tone. The floors as laid demonstrate what it is possible to achieve in work of this character.

JOHN WILLIAMS, a Republican, was appointed secretary of the Industrial Board of Labor Department this week at a salary of $5,000 a year. He succeeds John R. Shilloday, of Buffalo. In the Sulzer administration Mr. Williams, who entered the Labor Department as a factory inspector under Colonel Roosevelt and rose to the commissionership, resigned in order that John Mitchell might be appointed. The understanding was that Williams would be appointed first deputy, but the Senate failed to confirm Mitchell.

TRINITY P. E. CHURCH in Copley square, Boston, has had its sanctuary enriched with a baldachin, designed by Shipley, Rutan & Coolidge, architects. The base on which the communion table stands is raised three steps from the chancel floor. Six columns surround the table on three sides, leaving the front open. Two lions support the columns on the front. The front columns support a semi-circular arch with a pediment over it, on which are two peacocks, the Byzantine symbol of immortality. On the corners, above the caps, are two conventionalized eagles representing the air. Two fishes represent the water, and the vines which enrich the front faces represent the earth. Covering the communion table and joining the columns to the front and forming the inside of the roof is an eliptical dome. The communion table is a simple block of marble with a cross in the centre of the front.

THE BALL OF THE FINE ARTS, given by the Society of Beaux-Arts Architects at the Hotel Astor Friday, February 20, was the most brilliant social event of the winter. A beautiful pageant, arranged in three parts by George S. Chappell, and a spectacle arranged by Howard Greenley, were the special features of the evening, which were followed by general dancing. It is quite impossible to describe the beauty and grace of the pageant and spectacle. One must have witnessed it to really appreciate it to the utmost. Every detail was historically correct, the costumes and scenery specially designed, and the cast made up of well known architects and ladies prominent in society, all coached to the highest degree of perfection. The committee of architects, who conceived and planned the affair is deserving of far more commendation than we are able to include in these few lines, but they have the satisfaction of knowing that the ball was a wonderful success, financially as well as socially, and that their hard work was thoroughly appreciated by all who were present.

ELECTRICAL ENGINEERS.—The second midwinter convention of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers was held at the Engineering Societies' Building this week and was opened at 10 A. M., Wednesday, Feb. 25, with an address by the President of the institute, Mr. C. O. Mailloux. The convention was held under the auspices of the Electric Power Committee and was devoted principally to the generation, transmission and distribution of electricity. On Wednesday evening a meeting under the auspices of the International Electrical Congress was held in the auditorium of the Engineering Societies' Building. The object of this meeting was to stimulate an interest in the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. The institute will hold a convention at San Francisco during the exposition and for that reason much interest was manifested in the meeting by the members of the Institute as well as by the ladies who attended. The addresses of the evening were delivered by men prominent in the electrical profession. Dr. C. P. Stenmetz told what the International Electrical Congress expect to accomplish at the exposition. Dr. Wm. Rader described with the aid of lantern slides the general arrangement of the exposition buildings. Mr. W. D. A. Ryan told of the wonderful illumination that will be effected at the exposition and Mr. Jas. A. Cruickshank also spoke. A dinner-dance was given at the Hotel Biltmore Thursday evening.

BUILDING MATERIALS AND SUPPLIES

CONSTRUCTION WORK STILL RETARDED BY COLD WEATHER —STEEL CONTRACTS FOR BUILDING WORK MUCH FREER.

Coal Deliveries Up to Normal—
Basic Materials More Active.

WHILE construction work is still more or less retarded by weather conditions, there is a much more active inquiry for basic materials. Wholesale interests are keeping prices fairly firm in most lines, as shown in the February current wholesale price list appearing on this page. They are the same as those published in the January table, with the exception of structural steel, which has been advanced slightly. Whereas Hudson common brick prices in January were basic, they were merely nominal during the month just closing. Certain lines of lumber have moved up, notably spruce and hardwoods, but other building woods are holding steadily at list. There is a strengthening tone in this department, however, in anticipation of a heavier call from dealers as the building season approaches.

Almost every department of the building material market feels the improvement in inquiry for late March, April and May deliveries to suburban distributing yards.

In the supply department, rope and coal were the most important factors this week. The former reflects the tightness in the wire market, while the latter is a carry-over of the severe hauling conditions that have prevailed here for the last fortnight. The big coal distributors reported to the Record and Guide this week that they are getting back to their regular carting schedules, except in the outlying sections, where apartment houses are situated on streets where the snow has not been removed. By the first of the week it is expected that fuel deliveries will be normal.

Structural steel figured in better shape in the week's development of the building material market. The steel market was interested in the report that a large textile warehouse was being figured in Brooklyn that will require about 7,000 tons of structural shapes. The structure is to be erected for a large Southern textile mill which will move to Brooklyn to take care of the business developing incidental to the passing of the new tariff law. Incidentally, there was more activity in steel making and foundry grades of pig iron, showing that the equipment companies are getting ready for greater activity with the approach of spring. Much of this buying was among radiator and pump concerns. Building shapes showed activity among railroads, the New Haven, Lackawanna and New York Central being conspicuous on inquiry. The Johnson-Kahn building developed a tonnage of 4,000 tons, and the General Chemical Company's building at Marcus Hook will take approximately 300 tons. The New Haven will take 250 tons for a bridge at Woodlawn.

The week began with a slight increase in steel mill operations. It was estimated that the ingot output of the United States Steel Corporation is now 70 per cent. of maximum capacity, and the finished steel output is around 68 per cent. The company's officers here state that the current month will show an increase of between 300,000 and 400,000 tons in unfilled tonnage, which will compare favorably with the January increase. This increase is due, however, more directly to depleted stocks in warehouses than to an increase in building construction; but the inquiry now coming in seems to bear out the belief that structural business will show a decided gain before the new month is half gone.

Materials depending upon lighters for delivery in this city have been slow in arriving, on account of the large quantity of ice still in the harbor.

THE BRICK MARKET.

Carting Conditions Hamper Builders In Proceeding with Construction Work.

THE movement of common brick is still restricted, first, because of the ordinance prohibiting the laying of brick when the temperature is below 28 degrees; and second, because riding conditions have been such as to make trucking almost impossible. Building contractors are clamoring for brick as well as other building materials. Contractors have been lucky to receive more than 33 per cent. of their requirements.

In the Raritan market there is so much ice in the Kill von Kull, Staten Island Sound and the Raritan and South Rivers that shipments are almost impossible. If the weather continues warm until the first of the week brick can be carted to meet almost any demand, for the supply in the market is still large, both on barges waiting discharge and at the wholesale market.

NEW DEPARTURE IN SLATE SELLING.

E. J. Johnson Starts Innovation In His Trade.

ROOFING and interior slate in this market is beginning to show some of the usual spring inquiry, but prices remain at normal levels. The tendency, however, is toward a stiffening tone should demand within the next few months warrant it. Current prices are quoted on this page.

A decided innovation in slate selling is being made by the E. J. Johnson Slate Co., of 30 Park Row. For the first time the virtue of roofing slate is being directly urged upon architects through brochures, pointing out the advantages of using nature's own product in protecting buildings of all kinds. Incidentally it brings out the virtue of slate flooring, which has attained popularity in fine buildings where the artistic floor patterns of old world cathedrals are sought. In a separate booklet the subject of slate blackboards is very carefully expounded, which should interest architects, having school or studio work to do.

REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS GUIDE.

SIGNIFICANCE OF THE NEW TAX THEORIES

How Attempts at Universal Philanthropy Are Increasing Living Costs — Tenement, Minimum Wage and Single-Tax Legislation.

By ROBERT W. THOMPSON, Jr. *

HEAVY tax burdens imposed upon real estate in New York have been operating most unjustly upon a large class of investors whose savings are in this form of investment.

The total bonded debt of the city of New York was $1,263,693,904.61 on the 31st day of December, 1913. Deducting from this the corporate stock, notes, assessment bonds and general fund bonds held by sinking funds, the net amount of this debt held by the public is shown as follows:

During the year 1913 the total revenue receipts of the city aggregated $203,405,943.38, of which sum the taxes collected during the year aggregated $148,556,847.55. These tax collections consisted of $134,192,431.12 from taxes levied on lands and buildings; $6,730,062.46 from special franchise taxes; $3,636,908.53 from taxes on real estate of corporations, and $3,997,445.44 from personal property taxes.

In the report of the Comptroller the expenditures during 1913 are briefly described as consisting of $7,947,031.96 paid as direct taxes to the State of New York; $135,625,710.47 in current administrative and operating expense. There was $45,721,775.67 paid for interest on the city debt, of which $9,518,093.51 was paid into the city sinking funds and $36,203,682.16 was paid to outside holders of the city's securities. The outlays for public improvements aggregated $103,605,512.21. The significance of these figures can only be understood by comparing the annual budgets for past years.

Under public improvements are included monies paid in meeting the cost of construction of the Catskill Water Supply, Rapid Transit construction, dock improvements, construction of new Municipal Building, acquiring the site for the new court house in Manhattan, building of and extensions to school-houses and the carrying out of many other improvements to which the city is committed.

It will be found that assessed valuations (of real estate) have risen from $2,463,135,687 in 1897 to $8,049,859,912 in 1914 in an endeavor to provide funds, and the alarming increase in taxation is inevitably bringing property owners face to face with a crisis.

Effects of Socialistic Government.

The reasons for this increase are not difficult to discover. We are becoming more socialistic in our ideas, and vast sums are required to meet new needs. Throughout the country generally in our cities the making, sweeping, lighting and repairing of streets, roads and bridges, sewerage systems in all their complexity, museums, parks, art galleries, libraries, concert halls, markets, fire-engines, ferries, public baths, harbors, piers, wharves, docks, hospitals, dispensaries, schools and universities, have all been brought under collective management. The municipality is acting socialistically and communistically to a degree which few Americans realize. There are also many evidences of municipal extravagance and waste, as well as notable instances of official corruption.

A renewal of agitation in the Legislature for an increment tax reminds us that the question of taxation, like every other economic one, is essentially a question of pure theory and its practical application.

Fair-minded men, recognizing that sound legislation can never be based on fallacies, will not subscribe to the new tax theories without an honest and intelligent investigation of the situation; but public opinion will to some extent be influenced by those who do not perceive the effect of unwise legislation.

Laws must be tested in their actual operation before they can be called good ones. It is an unfortunate fact, however, that the simplest of tax laws may give rise to complications and inequalities when it comes to administration, and the adoption of mistaken tax theories must inevitably be followed by disastrous effects and widespread dissatisfaction. The expenses of government cannot be escaped, but the burden should be equitably distributed. That this burden has been increasing instead of diminishing is beyond dispute.

What History Teaches.

In the British Isles, where conditions affecting taxation have become acute, and where the burden placed upon landed proprietors is more heavily felt than here in prosperous America, the tendency to increase taxes and to dispense wealth under plans of State insurance for wage-earners and in other ways no less direct is progressing until many thoughtful people believe that these symptoms of socialism and governmental weakness mark a decline in the growth and power of the British nation.

The student of history knows that as civilization has advanced, governments have been called upon to assume new and more complex functions; the sphere of action of the State grows larger and the ends it serves grow more numerous. The expenses of government likewise tend to increase. While Lowe in 1822 estimated the yearly net income of the British people at £251,000,000, the Government expenses in 1813 and 1814 averaged £106,000,000, and this did not include the cost of schools, churches and benevolent institutions, but the figures quoted represent the sum voluntarily devoted to public purposes by Parliament. Between 1685 and 1841 the population of the United Kingdom more than trebled its numbers, but in the same period of time the outlay of the state increased forty-fold. It is thus to be observed that there is a natural law of increase in legitimate expense.

The adherents of Socialism are eager to hasten this natural movement, while the Conservative, who believes in the institution of private property and the normal rewards of thrift and frugality, views the logical results of this tendency with some apprehension and alarm.

Economists generally have come to regard direct attempts made at socialism and communism as diseases of the body social which have affected every highly civilized nation at certain periods of its existence. If the body be too weak to react healthfully and curatively, the evil is very apt to lead to the decline of all true freedom and order.

At four periods of the world's history it will be found that socialistic and communistic ideas have been most widespread. (1) Among the ancients at the time of the decline of Greece; (2) at the time of the degeneration of the Roman Republic; (3) among the moderns in the age of the Reformation, (4) and again in our own day.

To cite examples from Roman history of these manifestations, the practice of supporting the populace at the expense of great candidates or of the state was developed to a very great extent. The masses lived very largely by the sale of their right of suffrage to the highest bidder. In the social reforms of the younger Gracchus, besides the limitation of large land ownership the principal points were the following: The sale of wheat under market price, but only to the inhabitants of Rome itself; the construction of great highways in Italy, colonization at the expense of the state, and the increase of soldiers' pay. The socialistic plans of Rullus went much further. Had his agrarian laws been put into execution he would have confiscated very nearly the entire country in the interest of the poor and of their demagogues. Rome twice experienced social revolutions of the most frightful character.

Keep One Foot On the Ground.

The demand of modern civilization and its political philosophy is for social justice and equality of opportunity at a time when the conditions of production appear to forbid industrial individualism. Let us keep one foot on the ground and remember that the real progressive is not apt to be the one who favors revolution.

The institution of private property and the constitutional safeguards to individual freedom are not to be abolished, for they are too sacred to men of Anglo-Saxon blood to be discarded for the doctrine of community of goods, supplemented with the idea of an organization of labor, or the centralized superintendence of all production and consumption, either by the government already existing, or by one to be created anew.

"Universal Philanthropy."

We may well ask whether every incentive which now moves man to industry and frugality is to disappear and nothing remain but universal philanthropy. This cannot be so long, as the growth and prosperity of a nation depend upon the virility of its people and the interest of the whole depands upon the interests of the individual citizen.

In the program of social reform for wage-earners, the aim has been quite properly to protect them in the continued enjoyment of their present standards of living. To do this we have passed factory laws to limit the hours of toil and define and regulate the conditions under which the work is performed. Among other protective measures designed to prevent our laborers from losing ground in their struggle to rear their children under as favorable conditions as they themselves have known, are laws to establish a Minimum Wage and the so-called Tenement House acts, neither of which tend in any way to lessen the cost of living or to confer any benefits gratuitously upon tenant or landlord. In this whole movement we find nowhere an attempt to compensate for property loss or to distribute the increased expense beyond the property owning class.

What the Tenement Law Did.

However beneficial to the health of the community in the long run, it is well known that the effect of the enforcement of the Tenement House Law, for instance, was a shrinkage in property valuations and the income to be derived therefrom.

There are 600,000 rentpayers in the city of New York and 95,000 property owners, and it would seem that any just measures for tax reform should take account of the source of our present revenue. Certainly the prosperity of such a large community should be at least consulted.

REAL ESTATE DEMONSTRATION AT ALBANY

The Successful Protest Against the Half-Tax Referendum and Other Bills Believed to Be the Turning Point in the Real Estate Situation.

THE protest of real estate interests against over-taxation and against the imposition of unjust laws and ordinances is beginning to produce results. Events of the week in taxation matters have made it of epochal importance to real estate and related interests. A turning point seems to have been reached, and from now on the burdens on real property are expected to be gradually lessened instead of increased, as they have been for a decade. The fixing of the city tax rate at from three to five points lower than it was last year was the first of the events referred to, and the disfavor with which the members of the Joint Committee on Cities of the Legislature received the arguments of the single-taxers was the second event which has this week revived the spirits of taxpayers.

A Formidable Demonstration.

The large party which went to the hearing to oppose the bill came away with the belief that the bill will not be reported out of committee. More than two hundred men representing all the real estate boards, boards of trade and commerce, and nearly all the really active associations of property owners in the several boroughs, attended the hearing, and made it the most formidable demonstration that New York City property interests have made in many years at the State Capital. The presence of a Borough President as the official representative of the Board of Estimate, to present resolutions adopted by that body, and the fact that he was supported not by a chance or promiscuous gathering of objectors, but by a highly representative body of taxpayers must have made a decided impression upon the members of the joint committee.

The organizations which by delegated members appeared in opposition to the bill were headed by the Real Estate Board of New York, and included the Brooklyn Board of Brokers, the United Real Estate Owners' Associations (nine associations in all), the Allied Real Estate Interests, the Chamber of Commerce, the Merchants' Association the Savings Bank Association, the Citizens' Union, the North Side Board of Trade, the Queens Chamber of Commerce the Richmond Chamber of Commerce, the Taxpayers' Alliance of the Bronx, Murray Hill Taxpayers, Tremont Taxpayers and several Brooklyn and Queens societies.

The resolutions of the Board of Estimate which Borough President McCormack presented were those which were adopted by the board on the occasion of the local hearing on the bill a fortnight ago.

"For Lower Rents."

The principal speakers for the bill were Benjamin C. Marsh, the executive secretary of the local Single-Tax colony, and John J. Hopper, the Register of New York County. Mr. Marsh's newest and strongest argument seemed to lie in a pasteboard box nearly two feet high, which he said contained the signatures of 20,000 working people of Greater New York who favored the referendum and wanted a lower tax on buildings.

Allan Robinson hoped that Mr. Marsh would send a copy of the postal card issued for these signatures to the committee, because it asked for signatures of those who wanted their rents reduced. "We all want our rent reduced" exclaimed Mr. Robinson, "and if that were all, we would all sign." Mr. Marsh rejoined by saying that the card clearly set forth the nature of the proposal to which signatures were requested.

The point in Mr. Hopper's address was that the electorate could be depended upon to vote intelligently on the issue, which brought from Senator Thompson this question:

"Do you think the Legislature has no duty to perform in looking into the merits of this or any other matter before submitting it to the people, and ought we not to consider if the question should be submitted to the people?"

Mr. Hopper replied: "Yes, you ought to consider it carefully, but the people should have a chance to vote for it." With this submission, Mr. Hopper asked if those present did not think the people would vote intelligently upon the bill. "No," loudly replied Assemblyman McCue, who later supplemented his "no" with the qualification, "My reason for saying is not that I am unwilling to trust the public, nor that I am afraid of an intelligent verdict, but because I do not believe they really want the referendum on this matter.

Rapid-Fire Speeches.

As there were many present to speak in opposition to the bill, it was arranged that the time should be divided among the several boroughs, and that some speeches should not exceed a minute, others two and some three. Under the circumstances the oratorical shots were of the rapid-fire order. Among the speakers besides Chairman Robert E. Dowling, Borough President McCormack and President Laurence M. D. McGuire of the Real Estate Board, were Walter Manning of the Savings Bank Association, Robert E. Simon, Alfred E. Marling of the Allied Real Estate Interests, President Henry Bloch of the United Real Estate Owners' Associations, Dr. Henry W. Berg, Thomas Krekeler, Frank Eberhardt, State Tax Commissioner Schwab, Dr. Korn, Pierre M. Clear, and others, representing various Manhattan associations; Stewart McKnight and Henry M. Johnston from Queens, James L. Wells, Judge Schulz and E. B. Boynton for Bronx organizations, and Allan Robinson in rebuttal.

Epitome of the Arguments.

The general purport of the remarks in opposition was that the Herrick-Schaap bill is a thinly disguised single-tax measure intended to be an entering wedge for the complete abolition of taxes on all forms of property except land; with the ultimate purpose of leading up to a constant increase of the rate of taxation on land exclusively, so as to take away all rent value from land, and that means all of the value of land. The enactment of the bill would so reduce real property values as to frighten away mortgage loans and so cause foreclosures and widespread ruin among owners of real property, especially those who have invested the savings of a lifetime therein.

As there is little probability that the Joint Cities Committee will report the bill, the real estate organizations have proved themselves in this crisis thoroughly efficient and have given the city and State an example of what can be accomplished by united effort.

Other Bills Opposed.

While New York real estate interests were vigorously opposing the Herrick-Schaap bill in the Assembly Chamber at Albany, on Tuesday, a committee of the United Real Estate Owners' Associations was appearing in another part of the building before the Committee on Social Welfare of the Assembly, to argue against a proposed amendment to the Tenement House Law. This bill, if passed, and enacted into law, will give an inspector authority to cause the vacating of any tenement house in the city within twenty-four hours, upon his certificate that it is unfit for human habitation by reason of defects in the drainage, plumbing, lighting, ventilation, etc.

The committee of the United Owners through its spokesmen stated that the ownership of real estate was being made undesirable to a great many people on account of the over-regulation by the various municipal departments and also on account of conflicting orders. The power to cause a vacating of any property should not be granted unless all other attempts to affect compliance with the law have been exhausted. There is ample provision in the Tenement House Law as it is today, for providing for such exigencies, without further broadening the scope of the authority of an inspector by putting in his hands such additional powers.

It was brought out that the vacating of a tenement house upon such an order might mean the ruin of its owner, as it would practically blacklist the property by making it impossible to re-rent. If the mortgage should happen to come due while the property was unoccupied the owner would be unable to renew it or procure a new one. Such a state of affairs, if arising, might result in the loss of the savings of a lifetime.

The Committee on Social Welfare listened with great attention to the various arguments advanced by the representatives of the United Real Estate Owners' Associations, ex-Governor Sulzer, one of its members, being particularly interested. From statements made by various Assemblymen on the committee it is believed that the bill is dead.

At the hearing on the bill introduced by Senator Simpson and Assemblyman Stoddard, which was drafted by the legislative committee of the Citizens Union and which provides for an unearned increment tax, Commissioner Mullan, of the Tax Board, stated that Mayor Mitchel expected to appoint a committee of experts in a few days to take up the whole question of taxation. The commissioner suggested that all proposed legislation which might cause any contemplated revision of the system be held over.

WHAT IS NEEDED IN A MECHANIC'S LIEN LAW

Opportunity to Complete the Building Instead of Having the Work Suspended — This Is One of the Objects of the Simpson Bill.

THERE is a widespread desire on the part of materialmen and subcontractors for some provision of law by which it can be possible that a building operation, against which mechanics' liens have been filed, can be carried to completion and its financing continued, instead of being "tied up," as has so often been the case. There are conflicting interests to be harmonized—those of owners, contractors, loan men, materialmen, subcontractors—in order that no legislation be carried into effect which, although apparently beneficial to some, will hamper the building industry as a whole.

Clearly, the first requirement is some workable, practical plan by which mechanics' liens, when filed, can be "lifted," advancements continued on the building, and loan payments made to a contractor on his contract, as the case might be; or, if necessary, additional funds raised on mortgage and the proceeds used to complete the building, with the ultimate object of paying the claims on the particular operation.

Heretofore the great trouble has been that certain lienors, some because of having the first or second and superior mechanics' liens, others because their liens were small and their hope to have them paid by other lienors to protect their larger claims, have stood out against any concerted action.

Nature of the Simpson Bill.

The provisions of the "Simpson bill," in which many owners and contractors are interested, and which was drafted by the law firm of Phillips & Avery, cover the following matters, among others: Judgments and attachments not found on claims for labor and materials furnished for a particular operation are postponed to liens and judgments of creditors on that operation. Where a building is in trouble, the owner can give a mortgage to trustees for the creditors on that operation, to secure completion, or an assignment of the building loan payments for the same purpose, if holders of 75 per cent of the amount of mechanics' liens so vote; in which case all mechanics' liens, then or thereafter filed against that building, are postponed to such trust mortgage or to the advances made on the building loan under the assignment to the trustees; and all mechanics' liens have then priority and are to be paid pro rata.

In the same way a contractor with an owner or with a municipal corporation can assign to trustees for the creditors on the particular operation the moneys under his contract, if 75 per cent in amount of the liens so vote; in which case the liens become of equal priority.

A further provision allows the placing of a permanent loan, upon a similar vote by lienors, the mechanics' liens then following the permanent mortgage, but without priorities; and also providing for deposit, for the benefit for lienors, in case the permanent loan is more than sufficient to pay off prior encumbrances.

Permits an Owner to Sell.

A still further provision enables an owner, if 75 per cent in amount of liens so vote, to sell his property free from the liens, which then attach to the proceeds of sale, this covering a situation where a building against which liens have been filed, can be disposed of and the proceeds divided among the creditors on that particular operation, instead of leaving the job tied up indefinitely, with accumulating interest charges.

Another provision, and this is applicable to public works contracts, provides that assignments of moneys under such contracts shall be invalid unless filed within ten days after execution. Heretofore cases have arisen where contractors on municipal work, often at the starting of operations, have assigned to financial institutions all the moneys to become due under the contract; where the assignee has withheld the filing of the assignment until trouble seemed imminent; where material men and subcontractors have continued to furnish materials and labor in ignorance that the funds had been assigned away; where just before the contractor has gotten into difficulty the assignment has been filed, and where the assignee has thus secured a preference to the full balance earned by the contractors. Under the proposed amendments of the "Simpson bill," such an assignment must be filed within ten days after its execution, and materialmen and subcontractors can inform themselves, by inquiry, before entering into subcontracts or selling materials, whether or not the funds have been assigned.

The Two Principal Objects.

These briefly and generally are the principal amendments sought by the Simpson bill. Their object is, in short, to enable an owner or contractor, by the vote of 75 per cent of the amount of mechanics' liens, to raise funds by giving security for finishing his operation, or to place his permanent loan without hindrance by a small minority; and taking away priorities among lienors where a job is in trouble.

"There has come from many directions the expression of a desire that all priorities among mechanics' liens be taken away at all times," said Mr. Avery, of Phillips & Avery, authors of the bill. "While appreciating the motive of this desire, the difficulty is that those advocating such a change in the law have not taken into consideration the effect upon mechanics' liens which have been discharged by bond (undertaking) or by deposit.

"It is not possible within the limitations of an interview to state all the objections and difficulties that such a provision would bring about. The Simpson bill meets this desire on the part of materialmen and subcontractors, in that, under its provisions, mechanics' liens retain their priorities only until a building operation gets into difficulty, in which event, by a percentage vote of all those having liens undischarged by bond or deposit, the priorities may be taken away. It would seem to follow as a matter of course that where an operation is in difficulties the priorities would be taken away by the vote provided for.

"Inasmuch as the bonding or depositing of liens occurs when an owner or contractor is not in serious trouble, the priorities should be, as under the provisions of the 'Simpson bill' they are, retained until then, for otherwise no successful steps could be taken to enforce the claim against the bondsmen or deposit until after the completion of the operation. There is no more reason for making bonded and deposited liens of equal priority with subsequently filed and undischarged liens than there would be for requiring a creditor to give up any other security—guaranty, endorsement, bond, etc.—which he may have had the foresight to obtain.

"There are several other practical reasons why the priorities should be retained until an operation gets into difficulties, and then, when the lienors 'get together,' they may be relinquished and the creditors on that operation be paid pro rata.

"In preparing these amendments, embraced in the 'Simpson bill,' we have not attempted to amend the Lien Law all along the line. Doubtless some of the provisions of the present law might have been more happily worded, but most of them have now had the benefit of interpretation by the courts during the past thirty years, and we believe that the interests of materialmen and subcontractors will be better subserved by adhering in the main to the law as it now stands, and by making needful changes by amendment, rather than by new and perhaps hasty general legislation."

Amending the Tenement Classification.

The Committee on the Affairs of Cities, in the Assembly, has under consideration Bill No. 737, introduced by Mr. Scheidemann, to amend the Tenement House Law. The purpose of this bill is to take out of the tenement house class all buildings occupied by three families or less. At the present time the Tenement House Law applies to all buildings occupied by three or more families.

In the opinion of the Superintendent of Buildings, Mr. Miller, the passage of this act would be a most unwise piece of legislation:

"By far the largest number of tenement houses in the city of New York are three-family houses, and to take these out of the jurisdiction of the Tenement House Department would mean the permitting of a reversion to the unsanitary conditions that existed previous to the enactment of the present Tenement House Law. The passage of this bill would encourage the construction in outlying districts of buildings for three families and creating the very condition which it was found necessary to remedy when the present Tenement House Law was enacted."

Brooklyn's Interest in Small Houses.

The feature of the Brooklyn real estate market this year is the active demand for small houses, especially dwellings in the outlying sections, where the rate of development may be termed almost normal. The number of new operations planned in the borough so far this year equals last year's record to date, and in the opinion of the Superintendent of Buildings 1913 was really a normal year for Brooklyn building operations. The total cost of the buildings planned is, however, far from being as large as the total recorded in 1913 up to this time.

The reviving demand for small dwellings is being reflected in the plans filed. The Milford Construction Co. will build fourteen two-story frame dwellings, each 18.6x43 feet, on Van Siclen avenue north of 86th street. Catherine Courtney will build six two-story houses, 16.8x32 feet, at the corner of Avenue N and East 9th street, to cost $4,000 each.

—When the Burns restaurant property on Sixth avenue was offered at auction no one was found willing to buy it, outside of the parties at interest. So the plaintiff in the partition suit bid it in at $95,000 over the mortgage of $155,000, making the price $250,000. The property is assessed at $243,000.

WOULD HARMONIZE CONFLICTING LAWS

Resolution Introduced at Albany to Inquire into the Operation and Results of Building, Factory, Fire Protection and Other Related Laws.

A RESOLUTION has been introduced into the Legislature by Assemblyman Ellenbogen calling for a general investigation of the administration of the various laws relating to the construction of buildings and to the safeguarding of their occupants. The preamble states that there is at present no uniformity in the statutes, codes, ordinances and regulations pertaining to the safe construction of buildings and to the prevention of fires and that a serious conflict of authority has resulted among the various officials, departments and bureaus charged with the enforcements of the laws.

The resolution directs that the committee on Affairs of Cities of the Assembly, or a sub-committee thereof, to conduct a thorough investigation into all of the departments of the State and other political subdivisions thereof for the purpose of determining the value of the existing building and fire prevention laws, ordinances and regulations, the enforcement and operation thereof and the results obtained therefrom, and the effect of the orders issued by the various departments and bureaus. The committee is authorized to conduct hearings and take proof and testimony in Albany or in any part of the State, to subpoena and enforce the attendance of witnesses, including public officers and employees, and to require the production of books and papers, including public records and documents, to employ counsel, stenographic assistance, investigators, and such other employees as may be necessary for the purpose set forth.

The resolution, which has been referred to the Ways and Means Committee, was introduced at the instance of the American Society for Fire Prevention, of which A. W. Herbst is the director.

In the Senate.

Int. No. 771. Carswell. Authorizing New York City to erect a court house in the Borough of Brooklyn for the Supreme Court of the Second Judicial District and for the law library of the Borough of Brooklyn. It is to be located on lands now owned or hereafter acquired by the cty in the territory bounded by Joralemon street on the north, Court street on the west, Livingston street on the south and Boerum place on the east. The land may be acquired hy purchase or condemnation. The court house is to be erected by the President of the Borough of Brooklyn upon plans prepared by him and approved by the Board of Estimate. The Comptroller, when directed by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, is authorized to issue bonds to raise the necessary funds. The cost of the work is to be a charge against Kings County. The borough president is authorized to modify or alter the plans and specifications, but no change in excess of the estimated cost is to he made except with the express approval of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. When completed and equipped, the court house is to be maintained under the supervision of the justices of the Supreme Court residing in Kings County, and they are authorized to appoint a custodian, an engineer and such other employees as may be necessary. The expense of maintenance is to be borne by the city, as in the case of other public buildings, or is to be a charge against Kings County. The bill repeals Chapter 390 of the laws of 1909, as amended by Chapter 357 of the laws of 1912, which provided for the construction of a new court house in Kings County. To Cities Committee.

In the Assembly.

Int. No. 873. Amending the General Corporations Law (new subdivision 12 in section 3) by providing that the expense of an easement in real property acquired or reserved by a municipal corporation, railroad corporation or other transportation corporation is not to be deemed an encumbrance upon such property under any law relating to investments in mortgages upon real property by corporations, trustees, executors, administrators, guardians or other persons holding trust funds. The effect of such an easement upon the property, however, is to be taken into consideration in determining its value.

Int. No. 874. Gage. Amending the Tax Law (section 8) relative to the place of taxation of the personal property of residents. It provides that if the property is tangible, including goods, wares and merchandise, it is to be taxed in the district where the property is situated. If it is not tangible, including money, bank deposits, stock, bonds, notes, credits and interest in property and evidences of debt, it is to be taxed in the tax district where the person resides when the assessment is made. Under the present law personal property is taxed in the district where the person resides.

Int. No. 925. Martin. Amending the Bronx Parkway Commission Act (Chapter 594, Laws of 1907, three new sections, 18-b, 18-c and 18-d) by providing for the extension of the Bronx Parkway to and along Pelham Bay and Hutchinson River valleys to connect with Pelham Bay Park. The bill describes in detail the property which may be taken and provides that the new territory shall he a portion of the Bronx River reservation parkway, to be known as the Pelham Bay and Hutchinson River Parkway.

Excess Condemnation.

Int. No. 1037. McGrath. Amending the Greater New York Charter (repealing sections 396 and sections 970 to 1011, inclusive; and inserting a new section, 396. and thirty-six new sections, 970 to 1005, inclusive) by substituting entirely new provisions relative to the acquisition of property for opening streets and for sewers, parks and certain other improvements. It authorizes the city to acquire title to property or to easements, as may be determined by the Board of Estimate, for streets, parks, bridges and tunnels and approaches to bridges and tunnels, and for improvement of the navigation of waters within the city and waterfronts. It may acquire the property by condemnation proceedings in which the amount of compensation to be paid to property owners is to be fixed by special term of the Supreme Court without a jury, and in a proper case the court is to assess the cost of the improvement or portion of it ,as the case may be , upon benefited property. The bill also provides that in acquiring such property the city may take more than is needed for the actual construction of the improvement, but the additional amount must not be more than enough to form suitable building sites abutting on the street, park or other improvement. The extent of this excess property is to be determined by the Board of Estimate, and after so much of it has been appropriated for the improvement as is needed the remainder may be sold or leased by the city. The owners of real property required for streets and embraced within the lines of streets laid out on the city map may convey the property to the city without compensation. The Board of Estimate is to determine whether any portion of the cost of the proceedings is to be borne by the city or one or more boroughs, and, if so, what proportion. It may aso establish areas of assessment for benefit. Buildings taken i nthese proceedings may also be assessed by the court to not exceeding one-third part of their estimated value. In no case is real property to be assessed for more than half its value. City property benefited is to be assessed the same as private property, and real property acquired by the city in addition to the amount actually needed is also to be subject to assessment for benefit. The bill prohibits the opening of certain streets through certain portions of the property of St. John's College, the University of the City of New York and Columbia University. Where the property taken, or part of it, is under lease or other contract between landlord and tenant, such contracts are to cease and be absolutely discharged as to the part of the property taken but is to remain valid as to the rest of the property. The court is to determine in a separate proceeding, upon application of the parties, the balance to be paid under any such contract. Proceedings started under this article may be discontinued by the Board of Estimate at any time before title has been acquired by the city. Provision is made for appeal by the city or persons dissatisfied with awards or assessments. There are numerous other provisions regulating the proceedings.

Assessments for Benefit.

Int. No. 1038. Van Name. Amending the Greater New York Charter (repealing section 247 and inserting new section 247) by providing that before any public improvement, except an improvement under the Rapid Transit Act, which is to cost $250,000 or more, is authorized, the Board of Estimate and Apportionment may determine that a portion of the cost to be borne by the city or by one or more boroughs. The whole or the remainder of the expense, as the case may be, is to be assessed upon benefited property. If the cost is to be less than $250,000 the Board may by unanimous vote similarly determine that the city or any borough or boroughs shall bear a portion of the expense. Provision is made for the issuance of "special revenue bills" in anticipation of the collection of the improvement assessments chargeable against a borough. These bills are to be redeemed out of the taxes levied upon the borough or boroughs on account of the improvement. The, bills are to be redeemable out of taxes levied upon such borough on account of the improvement in the year following their issue except that the Board of Estimate may determine that they be redeemed in not exceeding five instalments. There are also other provisions regulating the collection of the special tax for redeeming these bills.

Int. No. 1048. Kramer. Amending the Public Buildings Law (section 3) by providing that the trustees of public buildings must provide sufficient space in one building in New York City for all the bureaus, departments, commissons, boards and officers of the State exercising powers within the city. The trustees are authorized to lease buildings for a term of years.

NEW ELEVATOR BILL OPPOSED

Prescribes Safety Devices on All Elevators, Except in Private Residences—Only a Year's Time Allowed.

A BILL in the State Senate (Herrick, Int. 184) adds a section to the general business law in relation to passenger elevators, by providing that every elevator for the carriage of passengers hereafter constructed, and every such elevator in use when this elevator law takes effect, within one year thereafter shall have placed therein or attached thereto, such automatic device, electrical or mechanical, as will prevent the elevator car from being moved while the elevator door is open.

Every owner of the building is made subject to a penalty of five dollars a day for every day that an elevator is in use without being equipped with the automatic device. The section does not apply to elevators in private residences. Penalties are to be collected by the District Attorney.

Superintendent Miller Objects.

The Superintendent of Buildings, in Manhattan, Rudolph P. Miller, Esq., has interposed objections to the retroactive feature of the bill. Mr. Miller pointed out to a committee of the Legislature last year that a large proportion of the fatal elevator accidents, causing death or injury in the Borough of Manhattan, would probably have been avoided, if a device such as contemplated in this law had been installed. In the installation of such device, some judgment should be applied, the Superintendent says. It is perfectly proper to require such safety device as proposed, to be used in the case of all new elevator installations, but when making the provisions of such an act as this retroactive, it must be considered that it is impossible to accomplish the purpose of the act within one year.

In a letter which Superintendent Miller has written to the Senate Judiciary Committee, he says:

"There are over ten thousand passenger elevators in the Borough of Manhattan. It is practically impossible to equip these ten thousand elevators with these devices within even two years. The proposed act requires it to be done within one year. This is so much the harder in view of the fact that a penalty of five dollars for every day that an elevator is in use after the end of the year without such a device is imposed.

"The proposed act also requires that it shall be impossible to move an elevator car from a landing in either direction while any gate or door used for entrance or exit is open and unclosed. If this is literally enforced, much time in the operation of elevators would be unnecessarily lost. An elevator should be permitted to start from its landing when a gate is closed within four inches, provided the device is so arranged that having reached that point the gate cannot be reversed in its motion, except by the operator in the car, with the car at the landing. As proposed in the act, it would also seem that both the shaft gate and the car gate are required to be closed before the elevator can start. This is, perhaps, a perfectly practicable thing to do in the case of a new installation, although it would undoubtedly add to the delays in operation. In the case of existing elevators, however, it would in many instances mean a reconstruction of the equipment, which would seem to be a serious hardship on the property owner. I would consider it a decided step in the direction of safety if the shaft gate alone were required to be interlocked, as proposed in this act.

"In the paragraph heading, it might be well to add the words 'and stopping,' to make this read: 'Equipment of passenger elevators with automatic device to regulate starting and stopping.' This would, perhaps, make the heading a little more complete.

Should Be More Specific.

"It would also be well, perhaps, to be a little more specific as to the character of elevators to which this act is to apply. It now provides for every elevator used for the carriage of passengers. The word 'passengers,' according to some interpretations, does not include employes, and it is quite as important to safeguard the employes as others. This might be remedied by adding, in the ninth line on the first page, after the word 'passengers,' the words 'and employes other than the operator.'

"In line six on page two, it would be well to omit the words 'car solely with a lever, controller or rope,' as these words do not include all the possible means of control, and it would, perhaps, not be practicable to include all that might be devised. In place of these words, which should be omitted, it would be well to add at the end of that sentence the following: 'Except that some approved emergency device may be introduced, making it possible to start the car from any point in the shaft in case of accident.' One of the serious objections that have heretofore been urged against these automatic devices is that in case of accident passengers imprisoned in a car might be kept there indefinitely, and where fire occurred in connection with such accident, they might be burned to death by spread of the fire throughout the shaft.

"I would also strongly urge the omission of the sentence (page two, line 14): 'The provisions of this section shall not apply to elevators in private residences.' It is quite as important that these provisions should apply to such elevators as to any other. As a matter of fact, in private residences the elevators, being subject to the control of members of the family or servants, who are not regular operators, need a safeguard of this kind as much as in any other building. Besides, in private residences, the push button type of elevator, an elevator which is automatically operated by means of electric buttons, is in common use."

THE ASSESSMENT ROLLS.

Smallest Total Increase in Valuations Since Consolidation—All Tax Rates Are Lower.

The assessment rolls were delivered on March 1 by the Tax Department to the Board of Aldermen in special session. The rolls show a net increase in the assessed value of real and personal property of $58,086,271. With the exception of 1912, this is the smallest increase since consolidation. The increase in the assessed value of ordinary real estate is $71,547,000, which is a reduction since the books were open for exemptions and on account of reductions by the commissioners of nearly $100,000,000.

The most notable reductions made by the commissioners were in those sections of Manhattan where values have been declining. The block bounded by Fifth avenue, Sixth avenue, 23 and 22d streets was reduced $3,269,000. Sixth avenue, from 14th street to 23d street, was reduced about $2,000,000. Broadway, from Houston to 14th street, was reduced $3,700,000. Union Square, Broadway and Fifth avenue and adjacent property, from 14th to 23d street, was reduced nearly $9,000,000. Harlem, north of 125th street was reduced about $5,000,000. The assessment of special franchises was decreased below the assessment for 1913 by $34,441,000.

The assessed value of real estate in Brooklyn shows an absolute decrease below the total for 1913.

The total increase in tax values would have been much greater but for the fact that the State Tax Board reduced the assessed value of franchises held by public service corporations by $34,441,260.

The local tax board made a gross increase of $92,527,541 in real and personal property, but the reductions by the State board reduced this amount to about $58,000,000. The increase in real estate values is a distinct disappointment to members of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment.

The actual increase in real estate valuations is only $43,212,051, which gives the city an added borrowing capacity of only $4,321,205, instead of $15,000,000 estimated by members of the board.

The Board of Aldermen referred to the Finance Committee the report of the Comptroller on the tax rate. The Finance Department accountants fixed the rates for 1914 as 1.78 for New York County, 1.77 for the Bronx, 1.84 for Kings, 1.80 for Queens and 1.90 for Richmond. This is a decrease of from one to five points for each county from the rate of last year, as follows:

New York County.....	1.81	1.78
Bronx County	1.81	1.77
Kings County	1.85	1.84
Richmond County	1.92	1.90

Rumor has it now that the administrative and judicial authorities in Brooklyn have tentatively agreed to have the present court house rebuilt and then joined to a new wing on the site first chosen for the Municipal Building.

The Home Rule bill enacted a year ago as a cure for imperfect municipal grants of power looks pretty old-fashioned beside certain measures submitted at Albany this week. One of these contemplates a Constitutional amendment authorizing cities to frame and adopt their own charters. The other, known as the Optional City Charter bill, provides that cities may by referendum adopt any one of seven specified forms of charter.

No less than eighteen large church buildings in old New York are known to be on the market. Some of them, like the South Reformed Church, on Murray Hill, and the United Presbyterian Church, in West One Hundred and Eighth street, were thought to be very well situated. The latter congregation has occupied its present edifice only about ten years and already it finds not only that the times change, but men change with them.

The gift of 350 acres of land in the Helderberg Hills, west of Albany, which the State has received from Mrs. Emma Treadwell Thacher, widow of John Boyd Thacher, is the third park reservation given to the Commonwealth in recent years, the others being Letchworth Park, donated by M. P. Letchworth, and the tract, coupled with an endowment of $1,000,000, presented by Mrs. Edward H. Harriman. Mrs. Thacher's gift embraces a stretch of forest land of great scenic beauty in the towns of Guilderland and New Scotland. It is to be known as the John Boyd Thacher Park.

How Rents Will Be Lowered.

The discussion, which the Herrick-Schaap bill has provoked, has made sufficiently clear one fact in connection with single tax legislation. There is only one way in which legislation of this kind can reduce rents to the occupier of a building—which is by the method of confiscating existing land values. As the opponents of the bill have frequently pointed out, the demand for new buildings is determined by the growth of the community in population and business. If, consequently, a change in the method of taxation stimulated the construction of new buildings to an extent not warranted by the prevailing demand, the owners of these buildings would be obliged to reduce rents in order to tempt tenants to come in. As a consequence of such a reduction of rents, tenants might be induced to abandon older buildings in other parts of the city, and this would result in a general reduction of rents. The general reduction of rents might bring about an increased demand for space. A tenant could, perhaps, afford to occupy more space at the cheaper price. Or, the lower rent might permit the starting of a business which otherwise would not have started at all, or if started would have located elsewhere. In this way the demand for habitable space might be increased as a result of the change in taxation; but the increase in the demand would be proportioned to the damage which would be done to land values. Any benefit which tenants would receive would come out of the pockets of landowners.

The City of New York is already engaged in prosecuting a work which will accomplish much more effectually the purpose desired by the single-taxers without working any damage upon the land-owner. High land value and high rents are, of course, due to the fact that a large number of people want to live and a large amount of business has to be transacted within a certain amount of space. But the amount of space available for use in any center of population and business depends chiefly on its means of communication. If the means of communication are inferior or are expensive, business men and their employees are obliged to live near their workshops, and the congestion is necessarily increased. If New York were obliged to depend upon horse or surface trolleys for its means of communication, the congestion would be so great and the rents would be so high within the area of possible habitation that the nature of its growth would be entirely modified. It would become rather a number of neighboring cities than one center of population, and business. Something of this kind has, indeed, already occurred. The geographical peculiarities of the land in and around New York harbor placed serious natural obstacles in the way of cheap and quick communication, the consequence being a decentralization of the business activity of the metropolitan district such as is not found in London or Paris. Neither of these cities has a Newark in its immediate vicinity. But, of course, New York has not been obliged to depend upon trolleys and horsecars. Its great need of very quick and cheap means of communication stimulated the early construction of elevated roads. Subways and tunnels under the rivers were a longer time in coming than they should have been, but when they did come, they established a new standard of efficiency. When the dual subway system gets into operation, New York will have a better and a cheaper transit system than any other city in the world. It will have adopted extraordinarily and unprecedentedly effective means to increase the area within which a New Yorker can find a habitation and so to diminish congestion and to lower rents.

The tax-reformers, who wish to lower rents at the expense of existing land values and of the property owners of the city, should remember the new dual subway system constitutes one of the most beneficient pieces of social legislation which has ever been adopted. It makes the property owners and the wealthier citizens of New York pay the cost of enabling the poorer citizens to reach cheap land and enjoy the boon of cheaper rents. Instead of limiting the new lines to those the operation of which will be immediately profitable, the city has arranged for the simultaneous construction of an enormous amount of new mileage in the outlying vacant districts of the city. The subways and elevated roads not merely radiate in many directions, but they extend far beyond the area of existing habitation. In two ways this wise and liberal policy will make property owners and the well-to-do class pay for the boon of cheaper rents, which will be conferred upon the poor. In the first place the operation of the new system is not expected to pay for its cost of construction until a great many years have elapsed. During the meantime the deficit will have to be met by property owners. While no one knows how much it will be, it is certain to be very heavy. Moreover, it will be really heavier than it seems, because to it should be added the interest on the city stock which was issued to pay for the construction of the Manhattan and Queensboro Bridge. This will be contributed free by the city to the new transit system, and it must now be costing the taxpayers of New York over $3,000,000 a year.

The dual subway system has been planned in a manner which will be of maximum benefit to the tenant and of minimum benefit to the land owner. So much new land will be opened up for habitation all at once that the owners of property in any particular district will not be able to increase prices to any considerable extent without driving population to some other equally available district. Any benefit which the owners of vacant land along the new transit routes may obtain from their construction and operation will be partly paid for by the property owners in districts, while land values have been artificially increased because of a congestion, which the dual system will remove. Finally, as already pointed out, the property owners and not the tenants will be paying the cost of a system from which the tenant will get the benefit. At an expense of five cents the poor man will be able to travel ten miles or more to the outskirts of the city, with even a smaller expenditure of time, and there obtain more space at a smaller rent. The service will actually cost the City of New York a much larger sum than the poor man pays. The difference will be contributed in part by the taxpayers and in part by the short-distance traveler. No wise and public-spirited citizen will doubt the desirability of discriminating in favor of the poor man, who wants to obtain wholesome living conditions on the outskirts of the city. Both socially and industrially the city will be the gainer from the policy of enabling the poor man to reach cheaper land partly at the expense of the community as a whole. But this is both a fairer and more effective way of contributing to his welfare than that of confiscating existing land values. Any city with inferior means of communication will suffer from congestion and high rents, no matter how the burden of local taxation is distributed, while any city which follows the example of New York and subsidizes a transit system, so as to scatter the population over the widest possible area, will suffer much less from congestion and high rents—even though land values are not confiscated.

Tribulations of a Factory Inspector.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

Manufacturers are primarily engaged in business for their profit. This is the dominant thought at all times, and I say this without any disparagement of the good qualities and intentions they may possess in addition to their desire for gain.

It would be safe to say that not one manufacturer wishes to conduct his business in deliberate violation of law, or to the discomfort or damage of his employes, but the two latter subjects for consideration are ever subordinate to the first; for if there be no profit in a business it will not be maintained. Frequently there develops in a factory unlawful or dangerous conditions, which if remedied, will cause a diminution in the output, and the struggle between desire for profit and fear of the law generally results in an attempt—successful or otherwise—to bribe factory inspectors to to a friendly blindness.

I hold no brief for the many inspectors of the city and State departments, but wherever you find a dishonest or grafting inspector it is because a so-called respectable business man commits the two-fold crime of bribery and violation of the factory laws; and these very factory laws, designed to promote the health and safety of factory employes, are too frequently held in contempt by the latter. Past experience has shown that for the maintenance of health, decent toilets and dressing-rooms are an absolute necessity. Yet in many factories you will find such filthy practices that it is impossible to keep the toilets and dressing-rooms in a usable condition. The owner of the factory is not always to blame for this; rather in the majority of cases the fault lies with the employes themselves. Decaying fruit skins, moldy bread and ancient fish thrown under machines and tables, accumulating all day in overheated lofts, tend to create an atmosphere that "smells to Heaven"—and suggests the other place. Gentle 'suasion is lost on them.

After the second fruitless appeal I proceed to action, and when at my polite request an operator refuses to remove the offending object, I promptly pick it up, firmly press it into her reluctant paw, march her to the garbage receptacle, make her insert it therein, and replace the cover. On several occasions I have narrowly escaped riot—the untutored proletariat resenting any interference with what they consider their "liberty." A return engagement to the same factory is seldom necessary. The average factory owner seems to have little control over his employes, and his idea of sanitation is to kill a bad odor with a disinfectant twice as odorous—the cure being worse than the disease. It never occurs to him to remove the cause. During the summer months garbage receptacles are not much in demand—the open windows offering a splendid opoprtunity to throw papers, garbage and rubbish into the areaway for the long-suffering engineer of the building to clean up and cart away.

So, too, in the matter of smoking. The law prohibiting smoking was made necessary by the many disastrous factory fires directly traceable to this cause, and this knowledge was common to the public. Yet day after day this law has been violated, as shown by the many hundreds of convictions that I obtained against smokers in factories. It is all well enough to demand laws for the protection of workers in factories, but what good are these laws if the occupants will not live up to them?

Again, the law on fire drills, deemed an absolute necessity for the safety of people in factory buildings, is not being lived up to, although the statute has been in effect since October, 1913; and it is safe to say that less than ten per cent of the factories in New York City have voluntarily established fire drills, but await some order or direction from the authorities to obey the law. Fire drills are not welcomed by the average factory owner or piece-worker, to whom fifteen minutes' time spent once a month in a fire drill is an irreparable loss.

Early in the game I realized the futility of an appeal to the ethical side of the average manufacturer in the matter of fire drills; the saving of human life was a minor detail with many of them. Time was money, and fire drills meant loss of time. It behooved me to appeal to their pocketbooks rather than their hearts; therefore I proceeded to inform them of the law on the subject—that the installation and maintenance of a regular monthly fire drill was mandatory, and if they conducted the drill with reasonable frequency and success, and afterwards an actual fire occurred at which the previously trained employes became panic-stricken and ran amuck, the employer, having complied with the law and exercised reasonable care, could not be held legally responsible for injuries sustained. This was common sense, not parlor socialism, and served as the entering wedge.

From the foregoing it can readily be understood that the lot of one employed in the carrying out of fire prevention and factory laws is not an enviable one. The success of these laws will greatly depend on the education of the public to an appreciation of their value, so that obedience to them will be as instinctive as our obedience to laws prohibiting murder, perjury, theft, etc. The unfortunate condition concerning these laws is that the people of this city and State have gotten into the habit of demanding one hundred per cent of efficiency from the various departments of the government, but allowing only thirty per cent equipment to obtain the desired results, and people severely censure the unfortunate official who may be at the head of the department when a disaster occurs. In the face of these conditions it is remarkable that we get such high class men for executive positions as we do.

Situation in Tenement Work Not So Bad

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The article entitled "A Peculiar Situation in Tenement Work," published in the February 28 issue of the Record and Guide, appears, upon careful analysis, to treat solely with the uneconomical feature of the law which compels the placing of all bathrooms and toilet rooms so that their windows will open directly upon the street, or a yard, or a court.

The writer believes that this law is one of the best things ever accomplished, as it is the only way in which the unwholesome "so-called" vent shaft could be eliminated from tenement buildings. It is true that under some conditions these shafts will ventilate the rooms opening upon them, but generally they will not. Such shafts operate on the same principle as any other chimney (they are in effect nothing else than chimneys), and unless the column of air within be properly heated at, or near, the base, it will not rise and therefore cannot create the necessary draft for drawing the foul air from the adjoining rooms.

It may be argued that vent shafts are successfully employed in other classes of buildings, such as hotels and schools. This is true. But it is equally true that all vent shafts in such buildings are constantly supplied with warm air at the base; and their efficiency depends entirely upon the difference between the initial temperature at the base where the air enters and the final temperature at the top where the air leaves the shaft.

Several years ago the writer examined a large number of vent shafts, and by the simple expedient of throwing small pieces of tissue paper into the shafts and observing their subsequent motion, it was soon discovered that many shafts were utterly worthless for ventilating purposes. It was also observed that in a square or rectangular shaft the draft, which might otherwise have sufficient velocity, was practically nil in the corners, and that windows in these locations frequently showed an inward, and not an outward, motion of the air. This, as was shown by the action of the scraps of paper, was undoubtedly due to eddying air currents in the corners. Does the author of the article above referred to believe that rooms with windows so placed are properly ventilated? In some of these observations a draft gauge was tried with but indifferent success, and the writer had in mind a series of experiments in which Pitot tubes and anemometers were to have been employed, but these have not yet been made.

The windows opening upon small vent shafts also present another serious problem, which is that, unless they are pivoted at the sides and provided with an inner screen at the base, they will afford little or no privacy.

We now come to the main issue: the design of the tenement having an open stairway under the present law with respect to the location of toilet and bathrooms. The writer has found that it is possible to devise a plan for such a building on a plot 100 feet square with only two rooms less per floor than are contained in the Hartley Tenements, and only five linear feet on each front (street and yard) given up to toilet rooms per floor. Surely this is not prohibitive, and as sunlight has been pronounced by physicians to be one of the best known sterilizing agents at our command, we appear to have gained something rather than lost. Such a plan has actually been drawn, with the added feature of complying with the existing law, which prescribes a minimum width of seven feet for rooms, as compared with six feet minimum in the tenements referred to by Mr. Jackson.

It is also entirely possible, and not at all expensive, to provide proper ventilation for bath and toilet rooms regardless of their location. The writer has handled this problem successfully under the most trying conditions in buildings where it was necessary from the point of investment to eliminate every possible expenditure, and yet these toilet rooms have been provided with sufficient constant ventilation, free from back-drafts, and at an astonishingly low cost.

After all, this problem is not as difficult as Mr. Jackson would have us believe, and, like many others of a similar nature, presents very few real obstacles to a successful solution.

Who Will Pay for the New Courts?

Borough President Pounds says the city as a whole should bear the cost of erecting the new Kings County Court House. He is "not quite certain," however, that Brooklyn should pay a proportionate share of the cost of court houses in the other counties. The Queens County Court House was a city charge. The court house which is being erected in New York County is under chapter 357 of the laws of 1912, a general city charge, but a bill was introduced in the Senate by Mr. Carswell this week to make the cost a charge upon the Borough of Manhattan only. Senator Carswell stated that he was introducing it for Borough President George McAneny of Manhattan, representing the Board of Estimate, and it was satisfactory to the Brooklyn justices of the Supreme Court.

There is a fight on the proposition already, for Assemblyman Almeth W. Hoff, chairman of the Cities Committee, has refused to introduce it into the Assembly.

He said: "The proposition is to make Brooklyn pay the entire cost of the court house, and I won't stand for it."

Senator Carswell said, after this, that the bill would be passed by the Senate and sent over to the House as a Senate bill for consideration. In this way it would reach the floor.

The Carswell bill authorizes the City of New York to erect a court house along plans to be prepared by the Borough President of Brooklyn and approved by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, on the site bounded by Joralemon street, Court street, Livingston street and Boerum place. The land is to be acquired either by purchase or condemnation. The cost is to be a charge against Kings County. The Borough President can alter the plans after their acceptance by the Board of Estimate, but not so as to increase the cost. The court house when completed is to be maintained either by the city, as is the case with all other puhlic buildings, or is to be "a special charge against Kings County." Justices Benedict, Kepper and Kelby, acting as a sub-committee, drafted the bill.

New Head for Title Company.

Harry Adams Kahler was elected president of the New York Title Insurance Company and the New York Mortgage and Security Company at a special meeting held on Monday, March 2, 1914, to succeed Clinton R. James, who retires, owing to ill health. Mr. Kahler is a member of the firm of H. A. Kahler & Co., of 49 Wall street, whose business is municipal bonds and mortgage investments throughout the country. He has long been identified with the bond and mortgage business and has successfully developed several important corporations engaged in that line. He has affiliations with a large number of financial institutions, both in New York and in the South. He has been engaged in business in New York since 1899.

Cyril H. Burdett was made first vice-president of the New York Title Insurance Company. Mr. Burdett is well and favorably known among real estate men of New York City, having been connected with the New York Title Insurance Company since its organization, first as secretary, and more recently as general manager and counsel. He is also secretary of the New York Mortgage and Security Company and president of the Chelsea Realty Company.

Park Avenue Owners Organize.

A new association was organized on Thursday evening by owners of property on Park avenue, which will have for its purpose the protection of real estate interests along that thoroughfare and will encourage and further its development. It will be known as the Park Avenue Association and will undoubtedly become a factor in real estate affairs not only on account of the new importance of Park avenue but also on account of the prominence of the men who are identified with it.

The meeting, which was held in the restaurant of the new apartment house at 375 Park avenue, was attended by about forty owners, all of whom enthusiastically endorsed the organization and pledged their support. With Edward H. Harris as temporary chairman, a constitution and by-laws were adopted.

The following officers were elected: Henry B. Anderson, president; Morgan J. O'Brien, Oakley Thorne and Robert Thorne, vice-presidents, and Edward H. Harris, secretary. The selection of a treasurer was left to the executive committee, which includes I. N. Phelps Stokes, Howard Mansfield, E. C. Potter, L. S. Bing, George F. Johnson, Jr., William A. Boring, S. F. Weaver, Arthur H. Van Brunt and Edgar A. Levey. All owners and tenants of property on Park avenue or in adjacent streets, from 45th to 106th streets, are eligible for membership in the new association.

New Real Estate Center.

The concentration of suburban real estate concerns in the part of Manhattan between 34th and 45th streets, Seventh and Fourth avenues, affords another instance of the northward march of a given line of business in recent years. The last two years particularly have witnessed the establishing of the new suburban real estate center in discussion. The Windsor Land & Improvement Co. will on Monday merge its Brooklyn office and its office near the Pennsylvania terminal, with its main office, which will be moved from the Times Building across the way into the building at the northeast corner of Broadway and 42d street, where the company has leased, for a term of years, the entire eleventh floor, or nine thousand square feet of office space. It is believed that the assembling of the various offices into one real estate business entity will not only redound to the welfare of the company's business by bringing all buyers to one office centre, but will also create greater homogeneity of interest among the sales staff of the company.

Discussing the colony of suburban real estate firms between 34th and 45th streets, D. Maujer McLaughlin, president of the Windsor Land & Improvement Co. said:

"The real estate men have simply had to follow suit in the northward march of trade on Manhattan Island. Less than four years ago one very prominent Long Island land company had its main office in Nassau street, whereas its office now is in 34th street. A company long active in the development of the north shore recently removed its office to 42d street, after being in the shadow of Trinity Church for a long time. It moved to the Wall street neighborhood subsequent to being near the City Hall; but, after a close study of the situation, it has located between Times Square and the Grand Central terminal.

"Experience teaches the suburban land companies of Long Island, Westchester and Connecticut that the area I have indicated is their business battleground. It is a hub of many transit lines."

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

There was no noticeable increase in the number of sales made this week, but since most of the deals involved well-located and valuable properties, the market made up in quality what it lacked in quantity. With the announcement of the Colony Club that its new clubhouse would be located at Park avenue and 62d street, came the news of two other important transactions in the immediate vicinity. A building company secured a large adjoining plot in 62d street, on which will be erected a high-class multi-family structure, and around the corner on Park avenue a thirteen-story apartment house passed into the hands of an investor. Valuable residences in East 70th street and East 67th street were also sold.

Besides the conspicuous position given to it by the erection of a great number of high-class apartment houses, with a number yet to be constructed, Park avenue attains additional prominence through the organization this week of a new association, which will further protect its interests.

Fifth avenue contributed two interesting transactions. Loft buildings in the section below 23d street figured in a trade for other city properties. The enlargement of the Franklin Simon & Co. holdings on Fifth avenue gave further evidence of the great growth of retail business there. Other important transactions concerned a hotel in West 45th street, Marble Hill apartment houses, and the purchase of a number of East Side dwellings by Bing & Bing.

During the week a great many rumors were current which concerned large holdings, but most of them could not be confirmed.

The total number of sales in Manhattan this week was 25, against 17 for last week and 45 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 8, compared with 3 last week and 11 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 17, compared with 14 last week and 34 a year ago.

From the Bronx 9 sales at private contract were reported, against 15 last week and 18 a year ago.

The amount involved in the Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $525,175, compared with $568,349 last week, making a total since Jan. 1 of $7,879,287. The figure for the corresponding week last year was $1,403,423, making a total since Jan. 1, 1913, of $10,430,956.

Colony Club Buys Site.

The Colony Club, the largest and wealthiest women's club in this country, has unanimously adopted a resolution to buy a site at the northwest corner of 62d street and Park avenue, owned by the R. T. Wilson estate, for the new home which it has had under consideration since it became apparent long ago that its present quarters are inadequate. The ground purchased extends 100 feet on Park avenue and 120 feet in 62d street. It is in the center of what is considered the highest class apartment house district in the city. It is said that the price asked was $450,000 and the amount agreed upon very little less than that. There are five houses on the property now, with a 90-day clause in each lease; so it will be June 1 before the Colony Club can go ahead with the building of its new clubhouse.

A Fifth Avenue Deal.

N. L. MacCready has sold the two eleven and twelve-story structures at 141-147 Fifth avenue, on plot 94x90, to the McKeon Realty Co., which gave in part payment the southeast corner of Washington avenue and 188th street, a vacant plot, 200x200; the southwest corner of Convent avenue and 141st street, vacant, 100x95; 302 West 106th street, 17x100.11, occupied by a five-story flat adjoining the southwest corner of West End avenue, and the five-story hotel at 102 West 74th street, 20x100, adjoining the southwest corner of Columbus avenue. These parcels figured in the deal at a valuation of $500,000, while the Fifth avenue properties figured at $1,100,000. It was reported late in the week that the McKeon Co. was negotiating for the re-sale of its new Fifth avenue holdings.

Pittsburgher Buys Hotel.

The Hotel Webster, a twelve-story structure at 38-42 West 45th street, on plot 60x100.5, abutting the Harvard and New York Yacht Clubs, has been sold by George W. Stetson and John J. Radley to A. R. Peacock, of Pittsburgh, a former partner of Andrew Carnegie. He gave in exchange the twelve-story loft building at 137-139 West 25th street and a 136-acre farm at Unity, Pa. The properties are said to have figured in the exchange at valuations aggregating about $1,000,000.

Sale Near New Colony Club.

E. C. Potter and Benjamin Mordecai have purchased from Mrs. Emily A. Sandford and Ronald H. Macdonald the plot, 77x100, adjoining the northwest corner of Park avenue and 62d street, where the new home of the Colony Club will be located. The new owner will erect a modern high-class apartment structure, which will conform architecturally with the Colony Club home. The Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Co. represented the sellers and Douglas L. Elliman & Co. the buyers.

Another Park Avenue Deal.

A prominent investor has bought the thirteen-story apartments, 565 Park avenue, sixty feet north of the northeast corner of 62d street, held at $625,000. The Akron Building Company (Bing & Bing) was the seller. The plot is 65.4x100. Pease & Elliman were the brokers.

PEASE & ELLIMAN wish to state that it was the third floor and not the store at 562 5th av which they rented for Charles Thorley.

LUDWIG C. TRAUBE has been appointed agent of the houses at 1334 and 1336 Southern Boulevard.

MRS. RODIER, owner of 233-235 East 204th st, which was reported sold to a builder, denies the sale.

SCHARSMITH & NOLAN have been appointed agents of 506 West 176th st, 523 West 146th st and 1910 Morris av, Bronx.

NEGOTIATIONS are said to be pending for the sale of the 12-sty mercantile building at 7 to 11 West 30th st, occupying a plot 75x100, opposite the old Burlington apartment house.

H. L. DINKELSPIEL, for many years associated with the office of M. & L. Hess, is now connected with the office of Mark Rafalsky & Co., at 527 5th av, corner of 44th st.

THE CROSS & BROWN CO. has been appointed agent for the Strand Theatre Building, at the northwest corner of Broadway and 47th st.

HENRY D. RIECKE, who was associated with the real estate firm of J. Edgar Leaycraft & Co. for twelve years, has opened an office at 1737 Broadway, corner of 55th st.

FRANK H. BUSH, many years in the employ of the city department of the Lawyers Title Insurance & Trust Co., has resigned to accept a position in the loan department of the Lawyers Mortgage Co., 184 Montague st, Brooklyn.

WEBSTER B. MABIE & CO. were associated as brokers with the Charles F. Noyes Co. in the matter of renting the buildings 59-61 Fulton st to Henry Leerburger. The Mabie Co. has charge of the property as managing agents.

RICHARD H. SCOBIE has resold for the P. J. Dwyer Building Co., to Herman Krompholz, the 3-sty building with store, on a plot 25x143, at 3394 3d av; also sold to the same client the 3-sty building at 1093 Franklin av.

THE M. MORGENTHAU, JR., CO. has placed a mortgage of $12,000 for J. L. Gazen on the 5-sty flat at 306 West 116th st, and one of $37,000 for the Barrett Realty Co., on the 5-sty flat on the west side of Southern Boulevard, 77 ft. west of Barretto st.

BING & BING, builders of some of the city's largest apartment houses, will remove their offices to the Lewisohn Building, at 113 to 119 West 40th st, running through to 41st st, where they have leased the 16th floor. The lease is for a term of years at a total rental of $100,000.

IT IS REPORTED that negotiations are under way involving the lease of the property of Revillon Freres at 17 and 19 West 34th st, two 5 and 11-sty structures with a frontage of 75 ft. During the last three years several leases have been reported, but in each instance the deal was not closed.

JACOB J. TALBOT has purchased from Thos. P. Fitzsimons, of 751 6th av (between 42d and 43d sts) the real estate and insurance business, established there since 1890, and has moved his office to that address, where he will continue to carry on a general real estate and insurance business.

ADELSTEIN & AVRUTINE are the buyers of the southwest corner of Stebbins av and Chisholm st, the sale of which, by Herman Brill, was recently reported. The property was given in part payment for the two new flats on the north side of Fox st. 100 ft. east of Intervale av.

THE TRIO REALTY CO., newly organized and composed of W. Kirkpatrick Brice, Albert B. Kerr and William A. Todd, has been taken over from the Audley Realty Co., of Brooklyn, Audley Clarke, president, the 8-sty El Dorado apartment house, occupying the block front in Central Park West, between 90th and 91st sts. The apartment house was erected about eight years ago by John V. Signell from designs by Neville & Bagge, architects.

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL has brought a suit in the Supreme Court to revoke the charter of the Mutual Profit Realty Company, of 141 West 36th street, and for the appointment of a receiver. Mr. Carmody acted under a recent decision of the Appellate Division which held that a real estate concern that sells profit sharing bonds or certificates to investors and used the money thus realized to speculate in real estate is doing a banking business in violation of the law. The Mutual Profit Realty Company was incorporated in 1908 by John W. Paris, Nicholas W. Haaren and Ida Milliken.

CITY INVESTING CO. DIRECTORS.—At the annual meeting of the City Investing Company this week the following were elected directors to serve the ensuing year : George C. Clark, Robert Goelet, Edward DeWitt, A. L. Dean, Robert E. Dowling, Henry Hotchkiss, Alvin W. Krech, Samuel T. Peters, Charles T. Tweed, William Ziegler, Lewis B. Preston and William Childs, jr. The last two are new members, the remainder being re-elected. Mr. Dowling, president of the company, stated that there was no vote in opposition and perfect harmony prevailed.

NEGOTIATIONS are reported to be well advanced for the leasing of the property of Mrs. Jennie K. Stafford at 471-473 5th av and 4-6 East 41st st to an out-of-town lessee. The property has been held at $75,000 a year rental. No details concerning the deal could be obtained. Another rumor which could not be verified was to the effect that Isaac A. Hopper, Inc., purchased from David M. Heyman the old Burlington apartment house, a 6-sty structure, at 8 to 14 West 30th st, measuring 100x98.9. It was reported that the present building will be demolished and a 12-sty mercantile structure erected on the site.

The Auction Market.

There were twenty-five offerings at the Manhattan and Bronx Exchange Salesrooms this week. Of this number, 15 went to the plaintiffs, 6 were withdrawn or adjourned, and 4 were bought by outside bidders. Among these were George F. Martens, Jr., who paid $41,500 for the northeast corner of Water street and Maiden Lane, and Mary Neisler, who secured tenements and dwellings on Union avenue, Bronx, for $59,800. The Burns restaurant property on Sixth avenue went to the plaintiff in the action for $250,000.

For the coming week most of the offerings will be tenements and dwellings in various sections of the city. The most important sale scheduled involves the two square blocks bounded by Bridge street, Barker avenue, Union street and Elliott avenue, Bronx. The property will be sold from the stand of Joseph P. Day. Henry Brady will sell loft buildings in Cherry street, and the other auctioneers properties of lesser importance, comprising the usual miscellaneous assortment of holdings being foreclosed.

DEPARTMENTAL RULINGS.

BUREAU OF BUILDINGS.

(Borough of Brooklyn.)

General Order No. 1 of 1914 specifically says that all applications for permits must bear the number of the house concerned. As soon as an inspector discovers that the wrong house number has been placed on any permit he receives a copy of, he will forthwith, in a special report to the superintendent, recommend the cancellation of such permit.

P. J. CARLIN, Superintendent.

Jan. 9, 1914.

N. B.—This order is prompted with a view to having architects give careful attention to the locations of their applications so as not to hamper the operations of this Bureau.

General Order No. 2.

Appliance Approved.

Atilla pneumatic closets, manufactured by the J. L. Mott Iron Works, are hereby approved for use in the Borough of Brooklyn, provided the tank contains at least eight (8) gallons of water.

P. J. CARLIN, Superintendent.

General Order No. 3.

AN OFFICE ORDER.

The attention of all employees of this Bureau, particularly of inspectors, is directed to Section No. 38 of the Tenement House Law, which reads as follows:

"Wooden buildings on same lot with a tenement house. No wooden building of any kind whatsoever shall hereafter be placed or built upon the same lot with a tenement house within the fire limits, and, within the fire limits, no wooden tenement house and no wooden structure or other buildings on the same lot with a tenement house, shall hereafter be enlarged, extended or raised; except that a wooden extension, not exceeding in total area 70 sq. ft. may be added to an existing wooden tenement house, provided such extension is used solely for bathrooms or water closets."

Inspectors will give particular attention to all applications for Permits for Wooden structures, and particularly book slip permits, with a view to guarding against a violation of this law.

P. J. CARLIN, Superintendent.

Feb. 6, 1914.

General Order No. 8.

BOARD OF (BUILDING) EXAMINERS.

PURCHASING SUPPLIES FOR AN OFFICE BUILDING.

AN IMPORTANT PART OF A MANAGER'S DUTIES.

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for the American Real Estate Co.

THE office building manager of today must be a specialist in many lines, and above all he must be a man of good judgment and discernment. These latter attributes are essential to a good purchasing agent, which is one of the things a manager must nowadays be. In former times most of the supplies were acquired through the agency of the superintendent or chief engineer, but today the efficient manager does all his own buying, and the only part the engineer plays in this department of the work is to make reports on the efficiency of the various articles he is called upon to use. In this way most of the possibilities for graft are eliminated and the quality of supplies is better and the quantity used generally less.

Even where the engineer is a man of undoubted honesty, he is apt to be lacking in a broad knowledge of human nature, and is, therefore, more liable to fall into the traps set for unwary buyers by unscrupulous salesmen than is the manager, whose daily work brings him into close contact with all sorts and conditions of men.

Outside of labor nothing is so important to watch as supplies and materials used in large office buildings, and in order to be successful the manager must surround himself with able lieutenants in the way of janitors, electricians, carpenters and painters. He must be able to have confidence in his various assistants and must feel that they are loyal to him and are using every effort to get the best results from the different supplies.

These assistants are generally able to give much good and practical information concerning the actual worth of supplies, and it is an excellent plan for the manager always to consult with the heads of the various departments for whose use any certain supplies are to be acquired.

Classification of Supplies.

Broadly speaking, there are two classes of supplies: those which are used every day in the regular operation of the building, and come directly under the supervision of the engineer and janitor, and those which are used in the up-keep and decoration of the structure and are generally in the hands of a special skilled workman. To the former class belong coal, oil, cleaning powders, soaps, toilet paper, and various articles, such as brooms, mops, carpet sweepers, scrub cloths and the like; in the latter class are paints, oils, plaster, cement, lumber and building materials of all kinds, with the necessary tools. We might again divide the first class into engine-room supplies and general house supplies.

Engine room supplies are the most important, particularly where the building has a plant manufacturing its own current for light and power, as the very life of the structure depends upon these. Under this head come coal, oil, waste, tools, boiler compound and various parts and fittings for the boilers and engines.

Intelligent Coal Buying.

Coal is by far the largest item in building supplies, and too much care cannot be exercised in its purchase and use. More money is probably wasted annually in coal than in any other useful commodity in any line. In recent years the coal-buying public has become somewhat educated, and this has reacted favorably on the coal dealers and is making for much better conditions in the trade. The activities of the Bureau of Weights and Measures in New York City is solving to a large extent the question of short weight deliveries, and the chemist is coming to the aid of the buyer where quality is concerned. Many large consumers are now buying coal on specification as to the amount of ash and heat units contained in a given quantity, and in this case frequent analyses are necessary to determine if the dealer is living up to his contract. Even where such a purchasing system is not in vogue, it is advisable to have the coal analysed occasionally and let your coal dealer know that you are checking him up and that you expect quality as well as quantity.

A manager should study carefully his furnaces, grates and drafts and determine beyond doubt what is the cheapest grade that can be used efficiently and economically. In making such a study it is advisable to employ the services of a competent heating engineer, as changes can often be made in a plant, at a slight expense, which will permit the consumption of a much cheaper grade of fuel.

Have Ample Bunker Space.

One of the greatest construction errors existing in New York buildings is lack of bunker space, and no matter how carefully the manager may plan ahead he is often confronted with lack of fuel in times of heavy storms or strikes. It is safe to say that where an experienced building manager is employed during construction this serious fault will not be found in the completed structure.

The buying of proper oil is an even more difficult task than the purchase of coal, as in this case chemical analyses are of little avail. Oil is difficult to analyse and different results will very often be obtained by different chemists from the same samples of oil. The safest way to purchase oil is to choose an intelligent dealer of known reputation and have him make up an oil suited to the particular steam conditions of the plant. The engineer should then be charged to watch carefully how the oil behaves and what effect it has on the engines, and if any change is noted the dealer should be advised of it at once. In general, first-class cylinder oil ranges in price from 36 to 40 cents a gallon in barrel lots, while 25 cents a gallon is about right for engine oil.

Most of the other engine-room supplies are of fairly uniform grade, and with the engineer's assistance the manager should have little trouble in obtaining satisfactory articles at a minimum price.

House Supplies.

Among the general house supplies the most important are soap and marble powders, and the purchase of these requires the exercise of a great amount of caution and judgment. Probably the greatest frauds are perpetrated in soaps and cleaning powders, and negligence in buying is frequently attended with unfortunate results. Many of the soap powders are heavily doped with lye, soda, ash and other chemicals and their continued use damages the floors and walls and injures the hands of the cleaners. It often happens that the manager loses good help because of injured hands resulting from improper soap powders. Too much animal fat in marble powder will produce a yellow stain which is impossible to remove, especially on wainscotings of polished stone, and a poor quality of soap will leave a film on the surface which helps to collect dirt and disease germs. There are several good brands of marble and soap powders on the market and by careful experimentation the manager should be able to determine what is best to use for each particular building.

Vigilance Necessary.

In the case of mops, brooms and dusters it unquestionably pays to purchase the best, as the added length of life and more efficient service will offset the difference in price in the long run. These articles all offer a big temptation for pilfering and the strictest vigilance is necessary to prevent undue loss in this way. The heads of departments, only, should have access to supplies, and soap powder and brass polish especially should be measured and given out only in such quantities as are actually needed each day.

Dustless dusters which gather up dust instead of simply dispersing it are rapidly superseding feather dusters, and while as a rule they are much more expensive, their life is considerably longer. One of the most recent of these is made of angora goat hair, attached to the original skin. It takes up the dust well, does not leak and may be washed from time to time.

In purchasing other house supplies it is a good plan to watch the market, buy in quantity and pay cash whenever possible.

Paints, oils and general building materials are always handled by a skilled workman, and the manager should be guided largely by his advice as to quality and quantities to be secured.

The Accounting System.

In keeping track of supplies a simple system should be used, and the heads of the various departments should be required to report on the amounts of supplies used during stated periods. These reports should be carefully filed, so that the manager may easily keep posted as to the amount used in different periods from year to year.

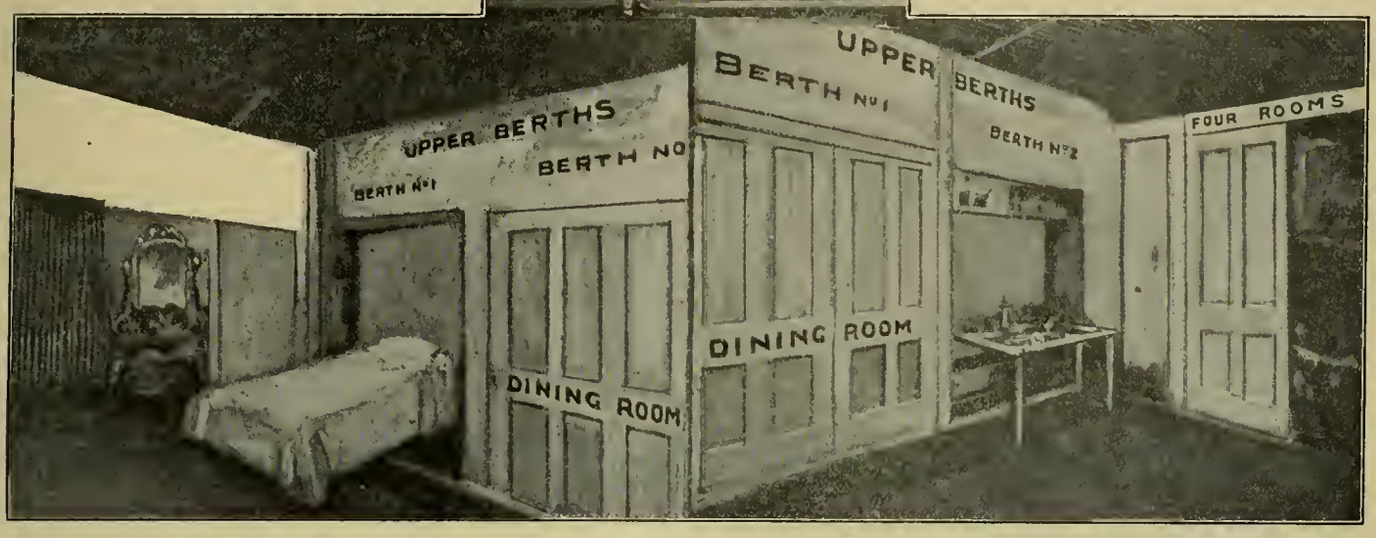
The building manager should bear in mind that the traveling salesman is one of the best barometers of trade, and should not be looked upon as a necessary nuisance. Generally speaking, the salesman is an honest person, but too frequently he has absolutely no practical knowledge of the wares he is offering and his judgment cannot always be relied on. However, much valuable information may be obtained from salesmen by courtesy and tact and a little adroit questioning.

Treat a salesman pleasantly when he calls and before long you will find that he is telling you all he knows about the other man's goods as well as his own, and is keeping you posted on what your neighboring manager buys and what results he is having. Such information will help your buying judgment to a large extent.

RAYMOND P. ROBERTS.

A New Manager in Town.

Robert Buchanan, one of the progressive young hotel men of the West, has come to New York as assistant manager of the Cathedral Plaza Apartments. He began his duties on February 16. Mr. Buchanan has just terminated a highly successful connection with the Yellowstone Park Hotel Company in Yellowstone Park. He is thoroughly familiar with the hotel and apartment house situation throughout the country and will be able to render valuable assistance in keeping the Cathedral Plaza Apartments up to a high standard.



USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration.

"1 ÷ 4."

THE high cost of living has no terrors for the man who can divide four into one and get away with it, which may be the reason why E. J. Beall, of 827 West 7th street, Cincinnati, O., has been deluged with letters from builders who would like to show their clients how to bring their incomes nearer a taxable point by cutting down the cost of living. E. J. had no idea of what he was doing for this long-suffering world of rentpayers when he finished his four-room-divided-into-one bungalow at the Cincinnati address, but he has since found out that he has done something unusual and cannot make out just what it is all about, anyway.

The owner of this remarkable, congested villa wanted a house that was full of comfort but he wanted his comfort within arm's reach. So he built him a home that would fit his ideas and his pocketbook at the same time and the result is shown in the pictures.

There he stands, before the first and only practical vest-pocket edition of a four-room flat ever erected. He is master of all he surveys without and equally master of all he can reach within, for he can figuratively enter any room in the house by taking not more than half a dozen steps in any direction and when he turns around he need not lack for company for he can have the pleasure of meeting himself coming back. In fact, he can be in the dining room, bed room and bathroom at one and the same time and still be diligently employed in getting his dinner on the kitchen stove.

Beall has got the servant problem beaten to a standstill, the heating puzzle fried to a frizzle and the cleaning burden boosted entirely out of reach. The order of the day follows:

The electric alarm clock rings. Beall jumps out of bed. He folds the bedding over his couch and with a deft hoist with his trusty right hand boosts his downy couch into a receptacle in the wall, turns a latch and a mirrored panel slides over the hole and the bedroom is safely tucked away for the day. Then he wants to lave his hands and facial facade. Another panel drops from another part of the same side wall and there is a bowl equipped with a flexible pipe that discharges the water into a sewer connection just outside of the house. Water is drawn from a regulation faucet and towels are produced from a dryer hung within the double wall, where a closet connected with the sewer from the outside but protected by traps is also arranged, the dropping panels composing a temporary compartment.

Then comes breakfast time. The opposite side of the white painted room produces another mysterious panel and out pops a regulation gas range, compact, of course, but nevertheless a gas range, on a swinging panel which has a hood attachment to carry the cooking odors out through the vent in the wall in the back of the panel. Here also is a sink for washing and drying dishes and a dryer for the towels.

Dinner things tucked away, the evening finds the occupant with his kitchen shut from sight and with his library and reading table before him. Other panels have been dropped out revealing book cases, writing desk and reading table.

All this is contained in a one-room building that measures only 9x12. It is the bachelor apartment ideal in the mind of its inventor, E. J. Beall, of Cincinnati, O.

Statuary and Brick.

SOME architects may know of the latest uses of brick as a facade material, but for the benefit of those who have not seen the current Scientific American, we reproduce by its permission, a photograph of a statue in brick and mortar that may give a suggestion to those seeking new artistic effects in buildings.

This monument was designed jointly by the eminent sculptors Edzard and Donandt, of Paris. It is to be erected in a German sea port town in memory of an African explorer. The monument is to be 33 feet high and grows out of a brick wall surrounding its base. The explorer, clad in his Moroccan burnouse, is shown astride a camel, looking out into the distance.

Instead of fixing a raw brick in position and hewing it with the chisel, as is frequently done with the reliefs on English houses, the designers have had the monument molded bodily out of unburnt brick clay, cut into layers, and stones finished up carefully. In the kiln the molded parts are laid on a sand bed, insuring perfect mobility during the baking process and excluding any risk of breaking or bending. A perfectly uniform shrinking of 15 to 16 per cent. may be accounted for. When the monument is next erected on the spot, the insertion of a proper thickness of lime-cement mortar into the joints between the brick layers, restores it to the originally contemplated dimensions.

Powdered Coal Future Fuel?

WHEN you hear some fuel expert discuss the heating power of boilers in the dim distant day when anthracite will be too expensive to use except in open-grate fires in residences, he will probably tell you, in answer to your question as to what will be used for industrial fuel, that it will be pulverized coal. Inventors are now at work, according to information that comes from the U. S. Patent Office, on a system of firing furnaces safely by the use of a coal ground so fine as almost to resemble lamp black, which will be ignited by a spraying system producing a flame that cannot be distinguished by the novice from that of an oil-burning jet, but many times hotter.

As a matter of fact, the use of powdered coal is even now being used in many Portland cement rotary kilns, and it is believed that this sort of firing eventually will prove to be an important factor in reducing the cost of brick manufacture by using this fuel to fire brick burning kilns. The operation is simplicity itself. A fan injects a stream of coal dust into a flame previously set, and the intensity of the heat is regulated by the pressure of the air. There is said to be a complete combustion of coal under this system, thus eliminating the ash nuisance or at least reducing it to an inconsequential factor in boiler room operating and overhead charges.

An Improved Roofing Material.

THE advantage of having a weather and fireproof roofing that will match the color of any trim employed in brightening the residence may now be obtained, according to a statement made by the Asbestos Protected Metal Company, of Beaver Falls, Pa. This company is introducing what it calls a new type of roofing material composed of wool felt impregnated by waterproofings and completely enveloped in a coating of asphaltum compound. To the upper surface of this material is attached pure asbestos felt, while the lower surface is protected by a layer of crushed quartz. Both the asbestos and the quartz are embedded under pressure and colored.

WHAT FARM TENANT HOUSES SHOULD BE

How Uncle Sam Is Showing the City Apartment House Dweller The Way Back to Sunshine and Health and Low-Living Costs.

HAVE you heard of the latest effort of Uncle Sam to lower the cost of living and bring health and happiness into the lives of dwellers in city tenements? Suppose a man came into your office and asked you to look out for a nice little home for him somewhere out in the suburbs, where he could have chickens, grow vegetables of his own and give his wife and children pleasanter surroundings than they can find in the crowded tenement life of the city.

THE GOVERNMENT'S IDEA OF A SUBURBAN BUNGALOW.

Wouldn't you make a hit with him if you could tell him that $800 or $1,000 would build him a house in the country?

Of course he would be skeptical until you explained that Uncle Sam himself stands behind the estimate, that the Department of Agriculture is ready to show how it can be done. If he still doubted, you could tell him to write to the Secretary of Agriculture, at Washington, and learn for himself that a house like the one illustrated on this page can be built for the sum named, and he can have his name put on the Congressional mailing list for free flower and vegetable seeds to plant in his garden when he gets his thousand-dollar farm tenant house built.

The reply the man will get to his letter will state that the Government stands ready to help him and other deserving men to obtain inexpensive homes in the country, as the Government believes that better houses can be built there for the same amount of money than is now being spent for mediocre houses. The set of plans will show how. The objects sought by the U. S. Department of Agriculture is to use the plans as a means to provide structures reasonable in cost and of good material, and so arranged as to afford the maximum comfort and convenience to the family.

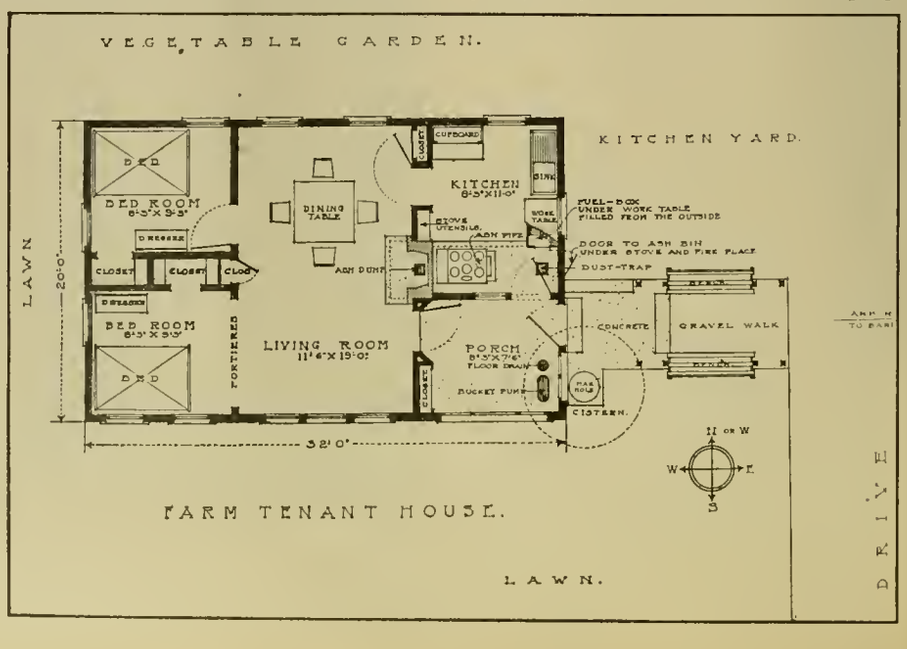
Farmers' Chance for Investment.

The plans in question are for the construction of an inexpensive farm tenant house, but the house as planned contains valuable suggestions for owners with small families. To provide proper tenant houses on farms is considered by the Government a matter of high importance, because of the increasing number of rented farms, the growing need of tenants for modern houses, and a better understanding of the influences of the home upon farm labor and field efficiency.

At the same time the plans will appeal to young married couples bringing up sickly children in the city where their playground is a street full of physical and moral dangers, as a means of taking up their homes on little farms of their own, or living in farm tenant houses erected as a speculation by farmers who would thus derive a rent from their tenants or sell them plots so they can erect and, in time, own their own homes.

The tenant house, perspective drawing and plans of which are shown, is a simple, four-cornered structure, without bay windows, gables and dormers or any projection, save the eaves, which overhangs and protects the walls and window openings. The house is planned for the smallest dimensions and the most inexpensive arrangement consistent with the needs and the convenience of a small family. It has only one chimney and only one outside entrance.

Few residences of any size or cost have a kitchen more pleasantly located, better lighted and ventilated, and more conveniently arranged than this little four-room house. It is brightened by the morning sun, cooled by the Southern breezes and shielded from the intense heat of summer afternoons. It opens onto a screened porch, which, in summer, is the most livable nook in the house. Much of the kitchen work may be done on the porch, away from the fumes and the heat of the stove which, happily for the other rooms of the house, blow out through the north and east windows.



The stove is well situated, and with the porch window closed it is out of the cross-draughts of air. It is within six feet of the most distant fixture in the kitchen and but little farther from the dining-table. All stove utensils are within reach, and the work table and the fuel in the box beneath it are only two steps away. The ashes drop from the firebox through a short pipe to the ash bin beneath the concrete floor.

The walls of this under-floor bin are shown in the plans by dotted lines. The bin is under the stove and fireplace and extends to the outer foundation walls of the kitchen where ashes and floor sweepings are removed by means of a long-handled drag. If the building is raised on a front terrace, as shown in one of the drawings, the bin will be twenty-six inches deep with its floor at ground level. With a cellar under the kitchen, the bin need be extended only to the front end of the stove. It will be deep enough to hold a year's stock of ashes.

Novel Household Features.

The fuel box supporting the table top occupies space which might otherwise be wasted. It is filled from the outside of the house and emptied from the inside, through a small door over the concrete floor.

A trap, or dump, like that in the fireplace, is provided for floor sweepings

New York, January 26, 1914.

Dear Sir:

We are glad to write you concerning our experience with Red Gum as a Cabinet Wood covering the last twenty years.

We believe we were the pioneers in using Red Gum for interior trim in N.Y.City, and we used the wood in many fine residences selecting it because of its beauty and intrinsic merit for library and dining room panelling.

We are able to advise you that this work has excellently stood the test of time, being installed in the following buildings about fifteen years ago:

In summing up we wish to say that we have always handled Red Gum as a fine cabinet wood, fully worthy of the best and most careful treatment and have in consequence had no more trouble with it than we have had with oak, mahogany or any other wood.

Very truly yours,

KERTSCHER & CO.,

Edward A Kertscher Sec'y.

The above long list of important buildings is just a list of what one mill has supplied in RED GUM trim in New York alone and it shows conclusively the development of the use of this superb cabinet wood in the metropolitan territory alone.

Literally hundreds of New York's handsomest buildings are RED GUM buildings—and the owners and builders are proud of it, and money in pocket as well. Will YOU do as much for yourself?

Finished Samples of selected RED GUM and full information may be obtained promptly on request from and possible dust from the door of the coal or woodbox. It is in the concrete floor, behind the kitchen door, near the fuelbox opening and over the ash bin.

The carrying of fuel and ashes is thus eliminated from the women's work, provided the man or boy fills the coal or woodbox each week, or as may be necessary, and empties the ash bin two or three times a year.

The water problem also has been carefully considered in this little plan. Cistern water may be drawn from the bucket pump on the porch or, if desired, from a pitcher pump at the sink. Hot water is heated and stored in the reservoir of the stove. The sink, with only the drain pipe to be provided, is too inexpensive to omit from any kitchen, and space enough has been saved in this one to more than pay for all such conveniences.

This little kitchen excels many others in not being a thoroughfare to other rooms. The men and boys will wash on the porch, leave their hats and raincoats there and enter the living-room without disturbing the kitchen workers.

The Porch.

The screened porch is as large as the plan will permit; but too small for all the purposes for which it will be in demand. Besides the usual kitchen work, the ironing and perhaps the clothes washing will be done there. The one screen door locks up the house, and butter, meat and milk put on the porch to cool at night will be secure against dogs and cats. The porch will be in demand as a dining porch, outdoor sitting-room and nursery. The bedrooms are separated by portiers from the living-room, as shown.

Such is, in brief, the kind of a house that can be built for $800 to $1,000 (not counting the cost of the site). It is heated by the kitchen range and in this day of auxiliary heating appliances they can be used to help drive out the cold in extreme weather. In any case, the occupants will be a great deal more comfortable than they are in tenements when the janitor is asleep and the temperature outside is nearing zero.

Low Bidder for Seventh Avenue Subway.

The United States Realty & Improvement Company, 111 Broadway, submitted the lowest bid this week, at $1,837,000, for the construction of the section of the Seventh avenue Interborough subway from Commerce street to West 16th street. This includes a local station at Christopher street and an express station at 14th street; and when it has been let the entire Seventh avenue line, with the exception of the short stretch from the Times Building to the junction with the present subway, will be under contract. Eighteen firms competed. The next lowest bids were from the Thomas J. Buckley Engineering Company, $1,954,000, and the Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins Corporation, $1,999,000.

Ballinger & Perrot Selected Architects.

The National Casket Company, James P. Linahan, secretary, William D. Hamilton, president, Benjamin E. Chase, treasurer, 48 Great Jones street, Manhattan, has retained Ballinger & Perrot, 1328 Broadway, as architects for its new factory to be erected on Jackson avenue near the Bridge Plaza, Long Island City. The building will be of reinforced concrete, six stories in height, containing 175,000 square feet, and cost about $200,000. The architects will be ready for estimates on the general contract about April 15.

School and Residence for Harlem.

Ballinger & Perrot, 1328 Broadway, Manhattan, have been commissioned by the Sisters of the Blessed Sacrament, of Pennsylvania, to prepare plans for a residence and school, 75x100 feet, to be erected in Harlem, the location for which for the present is withheld. The construction will be fireproof throughout, with facades of light brick and terra cotta. The cost will be about $50,000. Bids will be taken by the architects in about ten days.

Notice to Architects.

The British Consular officer at Venice announces that an Italian company has arranged an international competition of plans for the construction of villa flats at the Lido, Venice, at a total cost not exceeding $400,000. Prizes of $2,300, $1,500 and $1,000 will be awarded, and plans must be sent not later than noon on June 30, 1914, to the Direzione della Compagnia Italana del Grandi Alberghi, S. M. del Giglio, 2467, Venice.

Hotel at Great Neck Estates.

The McKnight Realty Company, 347 Fifth avenue, is having plans prepared by Clarence Luce, 334 Fourth avenue, Manhattan, for a fireproof hotel, 150x400 feet, three and a half stories in height, to be erected at Great Neck Estates, Long Island.

This Man Took Edison Service Temporarily

A New York business man, operating a private plant, found that some repairs were necessary on the boilers. He therefore arranged for Edison Service while they were being made

He Never Gave It Up

When the repairs were completed, and he could go back to his private plant, he decided it was wiser to keep on with Edison Service, for he had been getting more dependable light and power at less expense

The same thing would be true in your case. May we give you further information ?
